World in Brief

Another Liberian Tanker Is Aground

A barge today was pumping oil from the 824-foot tanker Universe Leader, which ran aground in the Delaware River just off Salem, N.J., Tuesday night. The ship was carrying a cargo of 21 million gallons of crude oil from Nigeria to a Gulf Oil Co. refinery near Chester, Pa. So far there has been no spillage reported.

It was the sixth Liberian-flag tanker accident in or near U.S. waters since mid-December. The oil is being removed in an effort to lighten the load and get the vessel afloat, after it ran aground to avoid a collision with another tanker which was heading down the river.

...Search Goes On For Lost Oil Ship

BOSTON (UPI) — A 34,000-square-mile area of the Atlantic Ocean was searched Tuesday by U.S. and Canadian aircraft in an effort to find the Panamanian tanker Grand Zenith, which was last heard from last Thursday. The ship at that time radioed it was encountering bad weather south of Nova Ssotia.

The Grand Zenith, with 38 crewmen and 8.2 million gallons of oil aboard, has not been heard of since. The search will continue today, but a winter storm moving up the coast could hamper efforts.

New Members Sworn Into 95th Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With families and friends looking down from the galleries 435 members of the House and 33 new or re-elected members of the Senate took the oath of office Tuesday at the opening of the 95th Congress.

A new set of leaders — Howard Baker as Republican leader and Robert Byrd as Democratic leader, in the Senate, and Thomas "Tip" O'Neill Speaker of the House — took over amid the traditional pomp and ceremony.

Coffee Sales Total Is Brazilian Record

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — UPI was told by sources Tuesday the year's gross coffee sales of Brazilian coffee will be in excess of $2.3 billion, more than double the $900 million gross export sales of 1975. The Brazilian Coffee Institute was expected to release official figures for 1976 in a few days.

The boom is being enjoyed by both producers and exporters. But the coffee drinkers and migrant pickers are suffering, the former from increased price and the latter because there is little coffee to pick. And it will take three years for the new trees planted this year to bear fruit.

China Quake Toll Put at 655,237

HONG KONG (UPI) — An earthquake that struck Tangshan province, about 100 miles southeast of Peking, July 28 was one of the strongest recorded in the world in more than a dozen years. And if figures are correct it was the second deadliest in history.

A report attributed to Chinese leaders in the affected province said the quake that registered 8.3 on the Richter Scale killed at least 655,237 and injured more than 779,000.

Calls Cut and State Govt. Rehaul Vital to Future

Carey Asks $200 Million Tax Cut

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey today proposed a $200 million tax cut and the contraction and reorganization of state government, calling both vital to the state's economic future.

The recommendations in the governor's annual State of the State message to the legislature came less than a month after he announced that the state faced a "$1 billion budget problem." The proposals marked a dramatic turn from the gloomy economic terms he had used in his 1975 and 1976 messages.

His call for a tax cut stripped the Republican legislators of the tax issue as a weapon to use against him in the coming lawmaking session and in his likely 1978 re-election campaign.

Keying the broad economic development plan outlined by Carey was a proposal that the voters be asked next fall to approve $750 million in state borrowing for capital construction projects that would create thousands of jobs.

Carey's message failed to touch on several issues which were expected to be in the forefront of the 1977 legislative session. Among them were details of how he would deal with the "$1 billion budget problem," which only weeks earlier he had warned would require significant cutbacks in state funding for education, welfare, and aid to localities.

It represented a continuation of his administration's efforts to trim down the size of the government bureaucracy, which began in 1975 with the announcement of a freeze on state hiring that to date has reduced the state's 184,000-man workforce by 10,700 persons.

However, the governor did not offer an explanation of whether the continued "contraction" of the state bureaucracy would mean additional layoffs.

Carey promised that the state budget he would present to the legislature Jan. 18 "will reflect the twin commitments of reducing both the size of government and its obligations while bringing tax relief and economic hope."

"For this commitment to be fulfilled," the governor said, "we must acknowledge that our resources are still restricted, our actions are being observed and judged at higher levels of government, and our economic future is literally on the line."

He proposed that the state adopt "a multi-year perspective" and said he would ask lawmakers to establish "a panel on the future of government in New York" which would "assist us as we chart the new direction of a costconscious government..."

A summary of major recommendations:

TAXES: Allow the 2.5 per cent income tax surcharge to expire March 31st, plus creation of a $100 million tax reduction for middle and lower income taxpayers. Adoption of his overall plan would permit future tax reductions for businesses and industry.

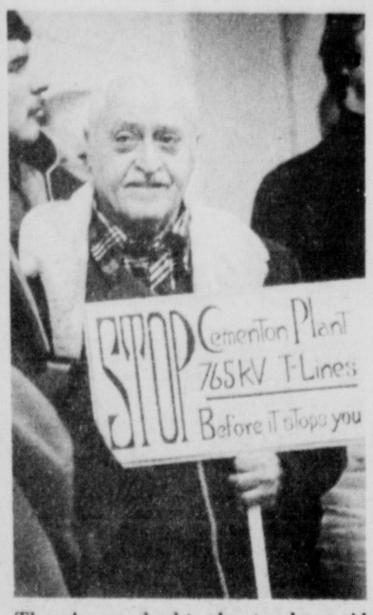

REORGANIZATION: Split up the massive Department of Mental Hygiene into three agencies for mental health, retardation and alcohol and drug abuse. Overhaul a number of smaller agencies and boards.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE: Tougher restrictions on handguns, increasing mandatory sentences for violent offenders, pushing for voter approval this fall of court reform amendments calling for elimination of election of high court judges and new disciplinary and administration procedures.

ECONOMY: Ask the voters to approve a $750 million bond issue this fall for public works projects, accelerate capital

Anti Nuke Sentiment Runs Nearly 4-1

There's no doubt about where Al Scarpa of Preston Hollow stands.

HUDSON — Sentiment at the initial public hearing on a proposed Cementon nuclear power plant ran nearly 4-1 against the facility, but still unclear at the end of the marathon session Tuesday was whether the unsworn testimony would have any effect on the final decision.

Midway through 8½ hours of testimony from 117 speakers, a staff member of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission confided to reporters that most of the arguments presented at the joint federal-state hearing were on general nuclear power issues that already have been settled on the federal level.

Opponents argued chiefly that nuclear plant operation is unsafe and that radioactive waste can't be effectively eliminated. However, several acknowledged that those arguments wouldn't have much weight as the hearing process turns to months of specifics and technicalities.

The hearing officers face the throng.

"All the significant issues are automatically excluded from this hearing," said Joel Kobran of Kingston, representing the Environmental Task Force of Ulster County, one of dozens of opponent groups sitting through the daylong hearing at Columbia-Greene Community College.

Support for the 1,200-megawatt plant, which the N.Y. State Power Authority proposes to build on 270 acres of rural-industrial land in Cementon, came chiefly from labor unions and employer groups, who argued for area economic benefits and for national power security against further foreign oil embargoes.

"Congress has said that nuclear power plants are okay, if they can be built within certain parameters," said Frederic J. Coufal, chairman of the NRC licensing board, who shared presiding examiner's duties with Edward D. Cohen of the state Board on Electric Generation Siting and the Environment.

While there are federal regulations on permissible levels of radioactive leakage from nuclear plants, opponents argued that no level of radiation would be acceptable to them.

Should nuclear construction be permitted at Cementon, "there are an awful lot of us willing to put our bodies on the line," said Martin S. Carey of Willow, a member of Woodstock Nuclear Opponents.

In a written statement of support, former U.S. Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan called for an end to "pipe dreams" about alternate energy sources and said nuclear opponents are "hurting New York's economy and potential for new jobs and a secure energy supply.

NYSPA, which now operates two nuclear plants, one at Indian Point south of Newburgh, said construction of the Cementon plant would employ 2,100 workers and create a $168 million payroll before it went on line in 1984. Then there would be 206 permanent jobs and an annual payroll of $4.4 million, NYSPA said.

The quasi-public utility wouldn't pay taxes on its property, although an estimated $150,000 a year would go to local government in lieu of taxes, NYSPA Chairman James A. Fitzpatrick said.

Near Record Crowd Turned Out For Last Chance to Be Heard

HUDSON — A joint federal-state hearing Tuesday on a proposal to build a nuclear plant in Cementon was the last chance for the general public to air its views — but only the first round in months or years of technical arguments.

Now that the hearings turn to sworn testimony and technical evidence, most of the spectators will "thin out after two or three more sessions," a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said.

However, nearly 100 so-called "full" intervenors will continue to participate in the hearings as the joint sessions of the NRC and state siting board stretch through the months, possibly as long as mid-1977.

Then the hearings split into separate affairs where the state continues to ponder the environmental compatibility of N.Y. State Power Authority's proposal to build the 1,200-megawatt Cementon plant.

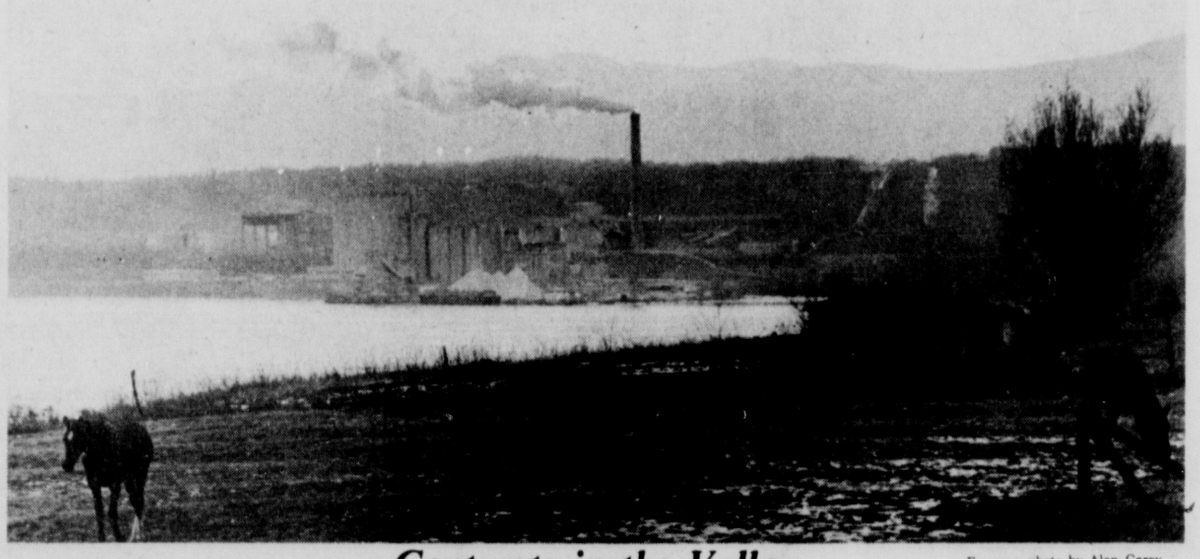

The NRC hearings on the federal level go into an even longer chain of construction permit reviews, environmental statements, safety reviews and hearings, and then another set of procedures on an operating license — all amounting to several years of testimony and argument.

NYSPA has said it needs state and federal approval sometime in 1978 to get the plant operating by 1984.

First Arterial Round Lost, Others Planned

KINGSTON — Two citizens groups have lost the opening court battle in their fight to stop an arterial highway from being built through downtown Kingston, but other legal warfare is being planned.

WHITA, the We've Had It Taxpayers Association, and an ad hoc residents committee known as CCTI, were notified by Albany Supreme Court Judge Edward Conway last week that their petition to delay construction for another public hearing on the project had been denied.

The judge said the appeal for another hearing on the proposed 2.4-mile downtown bypass and bridge should have come several years ago, not several months before construction is scheduled to begin.

Mary E. McMickle, WHITA president, said the decision was "disappointing but not unexpected," and she said no appeal is planned. Instead, the groups now will head for federal court for a permanent injunction against the roadway as an unnecessary, excessively costly and disruptive burden on taxpayers and residents.

WHITA and CCTI also are conducting a petition drive against the project.

"The battle has been lost — but not the war," Mrs. McMickle said.

Woodstock Reopens Welfare Office

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
Freeman Staff

WOODSTOCK— Ulster County has unexpectedly closed the books on Woodstock's welfare recipients, prompting a hasty move by the town board last night to return them temporarily to the local rolls.

Taken by surprise with a notice Tuesday afternoon that the county Social Services Department would no longer pick up Woodstock's home relief tab, the board agreed last night to temporarily reopen the local welfare office, reappointing supervisor Val Cadden to act as welfare officer. But the board pointed out that it might decide to shut down again, if "some other possible action" appears feasible.

Woodstock closed its office in November 1975, and the county has paid recipients since that time. But the county this week began billing Woodstock property owners for some $38,000 in costs involved through a special chargeback. And the town is now suing the county in an effort to avoid those payments.

Now, however, with the county's welfare doors also closed, board members felt they had only three options:

- Reopen the Woodstock office today and start making payments to those persons determined eligible by the county.
- Pay for only those categories of recipients which the town considers legitimate town expenses, and refuse payment to all others.
- Refuse to open its office and refuse payment to anyone.

That the town chose the first option was based in part on the reaction to the problem of the large crowd attending the meeting. Several people argued that it would be unethical, illegal and morally incorrect not to assume payment, or to arbitrarily strike recipients off the rolls.

"We can't make currently legitimized, innocent people suffer," insisted poet-playwright Alfie Robinson. Others agreed with him. Recipients now being turned away from the county's doors were "victims," they said, who shouldn't be left "cold and starving in the middle of winter." Some criticized the board for not making any contingency plans for just such possible county action.

Others argued that if the town refused to care for recipients, private or community efforts would have to be mounted to set up relief stations in churches or town-owned buildings to feed and house welfare cases. Some residents, recalling benefit fund-raisers held in the depression 1930s suggested similar functions to

Taxpayers to Get Bill For Richter Benching

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON— The suspension, with pay, of Judge Hubert Richter will cost city taxpayers $40 a day in addition to the money allocated for judges in the 1977 budget.

By a vote of 12 to 2 the Common Council last night passed a measure authorizing the $40 a day payment to Special City Court Judge David Greenwald, Richter's replacement. Greenwald, whose weekly court responsibility has gone from one day a week to six days a week since Richter's suspension last month, will receive the money in addition to his yearly salary of $2,296. The money will be paid for only three months since the state will begin assuming local judicial costs on April 1st. As City Court Judge, Richter receives $9,368.

In casting no votes, Aldermen Clarence Raichle, R-Ward 1 and Joseph Markle, R-Ward 3, both said that Richter should be made to pay back the money he receives from city taxpayers while he is not performing any service. Markle prefaced his vote by saying that taxpayers, facing cutbacks in police and fire service, should not be asked to pay a judge "who goes and gets himself suspended."

Corporation Council Andrew Gilday, in response to a question from Markle, said that Richter would not be required to pay back any money if he should be found guilty of the charges of "intemperate, injudicious and abusive acts" leveled against him by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

Alderman John Finch, chairman of the council's finance ways and means committee, said that Greenwald will be paid from the city's contingency fund.

A request from Mayor Frank Koenig asking for authorization to file a preapplication for $300,000 in federal "discretionary" funds received unanimous approval. The money is made available to communities on a competitive basis by

Liquor Is Quicker..But

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Drink liquor and you'll warm up, right?

Try coffee or soup instead.

Dr. Gregory Collins, director of the alcohol rehabilitation center Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital and assistant professor of medicine at Case Western Reserve University's Medical School, says alcohol dilates blood vessels in the skin, causing flushing and that warm, tingly feeling at first, but it also means the body is losing heat through the skin.

He says drinking booze also enhances sweating, which also lowers the body's temperature.

Menu 'Imports' Cited

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The city's crackdown on misleading menus marches on.

In the past few months, restaurant owners have been fined for advertising "Louisiana shrimp" they could not prove came from the bayou state, "Idaho potatoes" that never knew a field north of Oakland, and "just caught fish" that were hooked in a deep freeze.

The owners of the Old World restaurants were fined $600.

Their offense: Their "imported" mozarella cheese was imported from Minneapolis.

Area Coffee Drinkers Resigned

KINGSTON — The national consumer kettle may be boiling over about the upward climb of coffee prices, but local shoppers seem more or less resigned to paying up for their morning cup or two.

The better part of 20 or so persons putting coffee in their supermarket shopping carts Tuesday said they were definitely disgruntled by the creeping coffee hike, but only two were contemplating a complete boycott of America's national beverage.

The rest said they would still buy some coffee, even if the price went up to $3 a pound, as the wholesale marketers now say it will.

"Oh,I'll buy it, but I won't drink as much of it," said Mrs. Grant Gilsinger of Chichester. "Some tea will take the place of a few of those cups of coffee." Mrs. Gilsinger said she now buys a pound to a pound and a half of coffee each week.

Andrew Campbell of Kingston says he sticks to instant coffee and will limit himself to two cups a day, but he's not going to give it up completely.

Area supermarkets report that coffee sales have not declined during the past month or so, but Grand Union grocery manager Jeff Sheldon speculated that was probably because of increased holiday entertaining."

A spokesman for Waldbaums added his opinion that shoppers were intelligent enough to make their own decisions and anticipated that as coffee prices rose, sales would fall.

"We have coffee on sale this week at $1.99," said the manager, who declined to be indentified. "We'll sell more than usual, but we're trying to hold the line, we're not making any money on coffee, and sometimes I'm even selling it for less than I pay for it wholesale."

Coffee prices in the area run anywhere from $1.89 on sale to $2.59 for specialized brews such as Sanka or Medaglio D'Oro, but the average cost of a pound of ground coffee is $2.09.

In recent weeks, major coffee companies, including Folger, have announced that their prices would go up to $3.09 a pound because of the early frost in Brazil which wiped out a large part of that South American country's coffee bean crop.

At A&P, where whole coffee beans can still be ground to order at the store's checkout counter, the scent of fresh roasted beans still fills the air, but shoppers seemed scarce on the coffee aisle.

Mrs. Carl Kaminsky of Woodstock said she had drawn the line at $2 a pound, as she searched the shelves for the A&P brand on sale this week with a special coupon offer.

"Yes! I'm a coffee drinker, she added, emphatically, but I'll switch to tea if the price goes any higher...but then I expect they'll raise the price of that, too."

The local store manager declined to comment on the chain's future plans for coffee sales and the regional merchandising director for coffee was unavailable for a statement, either .

The Concerned Consumers of New Paltz had added their voice to that of New York City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs Elinor Guggenheimer who has asked residents to boycott coffee.

"Coffee drinkers of New Paltz, unite!" says co-chairman Rhea Sharefkin, who is advocating a New Paltz Tea Party as another example of "resistance to unjust taxation, which is what is happening with the price-fixed gouging by the OTEC (Organization of Coffee Exporting Countries) cartel."

"If they can't afford coffee, let them drink tea, or milk or martinis," says Ms. Sharefkin.

A number of coffee companies themselves are offering cents-off coupons to customers, in the hope of keeping costs down until people get used to the notion of premium prices.

Alfred Zesterman of Kingston stopped into the ShopRite store Tuesday to pick up a can of Sanka, which usually sells for $2.59.

"My wife wrote the company a while ago and last week they sent her six coupons for 50 cents each, so we'll buy it, for now," he said.

Tuesday's Daily Freeman also carried an ad from the Nescafe Company with three cut-out coupons good for large discounts on instant coffee for the next three months.

One elderly gentleman, who came down from Hunter Mountain to shop in the Caldor Plaza Tuesday, said that no matter what the price, "I'll pay it anyway. I haven't got that much longer to live, so I might as well enjoy myself."

He bought three pound of coffee, a bag of bagels and went off to get a haircut in Kingston, "where at least you can find a good barber."

Coffee is on his mind..and also the price.

Brazilian Growers Grew Rich Last Year

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Brazilian coffee growers earned record profits last year and apparently are unconcerned over American attempts to fight high prices with a boycott.

The Brazilian Coffee Institute was expected to release official figures for 1976 in a few days and sources told UPI Tuesday the year's gross sales will be in excess of $2.3 billion.

This is more than double the $900 million gross export sales of 1975 and $1 billion more than Brazil's previous record of $1.243 billion in 1973.

Attempts at launching a coffee boycott to push down the current price in the United States of nearly $3 a pound have been spearheaded by New York City's consumer affairs commissioner.

A spokesman said Coffee Institute President Camilo Calazans had confided to a small group that attempts at boycotting Brazilian coffee "could be good for Brazil."

The spokesman said Calazans told the group: "The fact is the Brazilian government isn't interested in having Brazil continue being responsible for the largest part of international coffee demand. We cannot continue exporting or we will exhaust our stocks in a few months."

The Brazilian boom is being enjoyed by both producers and exporters. Only the coffee drinker and migrant picker are suffering.

Before the July 1975 frost that destroyed or damaged 71 per cent of Brazil's coffee trees, the price of coffee for domestic consumption in Brazil was about 70 cents a pound. The price now is about $1.90 a pound.

The price the farmer receives for a 132-pound sack has gone up from $33 to $44 to $200 registered this week.

"The reason is there just isn't any coffee around," said a coffee specialist. "Before, they had too much. You couldn't sell it, and the buyers told the farmers what they were going to pay and that was that."

For the same reason, the migrant worker is suffering since there is little coffee to pick. It will take three years for the new trees planted this year to bear fruit and provide work for the nearly 500,000 pickers who depend on the harvest for seasonal work.

McHugh Favors More Public Works Funds

WASHINGTON—Congressman Matthew F. McHugh indicated today that he would support legislation for additional public works funding. At the same time, he expressed strong concern over the manner in which Title I of the Public Works Employment Act of 1976 was implemented by the Economic Development Administration.

"Some form of additional legislation is clearly justified," McHugh said. "There are many good projects that have not been funded and unemployment is still much too high. On the other hand, we must be sure that any new legislation enacted by Congress provides for a fair distribution of funds, with those areas of highest unemployment receiving priority."

"A number of fine projects in district were funded," McHugh said. "However, I am disturbed by the fact that many communities with high levels of unemployment received no funds whatsoever under Title I of the first public works legislation. For example, Sullivan and Ulster Counties, areas with extremely high levels of unemployment within my own district, received no Title I funds, and I know that this problem is not peculiar to my district."

Title I provides $2.3 billion in Federal funds in states and localities for public works projects that could be started quickly and that would have an immediate impact on high unemployment. The projects will be 100 per cent Federally funded.

"We need to know how and why this distribution of funds occurred," McHugh said, "and I believe that the GAO (General Accouting Office) can perform a thorough and competent assessment." The GAO is located within the legislative branch of government, and is charged with the responsibility of determining whether programs are being implemented in accordance with Congressional intent.

"I believe the study will help clear the air," McHugh observed, "and I am hopeful that the findings of the GAO will be a major help to the Congress in preventing what is happening from reoccurring."

McHugh stressed, however, that the present economic situation makes it highly unlikely that there will be enough funds for every legitimate project. "Unfortunately some communities are always going to be disappointed because their projects are not funded. This is understandable since even EDA admits that many of the unfunded projects are worthwhile. However, everyone should realize that there are limits to the ability of the Federal Government to sort all public works projects."

Whispell Figures to Get 40 of 52 City GOP Votes

KINGSTON— As many as 40 of the 52 GOP committeemen in the City of Kingston are expected to cast their votes in favor of Kenneth Whispell when the Republicans meet Friday night to select their new county chairman.

According to city GOP leader Frank Stauble, Whispell's opponent, Michael Catalinotto will get only about six votes from the city, with six city committeemen not voting at all.

"Mike is a nice guy," said Stauble, "but we would feel more comfortable sitting down with Ken. He's a real down to earth, grassroots type of fellow. The type that will roll up his sleeves and loosen his tie when he sits down to talk to you."

The city GOP is not scheduled to meet this week, but Stauble said today he would have no objection to Catalinotto calling a special meeting to address the committeemen.

"I wouldn't stand in the way if he wanted to get the committeemen together to talk to them," said Stauble, "but I wasn't going to call the meeting."

Catalinotto, who earlier this week said he expected to carry the city in Friday night's election, was unavailable for comment.

Point Cadets Face Honor Edict Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Martin Hoffman is faced with making a decision that will determine the fate of dozens of U.S. Military Academy cadets charged with cheating and thousands more who will live with the West Point honor code in years to come.

Army sources expected Hoffman, at a news conference today, to agree to many of the recommendations made last month by a blue-ribbon panel headed by former astronaut Frank Borman, but perhaps to insist on his own views in some cases.

One of the major issues involves the fate of members of this year's graduating class who so far have resigned or been expelled as a result of widespread collaboration last year on a take-home electronics exam, as well as others who were implicated and whose cases are still in process.

Another issue is whether the code, which states that "A cadet will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do," should permit lesser penalties that the present dismissal for minor offenses.

Hoffman's view has been that cadets found guilty in the current scandal should be allowed to apply for readmission to the academy next year, while the Borman panel's recommendation was that those dismissed so far should be reinstated as quickly as possible and investigations of others implicated be halted now.

In issuing 21 recommendations, the panel found that "education concerning the Honor Code has been inadequate and the administration of the Honor Code has been inconsistent and, at times, corrupt."

It called the system "grossly inadequate" and demanded improvement.

The panel recommended the basic provisions of the code be unchanged. In addition to discretion in administering penalties, it proposed cadets have options aside from reporting honor violations by others or being considered violators themselves.

Job Action Possible in West Park

WEST PARK— Teachers at the West Park School in Esopus, working without a contract since July, say they are considering some type of job action if a settlement with the board of education is not reached soon.

The announcement comes in the wake of the school board's rejection of a factfinder's report which recommended a salary increase and the teacher's right to binding arbitration agreements in grievance procedures. According to Jeff Hanna, president of the West Park Teacher's Association (WPTA), the teachers are seeking "only those contract provisions which have been granted to teachers in almost all other districts in our area."

A negotiating session between the WPTA and the school board has been scheduled for today.

STATE OF THE STATE

Carey Would Restructure Rule

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A summary of New York State government news.

Gov. Hugh Carey today opened the 1977 session of the legislature with his annual "State of the State" message that included a call for a $200 million dollar cut in income taxes — $100 million by dropping the emergency surcharge and $100 million in actual cuts for middle and low income wage earners.

Carey also told the lawmakers he wanted to restructure state governmet to make it more efficient and attract business, would propose a $750 million capital construction bond issue, push for changes in the criminal justice system, and ask for a panel on the state's future.

ASSEMBLY

Democrat Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut of Brooklyn has been re-elected by majority Democrats for another two years as Speaker, easily brushing back a challenge by Assemblyman Frank Barbaro. Republican Minority Leader Perry Duryea will continue in that role in the Assembly, controlled 90-60 this year by the Democrats. Other leadership posts won't be decided until Thursday and Friday.

SENATE

Republican Majority Leader Warren Anderson says he opposes any increase in taxes and wants to allow exisiting emergency surcharges on income, corporate franchises and banks to expire as scheduled. Anderson outlined his position at a "State of the Senate" dinner for GOP senators that annually precedes the opening of a new legislative session. He also called for closer cost controls by the Carey administration, spending on approved construction projects to stimulate the economy, and better efforts and laws to attract business to the state.

BONDS

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt says the state's Common Retirement Fund has resold $15 million of state bonds at a profit of nearly $1.3 million. The bonds, carrying 7 per cent interest, were resold to Chase Manhattan Bank and Associates, who agreed to pay a premium of $1,228,746. They had been purchased by the Retirement Fund last April 15 after the private money market showed no interest in buying them.

OIL SPILL

State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz has filed a $10.34 million suit against the owners of a barge which ran aground in the St. Lawrence River last June, spilling more than 300,000 gallons of oil. Lefkowitz said the claim was against the Oswego Barge Corp., owners of the barge "Nepco 140." It was filed in U.S. District Court in Utica. The barge ran aground near Mason Point on June 23, 1976.

BLUE

Blue Cross rates for community-rated subscribers in 13 Northeastern counties have been increased by an average of 19.9 per cent, the Insurance Department announced. The plan, which provides hospitalization coverage for 183,347 community-rated subscribers in the area, had requested a 32.9 per cent increase. The new rates were made effective Jan. 1. Blue Cross of Northeastern New York had received a 15.1 per cent increase on Feb. 1, 1976.

EQUAL RIGHTS

Major contractors with the state will be required to have equal opportunity hiring programs under an executive order signed by Carey. The order also established an office of state contract compliance. Under its terms, a bidder must submit an "affirmative action" job plan before any contract is awarded by a state agency for construction or non-construction work of $50,000 or more. Violations could result in termination or suspension of the contract and disqualification from further state bidding for up to two years.

Hundreds of Thousands More Injured

Chinese Quake Killed at Least 655,237

HONG KONG(UPI) — The strongest earthquake recorded in the world in more than a dozen years killed at least 655,237 persons and injured more than 779,000 when it struck northern China last summer, according to a report attributed to Chinese leaders in the affected province.

The July 28 temblor was centered at Tangshan, about 100 miles southeast of Peking, and was one of six major earthquakes to hit China during 1976.

If the figures on the Tangshan quake are correct, it would be the second deadliest in history. It also could mean that a million or more persons may have died in all the quakes in China last year.

Chinese officials have not made public any precise figures on casualties and property damage in any of the six quakes.

But many official reports have said losses were "extremely serious."

The report giving the casualty figures was issued by the Hopeh Provincial Committee of the party and the Hopeh Revolutionary Committee last Aug. 6, according to Nationalist Chinese sources who obtained a text and made it available.

Intelligence sources familiar with such documents said they had no reason to doubt its authenticity.

"According to preliminary statistics," the report said, "in such seriously stricken areas as Tangshan municipaltiy, and Fengnan and Feng-yung, there were 655,237 persons dead. Some 79,000 persons were seriously injured and under emergency treatment, and some 700,000 persons suffered various degrees of injuries.

"In other stricken areas, the number of dead and injured was comparatively smaller," the report said.

Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, in a major policy speech delivered in late December, also spoke of grave losses and said the Tangshan quake "inflicted a loss of lives and property that is rarely seen in history."

The Tangshan quake registered 8.3 on the Richter scale, making it the most severe recorded in the world since the Alaska quake in March, 1964.

The deadliest quake in history struck China's Shensi Province in 1556 and reportedly killed 830,000 persons.

The city of Tangshan, which had a population of more than one million, was flattened by last summer's quake. So were nearby Fengnan and other smaller cities in the surrounding area.

Peking and Tientsin, the second and third largest cities in China, also were affected by the Tangshan quake. The death toll in those cities was relatively light, so far as can be determined, but millions were left homeless.

Quake Set Deadly Record

By UPI

The death toll of 655,237 in northern China's earthquake last July 28, which Nationalist Chinese sources say has been reported by provincial officials in China, would make it the second deadliest in recorded history. Other quakes noted for their intensity and the damage they caused include:

— Shensi province of China, January 1556: Killed 830,000 persons, the largest number of fatalities on record from an earthquake.

— Tokyo and Yokohama, Japan, September 1923: A reading of 8.3 on the openended Richter scale. The quake and subsequent fires destroyed most of both cities, killing an estimate 200,000 persons, the second largest number of fatalities from an earthquake in the 20th century.

— San Francisco, April 1906: Richter reading estimated at 8.3 (the scale had not been devised). The quake and subsequent fire were blamed for an estimated 700 deaths.

— Alaska, March 1964: Richter reading 8.5. A total of 114 persons were killed.

— Guatemala, February 1976: Richter reading 7.5. Authorities reported more than 23,000 deaths.

Deputies report that the front door was kicked in, a medicine cabinet was ransacked, but nothing was reported missing at this time.

Woman Cabby Robbed

A woman taxi driver in Ellenville was forced out of her cab on Route 32 by a black male passenger she was taking to Monticello Tuesday night. The 5-foot ten, 175 pounder relieved her of her wallet containing about $25, stole the taxi and hasn't been seen since, according to Ellenville State Police who are investigating.

Madolin Fitch, 43, the operator of the taxi, picked up the suspect in Ellenville and was taking him to his destination when he grabbed her by the back of the neck and forced her to stop the cab about three miles west of Ellenville and ordered her out. No weapon was displayed at the time, police said.

The wanted man has short black hair, brown eyes and was clean shaven.

A Lloyd man, who is a guard at Greenhaven State Correctional Facility, was one of two guards who were assaulted Tuesday with a steel rod wielded by a prisoner during a changing of shifts Tuesday afternoon.

The other guard, Gus Weiford, 30, of Route 52, Fishkill, also suffered a fractured skull and is in satisfactory condition at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Fishkill State Police report that criminal action is pending against the inmate, Gonzalez Medina, 30, who allegedly assaulted the guards.

According to police inmates were milling around outside their cellblocks during a change of shifts. As Hentschel and Weiford were preparing to leave, they walked through a group of inmates. Hentschel was struck first and Weiford, who was a few steps behind, was then struck repeatedly by Medina who was in possession of the steel rod, which appeared to be part of a window. The inmate was subdued by two other guards who came to the rescue.

"dramatize the situation and give other towns a moral route to emulate."

Still, there was some minority reaction that the town would bankrupt itself if it re-shouldered the welfare burden. And others felt Woodstock would prejudice and jeopardize its current lawsuit against the county by even a temporary reopening of its office.

But the strong undercurrent that surfaced through the crowd was that emergency aid was now necessary because of the county's refusal to pay. "It's a different ball game if nobody accepts the responsibility of payment," said councilwoman Jane Van De Bogart, "and interim relief must be provided."

The concensus of most present was that it would be "unthinkable from an ethical point of view" not to reopen the Woodstock office. And, for the board to decide on its own who could and could not be eligible for payments was equally unacceptable to most present. While the board has made clear it would hope to eliminate students, transients, and those with medical excuses that prohibit them from working from the rolls, several residents insisted such action would leave the town open to lawsuits by the state, county, and individual recipients themselves.

The board had indicated a strong desire not to vote on either option last night. The matter, members felt, was "too serious" to act on, on such short notice.

But, in the face of public reaction that the town had no alternative , legally and morally, but to take care of its own— and with the insistence by many that taxpayers had a "right" to observe the board's deliberations in the matter, if not to participate in its vote on final options, the board opted for an on-the-spot decision.

The local welfare office was reopened this morning. But the board could revamp its strategy almost immediately and close the office again within a few days, if the majority of members opt to continue their commitment against payments.

The office was closed originally to protest abuses in the system and as a meansto fight for reforms. Said Mrs. Cadden, "We've been fighting this battle for more than a year, and our final decision will, in essence, be a reform bill. We need time to discuss the eventual strategies involved with counsel, and to divulge information in public on those strategies which might hurt our current lawsuit."

The board will meet again with its attorney in executive session on the matter, and will hold another special, public meeting Thursday night to reconsider options. Whether it will continue to keep its welfare office open for temporary relief or close it down again will be decided at that time.

"We're still trying to figure out the best way for the town," said Mrs. Cadden, "and we're not ready to decide on a situation so complicated.

To date, the county has authorized payments to only 12 recipients, but Mrs. Cadden expects additional authorizations this week. Woodstock currently has more than 40 people on its rolls, which could mean expenditures in January alone of some $8,000.

And, once again, the supervisor pointed out that many of those are in their mid-20s, have medical excuses, and have lived in Woodstock for only a few months.

Woodstock, however, is not alone in its problem. Ulster County Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer has advised all town supervisors that the county is closing out all town home relief cases everywhere. That poses similar situations in other towns, most notably in Saugerties, where more than $100,000 in proposed welfare funds were deleted from the 1977 budget.

Recipients there, advised by the county to go to the town for their money, were already lining up in front of his door, said town supervisor Frank Greco. The Saugerties board, which met last night for a reorganization meeting, stuck strictly to that agenda, and welfare matters were not discussed at all.

•JUDGES

the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and will be allocated by the government based on such considerations as the amount of substandard housing in a given community and how the money will be used in relation to that situation. As a result of two recent public hearings, the city will use the money, if received, to upgrade the water distribution in the Broadway East/Ponckhockie area of the city.

The council, after some discussion, passed a measure authorizing the city to collect water rents not paid by city residents in 1976. Because of a state law, passed in 1899, the city water board is not empowered to collect the delinquent money, and every year the council must approve a resolution authorizing the city to make the collection. Aldermen Phillip De Cicco, D-Ward 9 and Donald Quick, D-Ward 6, both voted against the measure, with Quick saying that "it's not right for the city to be a collection agency."

De Cicco cast the lone dissenting vote on a local law that raises the mileage allotment for city employes from nine cents to 15 cents a mile. De Cicco said he felt that "now is not the time to be raising things." Alderman Titus Sims, (R-Ward 13), said he shared DeCicco's feelings, "but since the city employees are paying from their own pockets, I feel the increase is justified."

The move is expected to cost taxpayers about $1,000 to $1,200 a year.

The council's Finance Ways and Means committee formally received a copy of the mayor's proposed $8.9 million budget for 1977 and last night's meeting was recessed, rather than adjourned, to give the aldermen time to consider the spending plan.

Western Ski Areas Get Welcome Snow

By UPI

A powerful winter storm lumbered across the Midwest early today after dumping welcome snows on mountain ski areas of the west.

By early today, the heaviest snows extended through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, though portions of Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas and eastern Montana also were hard hit. Snow also clogged portions of Iowa.

Seven to eight inches of fresh snow hit southeast of Lincoln, Neb., and Mexico, Mo., reported 6½ inches of snow. Kansas City, Mo., reported five inches of snow. St. Louis had three inches.

Five-inch snowfalls clogged the Illinois communities of Springfield, Decatur and Quincy, while Peoria reported three inches. Scores of high school basketball games were postponed or canceled Tuesday night because of the storm.

The storm headed northward for Wisconsin and up to three inches of snow was forecast for portions of the Chicago area today.

Bitter cold spread over the Rockies and the northern Plains early today in the wake of the powerful snowstorm and sub-zero temperatures were the rule.

South of the snow belt, freezing rain put a glaze on streets and highways.

'Family' Made Problems Worse

Dear Editor:

The "Family of Woodstock" supporters certainly seem to be using partisan political gimmickry in taking dead aim at Woodstock Supervisor Val Cadden and the majority of the Woodstock Town Board ever since the Ulster County legislators rejected any public funding for "Family" in the final vote on the 1977 county budget.

May I clarify the situation by saying that the majority of the legislators voted as they did after weighing all the aspects, and expecially after hearing from the usually silent majority — the taxpaying public — in enough numbers, pages and pages of signed petitions which asked the legislature to eliminate any public funding for "Family" in the county budget in order to avoid creating a levy of additional expenses on the communities and other agencies to handle the problems created by "Family's" activities.

If you will remember, there was no provision for "Family" in the tentative Ulster County budget; hardly the work of Val Cadden and the Woodstock Town Board. Then, too, a combination of legislators from both sides of the aisle voted in committee to ask reinstatement, at which time I voted against it. Again, hardly the work of Val Cadden and her Town Board. Thirdly, my stand against funding for "Family" could hardly be blamed on Val Cadden and the Town Board of Woodstock. I was elected by the Town of Saugerties voters, I always research subjects before taking a stand, and I never forget the county's overall well-being when making a decision.

What the "Family" supporters have their heads in the sand about is that the solid citizens of the communities in this county feel that "Family" is an organization which is attracting and serving transient alcoholics, drug addicts, the mentally ill, runaways, and dropouts. This brand of clientele does not make a positive contribution to the community, but only uses services.

Dollars which are in short supply for such vitally needed services as public saftey, education and transportation should not go into promoting these transients who are already putting an extra burden on the state, county and local law enforcement officials, the judicial system, family court, and the District Attorney's office, and now "Family" wants to expand into other communities as well as Ellenville.

And, what with all of the "Family" supporters' high minded outpourings, why didn't "Family" include in its tour to the County Legislature's Public Health Committee what has become known as "Family's " flophouse — where a room is supposed to contain six or seven mattresses, with no separation as to male or female, young or old, and its so-called boarders may sleep there for up to three days.

The majority of citizens of this county are not in favor of setting up a beacon with a neon sign saying "Family — Come and Get It, and Line up at the Trough."

Local Bank Shows Brotherhood

Dear Editor:

Recently, I visited one of our banking institutions, and I was thoroughly inpressed with the beautifully decorated greens, the colorful arrangements and the loveliness which permeated the area. As I approached the teller's counter, I saw a beautiful bronze and enamel Menorah, which to my surprise had drippings of colorful wax. The Menorah was not an ornament, but a symbol of light.

For those of you who may not know what a Menorah is, may I briefly tell you that it symbolizes the light which burned for eight days for the Macabees after they restored the Temple following their victory for freedom against overwhelming odds. In my opinion the bank was truly expressing the feeling of brotherhood.

That same evening I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Kugelman, and I commended him on the lovely gestures of good will. He explained that he had researched the story of Chanukah in depth to learn how this holiday is celebrated by the Jewish people. I learned from Mr. Kugelman, that during Chanukah, a candle was lighted each day at 4:30 p.m. by the employes, until all eight candles had been lit.

In these times of tension, stress and struggle, it's wonderful to know, that regardless of our faith, we're all striving to achieve good will toward men, and a sincere feeling of brotherhood.

I'm sure that I express the feelings of many, that to appreciate and understand each other is the basis for Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men.

Thank you for allowing me to express my sentiments on this lovely gesture.

Job Loss Begins Welfare Woe

Dear Editor:

I have been born and raised in this area. I have held jobs, collected unemployment insurance, even public assistance here. Recently, I lost my job. I applied for public assistance. The following paragraph was taken verbatim from the letter I received about my case decision.

> Your application has been denied for the following reasons:
> Wage clearance from your employer indicates that you lost your last position due to your own negligence, therefore we are denying your case as per DSS reg 385.6 and sanctioning you for 75 days beginning 11-24-76 (DSS reg 385.7). In the mean time your needs may be met at the Ulster County Home.

I have a home and I refuse to be uprooted! I do not pay a large amount of rent, nor do I run up unnecessary medical bills, of course I have to eat to live. As I mentioned earlier, I have received assistance before, so I know living on public assistance is a hassle. You pay for every check you get with the mental anguish of trying to live on the meager sum they allot you. But I do not have a job and I would like to continue living.

In order to live, I will have to obtain affadavits from people who had spoken with my employer about my being fired. Presently, I am dealing with Mid-Hudson Valley legal services at 286 Wall St. We'll end up in court for a fair hearing regarding my case. Right now I am ineligible for unemployment insurance and might have to deal with the courts concerning it, also. After contacting the aforementioned legal services and literally starving for over a week, I was able to obtain food stamps. I need medical attention and I have no funds for this.

If I had a child, or was expecting a child, I would be receiving public assistance today. Unfortunately I am a 21-year-old, white, single woman who made a mistake at her job, was fired and is being denied help from her community. The very community I was brought up to respect! I don't know how I can respect a community where there is no concern for PEOPLE!!! The Ulster County Department of Social Services disgusts me with its lack of concern and air of indifference.

Funds are exhausted. Civil service workers are unsatisfied with their pay and benefits. I can understand a reluctance to spend more money. I applaud the crack-down on welfare fraud and worthwhile efforts to cease unnecessary spending.

With my low rent and food stamps, the county would be saving money by maintaining me in my own home, rather than at the county home. It puzzles me that our social services system would spend so foolishly when they're in their present condition.

This is why there is no money to help those who really need it!!! This is why I must struggle through our court system while searching for a job. It isn't easy. I have no car or money for buses and cabs. I must walk everywhere and as I stated earlier, I need medical attention. This is our friendly, supportive community/government and I'm ashamed to be part of it!!

Fred Dubois Always Helpful

Dear Editor:

I want to thank publicly Fred Dubois, our departig county treasurer, for the help he gave me personally in looking up material in the treasurer's archives in the County Office Building. He always stood ready to assist any person who entered his office seeking help, offering his help cheerfully and patiently.

Somehow, to me, Fred Dubois never seemed like an elected official. He worked quietly, efficiently and effectively, dedicated to serving the public and doing the very best job possible, shunning controversy and the limelight. He acted like one of the staff in the office, not like the boss. And that office enjoyed an esprit de corps that I've not witnessed in many places, testimony to the high esteem in which his staff held him.

Fred, you were a refreshing difference in the ranks of office holders. If only more of your caliber sought public office! Enjoy yourself in whatever you tackle next.

The Econo-Crime Capers

WASHINGTON - The varieties of economic crimes and our ways of catching the transgressors are wonderful, bewildering and long past rational understanding. Take the case of the University of Minnesota versus the National Collegiate Athletic Association. A federal court has granted the university an injunction stopping the NCAA from suspending the university teams from post-season play and lucrative televising of its games.

What did the university do? It refused to suspend three players who are alleged to have sold basketball tickets at a higher price than the one printed on them. This is the heinous crime of scalping, only it isn't so heinous when businessmen do it and instead of selling tickets they're selling wheat. Then it's called buying low and selling high, and if you're very successful at it everybody will call you Mister, idiot journalists will interview you about topics on which you are even more ignorant than they, and Jimmy Carter may appoint you Secretary of the Treasury.

Nevertheless, ticket scalping is almost universally frowned on and is illegal in most places. Legislators and prosecutors who spend their idle hours denouncing price controls on steel or hogs or molybdenum will go out and try to put people in jail to enforce price controls on tickets of all unlikely things. As for the NCAA, if that organization were not erroneously connected with higher education in the public's mind, its efforts to control the wages of professional athletes playing for schools would be a clear violation of the Clayton Act. As it is, we all write articles applauding the NCAA for working so hard to keep the standards up. What standards? What's up?

Another econo-crime is shylocking or loansharking. Again, people who swear by laissez-faire enthusiastically approve of putting people in jail for breaking the price-control laws by charging high interest rates. Like the price of tickets, the price of money ought to be governmentally administered even when the price for nothing else is.

You can't anticipate what will and what won't be regarded as an econo-crime. Take the recent case of Matthew Feldman, the president of the New Jersey State Senate. The luckless Feldman pleaded guilty to the crime of commercial bribery. Specifically he admitted he had agreed to pay the representative of a restaurant chain 2.5 per cent of $240,000 worth of business that Mr. Feldman's family-owned liquor company had anticipated getting. Why this should be a federal misdemeanor surpasses understanding. Mr. Feldman's customer may have a beef with its own employe if he pocketed the 2.5 per cent discount instead of passing it on to the management. It's not clear that's what happened but, if it did, why should it be against the law? Purchasing agents do take money under the table from suppliers all the time and their bosses have a satisfactory remedy. They can sue them to get the money back. In any event Mr. Feldman finds his name linked with the word bribery in the headlines and his political career in jeopardy because he offered a rebate or a discount to the wrong person at the wrong time.

The most important econo-crime case of the year was the sentencing in Chicago Federal court the other day of 47 cardboard box industry executives to prison terms and fines. This is unheard of. The last time a businessman found guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws was sentenced to pull some time was in 1960. The heaviest punishment handed out by Judge James Parsons was only 60 days and a $35,000 fine to R. Harper Brown, president of the Container Corporation of America, the people who've specialized in those tasteful institutional ads that feature great sayings by political philosophers like Alexis de Tocqueville and Aristotle. So much for the idea that when you learn knowledge you gain virtue. If your kid goes to Harvard he may know a lot, but they can't make a law-abiding citizen out of him.

The executives aren't going to do very hard time. The judge has said they can go to their offices during the week and go to jail on their weekends. That may ruin a certain number of golf games but even that may not come to pass since the judge has said he'll hear motions to mitigate these already-less-than-onerous sentences. It happens every time with white-collar crime. Even though all the evidence we have suggests that jail is indeed a deterrent to white-collar crime, if no other, the judge looks down at that defendant and he sees himself standing there awaiting the judgment of doom. Still it gives one a yummy feeling just to read that a chap named R. Harper Brown has been sent to the cooler.

In the last session of Congress the punishments for criminal violations of the anti-trust statutes were beefed up. If you believe people like Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter on how important the free market pricing system is to our national prosperity, then what these men did was very, very serious. By abolishing the free market in their industry they helped inflation and therefore unemployment and so could be said to have contributed to everything bad from crime to spreading disease, although whether violating the Sherman Act really has such terrible consequences is at least debatable.

Yet here these men commit the most serious of econo-crimes and get away with it. At least a bank robber, who does far less harm to the society, would think he got away with it if he only got 60 days.

Maybe we should concede the judges aren't going to jail businessmen for this kind of behavior and make the punishment fit the crime. When businessmen collude and conspire to fix prices they are repudiating their own free market faith. So perhaps firms convicted of these acts should be punished by being placed under price control, control administered by a court-appointed functionary. The functionary would be instructed to set the prices "in the public interest," and that, for most executives, would be a fate worse than jail.

The Carter Threshold

WASHINGTON—Leroy Simpkin entered the psychiatrist's office and went directly to the couch.

"What seems to be the trouble?" Dr. Heinrich Applebaum asked.

"I just discovered I have a low Jimmy Carter Threshold," Simpkin said nervously.

"Could you explain exactly what you mean?"

"He isn't even in the White House yet and I can't stand reading about him any more. I don't know how I'm going to get through the next four years."

Dr. Applebaum started to take notes. "When did you discover you had a low Carter Threshold?"

"I saw him on the cover of Time last week as 'Man of the Year' and I decided not to buy the magazine."

"I don't think that's too peculiar," Dr. Applebaum said. "There have been many weeks I haven't bought Tine magazine."

"It isn't just Time magazine, Doctor. I can't stand reading about Carter in Newsweek either—or in the newspapers. I'm sick and tired of seeing him on television. I've never admitted this to anyone, Doctor, but I'd rather read about an oil spill in Delaware than Jimmy Carter in Sea Island, Ga."

"Why do you think you feel this way?"

Simpkin stared at the ceiling. "I believe I know everything I want to know about Jimmy Carter. I know about his family, I know about the public school his kid is going to, I know about his brother Billy, I know about his mother Lillian, I know what Rosalynn eats for breakfast and what Amy eats for lunch.

"I know what Carter thinks of God, and what God thinks of Carter. I know what's in his heart. I know about his finances. I know where he stands on the issues. I know everything about his peanut business. I can't take it any more. I've had it up to here."

"You seem overwrought with Carter stories," Dr. Applebaum said, "but this is quite normal. The press has nothing to write about until January 20th and they're giving everyone large doses of Carter. But it won't last forever. After the swearing-in you may find your Carter Threshold is higher than you thought and you'll start wanting to read about him again."

"I wish it was true, Goctor, but it's hard to believe. Do you know if I have the choice of reading about Carter or Richard Nixon, I read about Nixon?"

"That's very interesting."

"What's even worse is that I'll read a story about Mayor Beame before I'll read one about Carter."

Applebaum whistled. "Beame before Carter!"

"The other day I found myself choosing an article on Howard Hughes' will over one on Jimmy Carter's plans for a tax cut. An I sick, Doctor?"

"No, you're not sick. You're the twelfth patient I've had today who said he can't take one more story about Jimmy Carter. You all seem to be suffering from what we doctors call a 'Carter syndrome' or, to put it in layman's terms, 'an overdose of Plains, Ga.' "

"Is there a cure?" Simpkin asked plaintively.

"We haven't got one yet," Dr. Applebaum said. "Our only hope is that Congress will pass legislation that you can't get a story about Jimny Carter or any member of his family without a prescription. The trouble now is that all the Jimmy Carter stories are sold over the counter, and many people like yourself with a low Carter Threshold have become allergic to them."

"Help me, Doctor," Simpkin begged. "If I see one more magazine cover with Jimmy Carter on it I'm going to do something drastic."

"Let me ask you something," Dr. Applebaum said. "Didn't you have the same feelings reading about Gerry Ford?"

Simpkin looked puzzled. "Ford? Who's Gerry Ford?"

FDA Ignores Sour Evidence

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration is sitting on scientific evidence that saccharin, the artificial sweetener used by millions, nay cause cancer.

The evidence is so persuasive that many FDA officials are privately alarmed at the agency's failure to act. Saccharin should be taken off the market, they say, because of several tests showing it causes malignant tumors in the bladders of animals.

The tests are as conclusive, scientists have told us, as the evidence linking cyclamates and cancer. Cyclamates have been banned from the market.

Americans consume about five million pounds of saccharin each year In diet drinks, ice cream and puddings. It is also widely used as coffee and tea sweeteners.

Yet the FDA has established from its own tests that a disturbing number of animals developed malignant bladder cancer after consuming saccharin. Other studies indicated that saccharin caused cancer of the uterus in female animals.

The FDA is supposed to protect the public from dangerous foods and drugs. Yet the agency won't issue warnings against saccharin until more tests have been conducted. These will take at least until 1978.

Our sources compare this attitude to the FDA's inaction on Red Dye No. 2, which the agency left on the market for 15 years despite evidence that it causes birth defects, genetic damage and cancer. The dye was finally banned this year.

The General Accounting Office, after a confidential investigation of its own, warned the FDA that the continued use of saccharin "could expose the public to unnecessary risk." Nevertheless, an FDA spokesman told our associate Howie Kurtz that no action will be taken against the sugar substitute until further tests are completed.

One possible reason was suggested by a top FDA official. He conceded that the huge commercial sales made the FDA reluctant to ban saccharin. In other words, the agency appears to be more concerned about corporate losses than the public health.

In the case of another artificial sweetener, called aspartane, test results allegedly were falsified and distorted to get it on the market. The FDA at first authorized aspartane to be sold to the public but withheld it from the market after the discrepancies were discovered.

Independent scientific tests showed that aspartane caused brain damage in animals. The manufacturer, G.D. Searle and Company, wants to use the sugar substitute in breakfast cereals, puddings, beverages, gelatins and chewing gum.

When some animals died in test experiments, Searle substituted the blood of other animals for the dead ones, investigators have alleged. There were also significant discrepancies between Searle's date and the summaries the conpany subnitted to the FDA, according to the government investigators. One pathologists's study, for exanple, was allegedly edited to make the findings appear more favorable.

The case against Searle is being referred to a grand jury for possible prosecution. A spokesman said the company strongly disagrees with charges that it altered its data but couldn't comment directly because the matter is under investigation.

FDA investigators discovered the alleged alterations by examining just a few of Searle's files. Yet the agency has now turned its investigation over to an independent group of scientists who, incredibly, will be paid by Searle.

Thus the alleged corporate culprit will finance the investigation of itself. "If you believe that Searle is going to pay all this money and not have some say in the results, you're kidding yourself," one angry FDA official told us.

An FDA spokesman insisted that the company would not interfere with an objective investigation. But Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D.-Wis.) would disagree. Allowing the drug companies to pay for the testing of its own products, he told us, leads to unreliable or biased results.

PIPELINE POSTSCRIPT: The Interior Department is investigating our report that the federal official overseeing the construction of the Alaska pipeline, Andrew Rollins, accepted favors from the Morrison-Knudsen construction conbine. The company is building a 135-mile segment of the pipeline.

Rollins requested the investigation himself after we asked him about the chartered plane rides, free fishing vacations and other favors he had accepted from Morrison-Knudsen.

We have now learned that the House subcommittee on Energy and Power, headed by Rep. John Dingell (D.-Mich.), encountered considerable flak when its investigators inspected the pipeline construction last summer.

They questioned federal inspectors about the pipeline. But the inspectors' superior in the Interior Department, Jack Turner, ordered then to write down all the questions they were asked and all the answers they gave. He demanded that these written reports be submitted to his office.

This had an "intimidating effect" on the federal inspectors, subcommittee sources complained.

In confidence, some inspectors informed the subcommittee that Turner has frustrated their efforts to make pipeline contractors comply with federal laws. For example, he rescinded the authority of the inspectors to halt the work if they found a contractor breaking the law.

Footnote: The outspoken Turner acknowledged that he required the inspectors to take notes on their interviews with subcommittee investigators. But he denied this was a form of intimidation and said he had supported the inspectors. "The Dingell staff," he grumped, "conducted thenselves in a very unprofessional and unethical manner."

Oh, for A Benevolent Despot

The farther I move into this experience we like to call life, the more I think we ought tc be governed by a benevolent despot.

The first time I heard that term I thought it meant a more comfortable railroad station. But the professor explained that despot meant "dictator" and benevolent meant "for the common welfare."

We tried other forms of government and found them lacking. Monarchy didn't work becuase each king became more and more fond of silks, satins, caviar, and prettier Antoinettes.

All of which takes money, so the king raised the taxes. Simple.

After a while the king became so accustomed to silks and satins that he couldn't stand to look at anyone except the nobility, and soon he couldn't tell the difference between his peasants and the hogs they were raising for slaughter. They all began to look so much alike.

When a neighboring king sneered at the family name, the king simply went to war to defend his honor and find out how bright his generals were. It was like a duel, except that instead of two individuals it was two nations, and other people did the fighting. Mostly the peasants, because, as I said, the king was unable to tell them apart and wouldn't miss them when they were gone.

And if the generals weren't too clever, the king could surrender whenever he saw fit, usually when the storehouse ran out of caviar, silks, or Antoinettes.

After surrendering, he was allowed to keep his throne, because the enemy king was his half-brother and didn't want to make him too uncomfortable. The victor's daughter was due to marry the loser's son the next year anyway, so he had to give the fellow a chance to raise his taxes again to buy some new threads for the wedding.

The curious thing is that monarchy as a form of government lasted a very long time. Longer than we have records, I think. But then in the 1700s some malcontents (who wanted to make a living while they worked) complained that they didn't have enough bread.

So Antoinette, instead of printing some more, said "Let them eat cake" (well, that's what they said she said). That frosted them miserably, and some of them declared independence while others went out and constructed a guillotine.

The 1700s were kind of tough on the nobility. Many survived, though. Even in World War I you could find some of them honorably cutting each other down.

Some peole tried democracy. In a land with unlimited resources democracy works fine, except for the native inhabitants, who have to be shifted around whenever their land becomes valuable. IF we didn't shift them around, they'd just live there and let the land alone. Well, we can't have that. If it weren't for oil wells and gold mines, no one would know how to drive a Cadillac. Or a Mercedes.

Actually the Greeks tried democracy way back in B.C. But it was a limited democracy because the lower classes and slaves were not allowed to participate.

The upper classes had the notion that they were able to think better than the others. They were right, in a sense. That's how they got to be the upper classes.

They figured out how to work less, which allowed them to think more. This enabled them to figure out how to work even less and take even more time with their thinking.

In our democracy it's different. Here the upper classes work themselves into early graves, while the lower classes are requested to work. They draw unemployment and welfare checks and think a lot.

That's an inaccurate statement. Actually, the leisure classes in our democracy are at the very top and the very bottom of the economic ladder. All the others in between work and tell you they wish they didn't have to.

The leisure classes, both top and bottom, are unhappy because they aren't working. But they regard each other with suspicion and never speak.

The others in between work continually, creating problems for everybody. They pollute the streams, land, and the air with their industry.

They spill crude oil into the oceans. They build and operate nuclear power plants before they know how to handle radioactivity. They dump poisonous wastes inot rivers. They build mountains of garbage and tear down natural mountains to get at coal and oil.

And that's why we need a benevolent despot. Can't you see hm sitting in WAshington, grandfatherly beyond his years, balancing inequities, each of his decrees beneficial for all mankind?

"Shipping oil in huge unwieldy tankers shall cease."

"You may build one nuclear power plant for experimental purposes and no more until further notice."

"You may not tear down the Rocky Mountains for oil-bearing shale."

"This factory shall be shut down until its effluent problems are solved."

"Yes, you may have an air conditioner. No, you, twenty-five and healthy, may not."

See how beneficial he could be? He could put things in their proper persepective, put greed and haste in check.

The problem is, benevolent despots are hard to find. There are plenty of candidates, but their resumés don't come up to snuff.

Every time I run into one, he's either wearing silks and satins or developing a better guillotine. And there goes my faith in him, Blooie!

To Expand Rome Mill

ROME, N.Y. (UPI) -- Revere Copper and Brass Inc. announced Tuesday that it will undertake a $5 million-plus expansion program in the spring at its copper and brass rolling mill here.

Charles R. Getty, group vice president, said the expanded facilities would create 80 jobs when in full operation. He said he hopes to have the new facilities "in production by early 1978."

The expansion will increase the mill's continuous casting capacity for copper and alloy cakes, including cupro-nickel, Getty said.

Campus Attitudes Are Undergoing Change

The Sixties haven't quite come to an end on the college campuses, where the late Mao Tse-tung, murderer of millions, is still acclaimed a hero by the radicals. At Princeton, they ran ads in the Daily Princetonian in the fall praising Chairman Mao and urging undergraduates to "live like him... dare to struggle... dare to win."

Regardless of lingering Maoism, however, it is no longer a straight-line movement to the Left in Academia. Despite "the campus disdain for football prowess at Princeton" (the quotation is from "Prospect," a publication put out by "concerned alumni"), the football players, seeking a return to glory, are now saying "to hell with the fans, we'll win this for ourselves." While this is a little more self-centered than winning it for Princeton, at least they aren't,trying to win it for Mao.

Meanwhile, at Harvard, the dean of the faculty of Arts and Sciences, Henry Rosovsky, has been busy with an overhaul of the liberal arts program to re-establish a structured curriculum, one that will reinstate the dread word "required" in certains parts of the catalogue. If all goes as Dean Rosovsky hopes, no student will be able to leave Harvard without an "informed acquaintance" with "the major religious and philosophical conceptions of man" and "some of the important scholarly, literary and artistic achievements of the past." Smorgasbord education which has allowed students to pick and choose their courses without reference to "a common basis for intellectual discourse" is on the way out.

True enough, there are cross-currents besetting the effort to make the student acquainted with "other cultures and other times." Though Dean Rosovsky argues quite convincingly that "it is no longer possible to conduct our lives without reference to the wider world," the proportion of students enrolling in modern languages has been steadily falling throughout the country. Alphonse Juilland, chairman of the Department of French and Italian at Stanford, says the problem will get worse in the next few years. With a sharp jibe at his own institution he says, "Disparagement of foreign language study by Stanford and other universities has played a decisive role in reducing foreign language study at the secondary level... if universities like ours do not care for foreign languages, high schools most certainly will not, either."

One senses that the coming battle on the campuses will center less on traditional Left-Right political confrontations and more on the Isolationist-Internationalist issue. The isolationist has no need for German or French. Spanish, maybe, if he lives in those sections of the country where the word "Hispanic" has its own minority connotations.

There was a time, before the development of the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile and the long-range bomber, when Isolationism represented a serious political response. But with Soviet nuclear submarines infesting the "Atlantic moat" and Cuban mercenaries dominating Angola where the building of a Soviet naval base is imminent, Isolationism is no longer realistically tenable. It is this insight that gives Eisenhower College in the little upstate community of Seneca Falls, New York, a special appeal. There was no "general education" at the West Point of Eisenhower's undergraduate days, but Ike's experience in World War II and as President of the U.S. convinced him of the need for at least one college that would make World Studies the meat and potatoes of its general curriculum.

The Eisenhower World Studies program offers a four-year overview of cultures both East and West that becomes paradoxically intensive in its attention to detail, beginning with ancient times and ending not only with modernity but with "future realities and Utopia." Along with the general education in the origins of peoples and cultures and their emergence into the modern world, the Eisenhower curriculum insists on a "concentration" that is something more intensive than a standard major. And a requirement in a "lifetime activities program" in the field of physical education must be met.

Alas for hopes of perfection, Eisenhower College offers foreign languages as "an opporunity rather than a requirement." This concession to permissiveness strikes one as a little odd in a college based on a "world oriented curriculum."

The Woman of The Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the transition period is nearly over, President-elect Jimmy Carter is still looking around for qualified women to fill jobs in his administration.

If I were on his transition team, I would recommend that a high level position be given to Elaine Edwards, wife of the governor of Louisiana.

A few weeks ago, you'll recall, it was reported that Mrs. Edwards received a $10,000 gift from a South Korean businessman in 1971 when her husband was a member of Congress.

Her husband, however, said he didn't know anything about it until the Internal Revenue Service began investigating his income tax returns in 1974.

I suppose the first question that sprang into everyone's mind was: how did she keep him uninformed?

Seems unlikely she would have pinned an envelope containing 10 grand inside her bra. Unless it was a $10,000 bill, or two $5,000 notes, her husband surely would have noticed she had suddenly become more convex.

However she did it, anyone, male or female, who is or ever has been married surely will agree this was a supreme triumph of spousemanship.

At some point during a marriage, nearly everyone comes into possession of a little extra cash. Maybe he or she wins the office football pool. Maybe there is a sudden increase in the egg money. Whatever.

Anyway, the spouse in the chips may try, or at least be tempted to try, to keep the other marital partner in the dark with respect thereto.

Usually, it is not necessarily a question of concealing the windfall. It is more a matter of not revealing it.

The difference between concealing something and not revealing it may be a subtle distinction, but that is the stuff of which marriages are made or broken.

And it is also the stuff that is the very essence of government.

Morever, the reason for non-disclosure may be entirely honorable. That's not saying the motive would stand up under cross-examination. But in the mind of the withholder, it could be a case of justifiable non-revelation.

Ethical or not, anyone who has been through the experience is well aware that almost inevitably, in one way or another, one's spouse gets wind of the windfall. Usually within 24 hours or less.

"The bank will be happy to approve our loan as soon as we can prove we really don't need it."

Nuke Foes: 'We're Willing To Put Our Bodies On The Line'

While most of the plant's output would go to the Metropolitan Transit Authority, chiefly to run New York City subways, some power would go into a statewide network that would include 100,000 kilowatts for Columbia and Greene County, NYSPA said.

Opponents argued that NYSPA's first statements at prehearing conferences in September said all the power would go to the MTA, and they wondered why the potential market had been changed.

Another metropolitan utility, Consolidated Edison, recently announced it would study sites in Ulster and Dutchess Counties for as many as four nuclear plants to serve downstate needs.

The fact that these plants are planned for distant rural areas instead of congested areas they will serve could be an admission of safety hazards and potential loss of lives, opponents argued.

"Why is the plant being built way out in the country?" asked Joy J. MacNulty of Woodstock, who said utility and labor claims of nuclear safety "can't be believed."

The youngest witness was her son, nine-year-old Bill MacNulty, who likened the hearing to a boxing match where he planned to "bet my last dime" on the opponents.

The noisiest moment in an otherwise orderly session came when Edward Van Acker of the Albany-area plumbers and steamfitters union likened the reaction of nuclear opponents to "the hysteria of savages witnessing a solar eclipse."

His remarks then were drowned out by stamping from the audience, which at times reached an estimated 500 persons as the crowd milled in and out of the college gymnasium.

Among Ulster County witnesses were:

• Jane Van DeBogart, Woodstock Town Council member, who said sabotage or "inevitable" human error with nuclear wastes would be a danger for hundreds of thousands of years, while the plant itself would be useful only 30 or 40 years.

Woodstock and more than a dozen other area communities, as well as four county legislatures, have passed resolutions calling at least for a moratorium on nuclear power.

• Joseph M. Roglieri of Kingston, president of the four-county Building and Trades Council, who said his six years of independent study have convinced him that nuclear power is "the safest, cheapest form of energy we have today."

• William E. Fischang of Saugerties, who supported nuclear power as the only means to reducing the nation's reliance on foreign oil.

• Jean Smalldon of Kingston, who called for energy conservation instead of nuclear power, for which uranium supplies are as subject to international embargo as oil, she said.

• Jack Walter of Saugerties, head of Irate Consumers of Ulster County, who charged that all the utilities are exaggerating their need for increased generating capacity.

• Fred Steuding of Kingston, who feared nuclear power means "hopeless contamination" in future generations.

• Saugerties poet Aleda Schoonmaker, who read one of her works warning that "the sea is dying, the earth will be ashes."

• Joseph R. Bundy of Kingston, an engineering teacher who blamed the opponents for economic recession and said residents near nuclear plants elsewhere in the country have no qualms about safety.

The joint hearings will continue Monday in Albany, where the federal and state agencies will decide on witnesses and data to be examined on technical issues.

Another Tanker Accident

By UPI

In the sixth Liberian-flag tanker accident in or near U.S. waters since mid-December, the 824-foot ship Universe Leader ran aground in the Delaware River Tuesday night. No spillage of the tanker's 21 million gallon oil cargo was reported.

A barge pumped oil from the Universe Leader today in an effort to lighten the load and get the vessel afloat once again.

The accident occurred off Salem, N.J., about 20 miles down river from Marcus Hook, Pa., where another Liberian-registered tanker, the Olympic Games, ran aground Dec. 27 and spilled 133,500 gallons of oil.

A Coast Guard spokeswoman said the Universe Leader became stuck in mud about one mile southeast of the entrance to the Chesapeake-Delaware Canal, en route to a Gulf Oil Co. refinery near Chester, Pa.

She said the Universe Leader ran aground while avoiding a collision with another tanker, the Texaco California, which was heading down the river.

"The grounding resulted from a meeting situation in the channel," the spokeswoman said. The weather was clear at the time.

The ship was carrying 21 million gallons of crude oil from Nigeria, the Coast Guard said.

The accident was the sixth in three weeks involving tankers registered under a Liberian "flag of convenience." The first was on Dec. 15, when the Argo Merchant ran aground off Nantucket Island, Mass., leading to a 7.6 million gallon oil spill called the worst ever on the Atlantic coast.

The Sansinsena exploded two days later in Los Angeles harbor, killing nine men and injuring more than 50. The Oswego Peace spilled 2,000 gallons of oil in Connecticut's Thames River on Dec. 24. The Daphne ran aground in Guauanilla Bay, Puerto Rico, Dec. 29 but was refloated without a spill.

In the spookiest tanker episode, a Panamian-registered ship, the Grand Zenith, carrying a Chinese crew of 38 and 8.2 million gallons of oil, has been missing for six days in the North Atlantic.

The Liberian-flag tanker accidents have sparked high-level governmental investigations into the overall question of their safety. Proceedings are also underway in the Argo Merchant and Olympic Games mishaps.

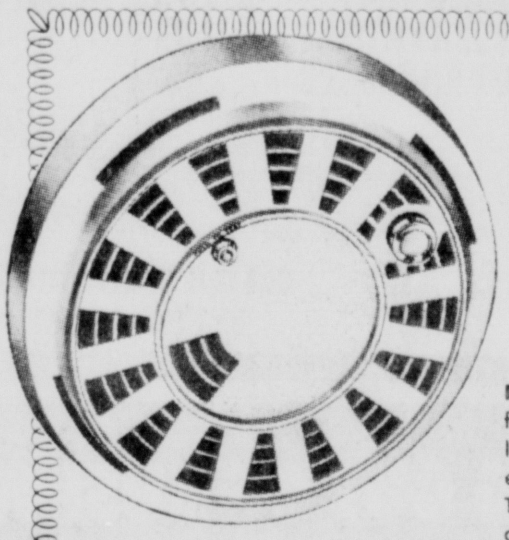

IBM In Cabinet

NEWTON, Mass.(UPI) — The 20-member board of directors of IBM will furnish three of President-elect Jimmy Carter's cabinet members, the trade paper Computerworld reported in this week's edition.

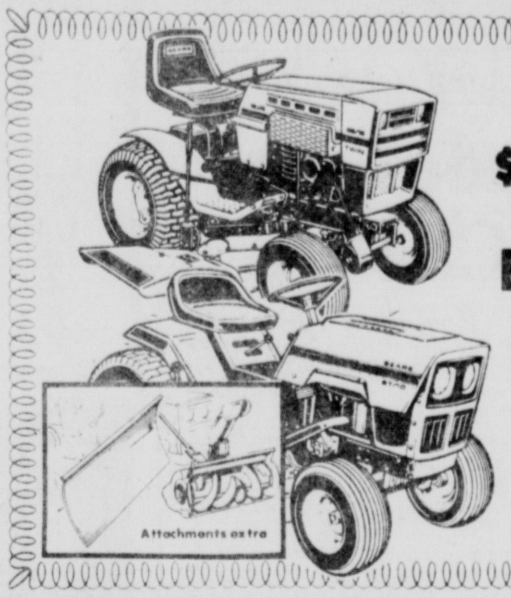

The weekly newspaper, which publishes U.S., European and Asian editions, said Harold Brown, chosen as secretary of defense, has been an IBM director since 1972; Patricia Roberts Harris, chosen as secretary of Housing and Urban Development, has been an IBM director since 1971; and Cyrus Vance, chosen as secretary of state, has been an IBM director since 1969.

Computerworld also said Carter's choice for attorney general, Griffin B. Bell, is a partner in the law firm of King and Spalding, which often represents IBM in the Atlanta area. As head of the Justice Department, Bell would be in charge of prosecuting the government's eight-year-old antitrust suit against IBM.

Money Doctors Growing

NEW YORK (UPI) — You still can't look up a money doctor under that title in the Yellow Pages, but the profession is growing — and attracting young people to its ranks.

Even though it's about a decade since the term first came into use, and it is widely known in business circles, you generally hear about a money doctor from one of his "patients." In the phone book, he's likely listed as a financial counselor, a securities dealer or a life insurance agent.

For the uninitiated, a money doctor is a skilled generalist who handles all his clients' money problems the way a medical general practitioner looks after the family's health.

"The number of money doctors keeps increasing," says Terence Herzog, partner in Elms Capital Management, a corporation, which advises 32 clients with fortunes totaling $250 million and manages directly portfolios of about $8 million.

The other partner is Bruce Lipnick, who founded Elms. It's a curious linking of two externally dissimilar young men from Brooklyn.

Lipnick has a couple of university degrees and formerly was a teacher. Herzog is a high school dropout who enlisted in the Navy at 17 and spent some adventurous shipboard months in the Antarctic in the Navy's "Operation Deepfreeze." Later he worked in Wall Street, first for a cocoa bean broker, then for 10 years as a securities salesman.

"We met on the subway quite by accident, discovered we had similar ideas and decided to go into business together," Herzog said.

"We began with one client who paid us $1,000 a year to manage a $50,000 portfolio," said Lipnick. "We first tried advising small institutional clients and ended up doing a lot of work for little money before we realized it is the rich individual who really needs a money doctor."

The first money doctors were men with long and wide experience who depended for compensation strictly on the fees and commissions they earned by handling stock and bond trades and tax matters for clients.

Herzog and Lipnick, however, operate strictly on professional fees unrelated to individual transactions.

Super-Savings Plans

Greyhound Cuts the Traveling Costs

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—How does a ticket costing not more than $50 to anywhere in the U.S. sound?

If you like that, how about $99 for nine days-of unlimited travel? Well, now it's possible.

Greyound Lines have announced three new super-savings plans to make bus travel the best buy around.

1.—A $50, one-way ticket to anywhere in the U.S. served by Greyhound.

2.— A $33, three-day round-trip excursion.

3.—A $99, 9-day Ameripass for unlimited travel over Greyhound's routes throughout the U.S. and Canada.

The three super-savings plans went into effect Jan. 3 and will be good through March 32 31.

In addition, all three plans will offer a Greyhound bonus...that one child under 12 can travel free for each adult fare purchased.

The $50 one-way ticket to anywhere in the U.S. means precisely that, according to Charles D. Kirkpatrick, vice president-marketing who said " Greyhound serves just about every point in the U.S., coast-to-coast and border-to-border."

The ticket is good for two months and permits free stopovers en route so long as travel is out of state and is maintained on the most direct route between origin and destination.

Typical of the savings: Miami to Seattle, $50 on Greyhound compared with $220 by air coach and $188 by Amtrak. Boston to San Diego, $50 on Greyhound compared with $211 by air coach and $200 by Amtrak. New York to Los Angeles, $50 on Greyhound compared with $202 by air coach and $173 by Amtrak.

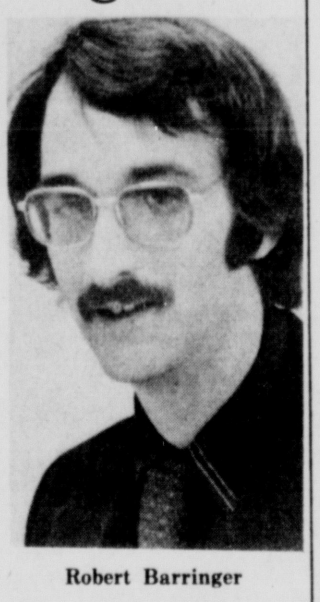

The $33, three-day round-trip excursion is the perfect cost-conscious travel solution for long weekends and other short, out-of-state trips. The plan provides that all travel must be completed within three calendar days. It's Greyhound answer to the ski weekend, the winter carnival, the get-away-from-it-all "Great Escapes" weekend.

The $99, nine-day Ameripass permits unlimited travel over the more than 100,000 miles of Greyhound routes throughout the U.S. and Canada. Leisurely, unlimited stopovers are permitted and the Ameripass comes with a host of discounts on hotels, sightseeing and meals.

In addition to the new Ameripass, Greyhound still offers its full range of Ameripass tickets: 15 days for $165, one month for $225 and two months for $325. S&L to Review Rejected Bids for Homes

SCARSDALE—Adoption of a review plan enabling home buyers to gain reconsideration of rejected mortgage applications has been announced by the Savings Association League of New York State.

The League is a 127-member trade group representing state-chartered and federally-chartered savings and loans throughout the state. Assets of the Scarsdale-based association's members total $19 billion.

Purpose of the review plan, according to League president Paul A. Schosbering, is "to encourage home ownership in all areas of New York State and to afford equal access to either conventional or government-backed mortage financing by savings and loan associations to all prospective home buyers who meet the following criteria:

1. —Proof of adequate financial ability and credit background.

2. —Purchase at fair market value of one or two-family owner-occupied dwellings in sound condition .

3. —Transaction documented by an accepted offer to purchase.

Every applicant filing a formal loan application to finance the purchase of a home in New York State with an association participating in the review program will be notified of the opportunity for review by a notice given at the time the loan application is rejected. Borrowers feeling that they meet the program's criteria may contact the League office to request review of the lender's decision by the appropriate regional review committee. The request for review must be made in writing within 10 days of the date of the initial loan decision.

Accused of Air Piracy

Crotians Go on Trial Upstate

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A federal grand jury in Buffalo begins hearing evidence today in the case of five Croatian nationals accused of hijacking a TWA airliner that was en route from New York City to Chicago last September.

U.S. District Court Judge John R. Bartels dismissed air piracy charges in Brooklyn last month against the five who forced the pilot to fly the plane to Paris because the actual hijacking took place over Western New York.

U.S. Attorney Richard Arcaro said Bartels "found no venue in New York's Eastern District (Brooklyn) as to the air piracy counts, so we're alleging that in view of that decision the jurisdiction would be here."

Bartels indicated in his decision that he agreed with the government that there were strong policy considerations in favor of the government's argument that the case should be tried in Brooklyn.

"Unfortunately," he said, "Congress did not so provide."

After Bartels' decision, U.S. Attorney David Trager, who was handling the case in Brooklyn, filed an 18-page brief with the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals charging that the Croatians were "judge shopping" by trying to get the case moved to Buffalo.

He also said the air piracy law says a crime can be prosecuted either in the district in which it is committed or in the district where it began. But he noted that Bartels accepted the arguments of the defendants that a crime has not begun so long as the defendants have a chance to change their minds.

Despite the appeal, Arcaro said the government decided to attempt to reinstitute the charges here because of a new law that require cases to be tried in six months, or defendants are to be freed without bail.

"I would expect that this case would move quite rapidly once the grand jury decides because of the speedy trial questions," Arcaro said. But he added, "We don't feel we want to limit the scope of the grand jury investigation."

Arcaro said he expects that the grand jury probe "will last a few weeks."

The defendants also face murder charges in New York City in connection with the death of police officer Brian Murray, who was killed trying to defuse a bomb they allegedly left behind in Grand Central Station.

Authorities said the device was left in a subway parcel locker by the defendants before they boarded the flight.

They are charged with commandeering the TWA flight with 92 passengers aboard last Sept. 10. After refueling stops in Montreal and Iceland, the plane flew to Paris where the suspects were arrested.

Israeli Press Is Blamed for Suicide

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A son of Housing Minister Avraham Ofer has accused the Israeli press of driving his father to suicide, and a leading newspaper suggested the investigation of the dead man's affairs be "reconsidered."

Ofer's funeral was scheduled for today in the regular section of the Kiryat Shaul cemetery near Tel Aviv despite a Jewish rule that suicides be buried apart from other people. The government announced the site following consultations with the chief rabbinate of Israel.

The 54-year-old minister, who shot himself in the head on a car parked along an isolated beach, was under investigation on charges of mishandling funds of Shikun Ovdim, the Labor movement's housing company.

Before his death, he had demanded a clear statement of the charges against him, but complained he received only repeated promises of answers with "a few days."

"You journalists killed him," one of Ofer's sons shouted at reporters who came to the family home.

In an editorial, the prestigious English language Jerusalem Post questioned the manner in which the investigation had been conducted.

"Ofer's suicide cannot be considered simply in terms of a personal tragedy," the Post said.

"The investigation which prompted it will have to be reconsidered, not simply in terms of his death, but also in the light of his final protestation of innocence and his confidence that the truth will redeem him."

The Post and other newspapers called for investigators to issue a full report on their probe.

In a related development, Asher Yadlin, onetime director of the Labor movement's sick fund who was recently jailed on suspicion of bribery and fraud, was hospitalized with an apparent gall bladder attack.

Ofer was one of the "doves" in the Israeli cabinet and a long-time ally of Prime Minister Rabin, who resigned two weeks ago but remains in office in a caretaker capacity until he can form a new government or new elections are called.

All interested must file their application by Jan. 17.

Raffaldi Is Elected

WEST HURLEY — Former West Hurley Fire Chief Frank Raffaldi was recently elected to fill a vacancy on the West Hurley Board of Fire Commissioners.

Seals Campaign Progresses

KINGSTON — Carrying the responsibility for the success of the 1976 Christmas Seal Campaign locally is the American Lung Association, Hudson Valley, Inc. The campaign has now passed its half-way mark and its Ulster County chairman, Rose Marie Feeney, R.N., Kingston, noted that it is appropriate during this holiday season to respond to the appeal with a contribution.

"It's not too late to use Christmas Seals and contribute," she said, reminding Ulster County residents the Lung Association is a not-for-profit voluntary health agency with the major goal of preventing and controlling all forms of lung disease, including emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma, lung cancer, and tuberculosis.

"It's one way any one individual can help stem the tide of harmful cigarette smoking, ease the pain of those suffering lung ailments, wage war against the community's air pollution, and finance research vitally needed to uncover still newer ways of helping lung patients," she said. She urged all those who have not done so already to contribute to the Christmas Seal campaign now underway.

Contributions may be sent to the Association's computer headquarters at White Plains. All donations by Ulster County residents will be returned to the Kingston office for use in this area. Further information is also available locally by writing or phoning the Kingston office, 124 Green Street.

Raquel Returns To Ron

BY ROBIN A. SLOAN

Q: You mentioned Johnny Carson's ex-wife recently and I wondered what kind of alimony she gets from Johnny. - D.L., Miami.

A: Well, when told that her ex might quit "The Tonight Show" and run for public office, Joanne asked: "What will happen to my $100,000 a year if he does that?"

Q: What's new with Raquel Welch's love life these days - is she still involved with some Rio playboy? - L.L., New Haven, Conn.

A: Raquel's Latin lover lasted about as long as any season in the sun. Nowadays, she's back with old flame, dress designer Ron Talsky, but Raquel admits she's so busy concentrating on her career she doesn't have that much time for any man in her life. Alas, her career hasn't been exactly busting lately and the last genuine sex goddess of the movies has had to content herself with TV guest spots on variety shows and her nightclub tours on the summer stock circuit. No big film roles are being offered to her at the moment.

Q: Lee Grant is always on TV talk shows explaining how much she wants to direct movies. Will she ever get the chance? - O.L., Trenton, N.J.

A: No one is more determined than Lee and she's already completed a short for the American Film Institute based on an Ibsen one-act play, starring Susan Strasberg. The advance word is that the $20,000 film is so good, actress Grant will soon be known as director Grant and be offered a major film.

Gossip Beat

Q: I read in a gossip newspaper that Ethel Kennedy is going around with Gene Kelly. Is this really true? - P.S., Brooklyn.

A: No it isn't. What happened was the big Hollywood agent, Irving Lazar, gave a dinner for Ethel when she was in Los Angeles. Lazar asked Kelly to escort her. That's the total relationship - one dinner.

Q: What's happened with Debbie Reynold's daughter's attempt to become a big movie star? - S.M., Minneapolis.

A: Carrie Fisher has a major role in a new science fiction epic called "Star Wars," made in England last year by George Lucas, who gave us "American Graffiti." Debbie's still smarting over Carrie's bit role in "Shampoo," and that rough language she used, but Carrie is independent and listens to older friends, like actress Joan Hackett, more than she listens to her famous mom.

Q: I keep reading conflicting reports about the long-standing love affair between Cybill Shepherd and director Peter Bogdanovich - is it off or on? - E.L., Scottsdale,Ariz.

A: It's been off and on several times but right nowit is hot, which is more than can be said for Bogdanovich's career as a director. His latest, "Nickelodeon," will not be the comeback smash he needed after the flops of "Daisy Miller" and "At Long Last Love." So he and Cybill have decided to leave Hollywood and move back to Peter's hometown, New York City, from where he'll act as executive producer for a film or two for another director, and maybe even renew his own frustrated, unsuccessful acting career. Cybill, meanwhile, will still be looking for good roles for herself while indulging her intellectual pursuits with classes at New York University or Columbia University. Peter and Cybill also have come to the conclusion that their Svengali-Trilby image was bad for both careers and from now on, they'll not work together - at least not for some time to come.

Q: Now that David Niven has found himself a whole new career as a successful writer is he thinking about giving up acting? - A.S., Raleigh, N.C.

A: Niven won't abandon movies if he can help it. As he says, "Actors never retire, they just get offered fewer and fewer parts."

Soviet Union Reports Record Grain Harvest for Past Year

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced today a record harvest of 223.8 million tons of grain for 1976.

Soviet Agriculture Minister Mesyats told a news conference that 1976 was a difficult year because of the disastrous grain crop of the previous year.

"But we had a good crop, 223.8 (metric) million tons of grain, for 1976," Mesyats said.

The previous record Soviet grain crop was set in 1973 when a total of 222.5 million metric tons were harvested.

Asked about prospects for 1977, the Soviet agriculture minister said, "There won't be any catastrophes because we have a good material base. Everything will be all right."

The agriculture minister said the Soviet Union had stockpiled enough grain to meet its needs for 1977 but would keep its agreement to purchase a minimum of six million tons of wheat and corn annually from the United States for the next four years.

"We have laid in stock enough grain to satisfy all of our needs," Mesyats said. "However, what has been foreseen by the agreement — we'll take it all."

The drought-ravaged 1975 grain crop totaled only about 138 million metric tons and forced the Soviets to purchase some 14.5 million metric tons of grain from the United States.

During 1976, the Soviets bought approximately 6.6 million metric tons of grain from the U.S.

Mesyats also said the Soviet Union harvested 80 million metric tons of potatoes last year, falling far short of the target of 100 million metric tons due to frost damage.

He said the sugar beet harvest totaled 85 million metric tons.

Views Shake Claudine

UPI photo

Claudine bundles up on Aspen street.

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Singer Claudine Longet visibly tensed at statements by prospective jurors who described a souring love affair between the French-born entertainer and pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

"I think she probably did it," said Jonathan Gardner, a bearded restaurant worker. "It seems like it has already been determined for a lot of people and I have been influenced by the media and the talk going around."

Miss Longet, wearing a full-length rabbit coat and flanked by her attorneys in the chilly courtroom, glared at Gardner and became increasingly solemn as several jurors indicated they believed she was guilty of felony manslaughter.

She faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $30,000 fine if convicted of the manslaughter charge in the shooting of Sabich last March 21 at the mountain chalet they shared in Aspen.

Gardner, a long-time admirer of Sabich who frequently watched the former World Pro Cup winner practice on the nearby slopes, was given preliminary seating after the prosecution and defense were assured he could be impartial.

Ski patrolman John Erstpalmer, questioned next, said he had asked Sabich two weeks before the skier's death to judge a contest where "the girls take off their clothes and we give them money or skis or bindings."

He quoted Sabich as refusing the invitation by saying: "No, I would have to get a divorce to come to the party." To the suggestion that he bring Miss Longet, Erstpalmer said Sabich replied: "No, I wouldn't have any fun."

Miss Longet reacted to the comments with a look of surprise and a glance away from the audience. Sabich, who had shared his luxury home with the singer and her three children from her marriage to singer Andy Williams, had reportedly asked Miss Longet to move out by April.

Carla Stroh, who was questioned after a juror had been removed Tuesday on a peremptory challenge from the prosecution, said she had met the couple 10 days before Sabich's death at a party given for the French ski team at her mother's home in Aspen.

"There was not a great deal of communication between them," said Mrs. Stroh. "He (Sabich) came about half an hour earlier because she (Miss Longet) had to feed her children. The French girls were taking up his time when she arrived."

Fourteen prospective jurors have been chosen so far.

Sawyers Knew They Wouldn't Fold

Colavita Becomes a Believer

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

SAUGERTIES—When Saugerties High School failed to win a single Dutchess County Scholastic League basketball game in the 1975-76 season, Sawyer fans had little to cheer about. So they made up for it Tuesday night in one glorious burst as Saugerties surprised Poughkeepsie, 80-71, in the league debut for both squads.

"I don't remember the last time we beat Poughkeepsie," said a happy Fred Seither, long-time athletic director. "I think it was during the 1970-71 season." It was.

In defeating the Pioneers, the Sawyers served notice upon the rest of the league that they are not to be taken for granted any longer. They raised their overall record to 3-2 and dropped Poughkeepsie to 1-3 overall by blowing the Pioneers out in the opening quarter, then tenaciously hanging on in the second half as Poughkeepsie mounted a furious comeback.

First-year coach Dick Colavita was pleased with the way his team refused to fold in the clutch. "We had the big lead, it shrunk to three points, we got rattled a little, but these kids came back," he said. "They showed poise at the end, hit those two backdoor layups when we needed them. I'm happy.

"My guys were convinced they were going to win," Colavita added. "They told me, 'Don't worry coach. We're not going to fold. We're going to win.' I believe 'em!"

SPORTS TODAY

The Sawyers thrilled their long-suffering fans with an awesome first quarter in which they outplayed Poughkeepsie in every phase of the game. The Saugerties man to man pressing defense shut down the Pioneers, whose few shots were bad selections. Saugerties also controlled the boards and the Pioneers got themselves in early foul trouble as Saugerties led, 28-14, after the opening quarter.

Senior forward Jim Hackett, who got 12 of his game-leading 32 points in the first quarter and had 20 by the half, led the way. There was one incredible 49-second stretch in which Saugerties rammed in 10 points to build its lead up to 22-8. Hackett had a steal, field goal and free throw, Tim Cole contributed five points and center Marc Becker, making his first start of the season, hit a bucket. Jim Hitchcock also had a theft, and three steals followed by three buckets happened within 22 seconds.

Poughkeepsie calmed things down in the second quarter, outscoring the Sawyers, 17-15, to trail 43-31 at halftime. The Pioneers scored 10 of the final 12 points of the quarter as they started quietly creeping back.

Poughkeepsie used a pressing defense and excellent outside shooting, particularly by Lance Dawkins and Vin Lowndes, to draw within three, 59-56, with 26 seconds left in the third quarter. But failure to hit free throws cost it a chance to get even closer, and the Sawyers led by five entering the final quarter.

Hackett, who sank 14 of 16 free throws, hit six of seven from the charity stripe in the fourth quarter to help Saugerties slowly pad its lead to as much as 11 points with 3:50 remaining. But the Pioneers, who were cold in the middle of the quarter, hit some more clutch outside shots and drew within four, 75-71, with 1:10 left.

Kevin Chiarot hit three free throws and Chris Swech added two to wind up the game for Saugerties.

Poughkeepsie shot an awful 36 per cent (31 for 87) from the field and also did poorly in free throws, sinking nine of 21. The Sawyers shot 46 per cent (27 for 58) and hit on 26 of 39 freebies. The Pioneers won the battle of the boards, 60-50.

"There might be a happier guysomewhere tonight," summed up Colavita,"but I don't know where."

Poughkeepsie won the junior varsity contest, 83-39.

Ketcham Deals KHS An Unpleasant Shock

WAPPINGERS FALLS — Kingston High wasn't expecting the DCSL basketball race to be easy, but the Tigers were a little surprised to learn Tuesday night that things might be even more difficult than they anticipated.

Ketcham, not a team rated among the serious contenders in the preseason, stung KHS with a 64-47 setback here as league action opened.

"We just couldn't do anything right," stated KHS coach Mike Rienzo. "They're big, and that (Tony) Larsen killed us. We couldn't handle him, and we couldn't get any points."

Ketcham took control of the contest from the outset, and the Tigers, shooting 38 percent from the field, never made a strong challenge. Larsen, a muscular, 6-2 shooter, dumped in 27 points to keep his Indians rolling on the momentum.

Kingston figured to have offensive problems from time to time anyway this year, but in this game everything seemed to be wrong. For one thing Jay Foust, the forward counted on to carry KHS along the inside track, was sick and missed the contest.

"I have no idea how long he'll be out," said Rienzo. "Two games, the whole season...I don't know. He's got German measles or something."

And for another thing Ketcham recognized that the other main threat to their hopes was Daryl Mills. RCK reacted with a box-and-one that checked the little Tiger guard to a lone field goal for the night.

"Daryl got two points. In the first two games we had he averaged 19. Maybe 15 points or so there might have made a difference," said Rienzo.

Beyond that there just wasn't enough KHS power to turn things around. Ron Mapes' 12 markers was a team high. Next down the line was Larry Walkowski with nine.

Kingston was down by six at the first quarter mark and down by six more at the half. The losers picked up a bit of ground in the third period at the Indians managed only ten points, but that was hardly a comeback. Ketcham took control again in the fourth quarter.

"It wasn't too encouraging," Rienzo said. "I was wondering how we'd do after that long layoff—now I don't have to wonder anymore. Even the jayvee's got clobbered."

Ketcham took the JV contest, 70-55.

Raiders Put Running to a Purpose

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Webster drew a distinction between hustle and bustle. So did Coleman High and visiting Red Hook during their UCAL basketball confrontation Tuesday night.

Both teams did a lot of running up and down the court, but it was the Raiders who put it to a purpose as they walked (ran?) off with an 84-70 victory to inch within a half game of first place in Division II.

They ran like jackrabbits for about half the first quarter— everybody did. With the score something like 4-4, Red Hook coach Rod Chando had seen enough. He called time out.

"You stink," he told his sweating troops. They didn't argue.

Thus chastised, the Raiders returned to the fray with eyes a little sharper, passes a little better. They pulled out to a lead that reached ten points early in the second quarter. Coleman was never able to do anything about it.

When the game ended about 8,000 miles later, Statesman coach Vince Bitonte looked like he didn't believe it.

"How do you shoot 46 percent and lose?" he wanted to know. "They beat us down court. That's it—that's the quote for the week." But he looked like he didn't believe it.

For most of the game Red Hook's running was hustle. The Raiders hit the boards well and looked for a fast break. They never had an uncontested layup, but they often had a couple of trailers on the play that turned things into a three-on-one situation.

Coleman, meanwhile, sometimes ran too fast. Thirty turnovers isn't an encouraging statistic to live with, especiall when about half of them are just wild passes that sail untouched into the bleachers.

"Thirty turnovers," said Bitonte. "Back to the drawing board."

Red Hook had another item going for it, depth, and Chando put it to use. He shuffled everybody into the action, and that kept everybody at top speed. It also enabled him to uncover the stars of the night—like Dennis Porter.

"Porter really helped us through the bad spots," said Chando. "He normally doesn't start, and he doesn't do that well against a zone, but against a man-to-man like Coleman's he can do it."

What Porter did was handle the ball well and pump in 16 points. He hit five straight shots from the field in the third period, and if he hadn't Coleman would have scrapped back in the contest at that point.

Matt Kurdziel, the high man with 19 points, Mark Gravino and Bob Mergendahl were Red Hook's other mainstays. Gravino, nursing a sore ankle, helped the Raiders early. Mergendahl, the 6-4 junior, did a lot of rebounding and defense.

The Statesmen couldn't get enough men into the attack. Four players got all but four of the points, and that disappointed Bitonte. Joe Augustine and Bill Robertson had 19 each, Dave Engel hit for 15, and Charlie McDonough canned 13. That wasn't enough.

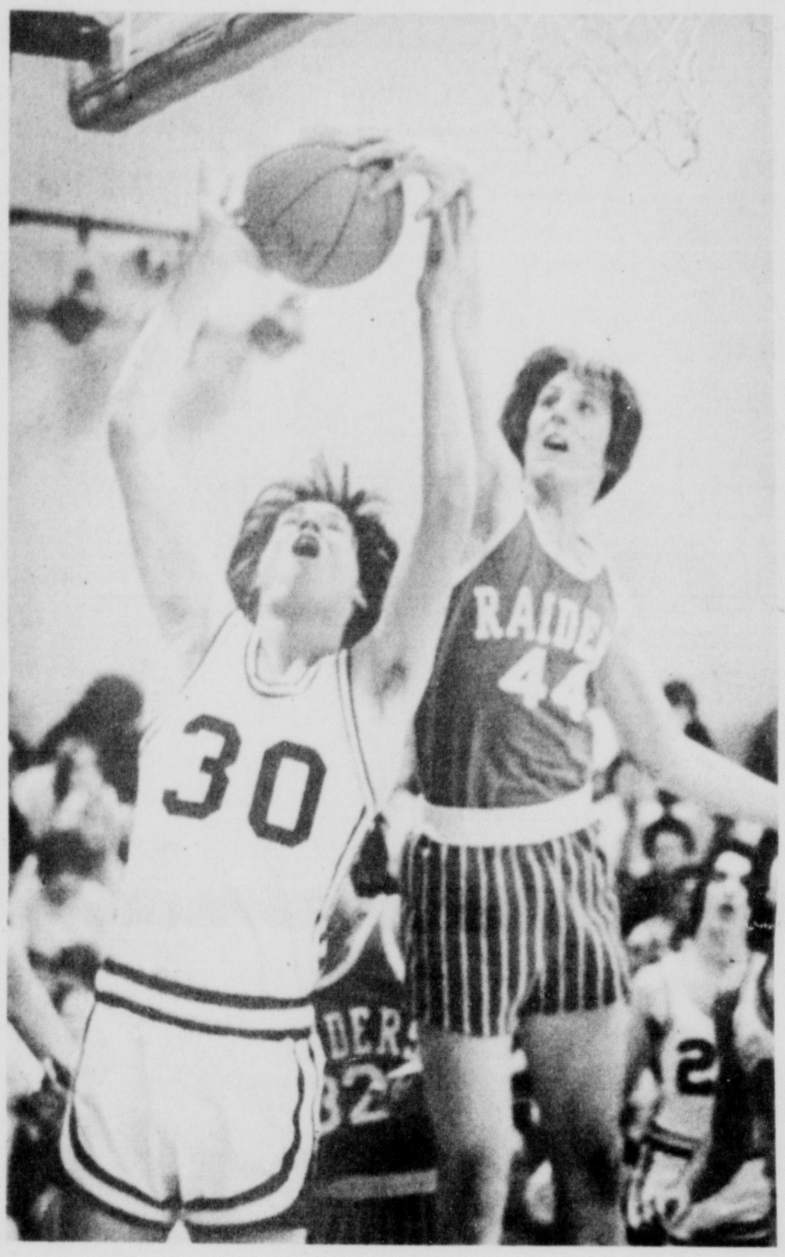

The height disadvantage Coleman is accustomed to didn't bother the Statesmen as much as it has on other occasions. It was a factor all right. Red Hook took a lot of defensive rebounds on the first shot and canned more than one follow, but Coleman hit its season high off the boards. There were just too many mistakes to offset it.

Chando was pleased, "to win one here." But he looked at the final score and tempered it a bit.

"I don't like to give up 70 points. But we're not a bad team. We hustle."

Red Hook won the JV game.

Dukes Survive UCAL's First Big Test

KINGSTON — In what was possibly a preview of the UCAL championship game, divisional leaders Pine Bush and Marlboro Highs clashed Tuesday night to highlight a full schedule of basketball action. A cold start by the Bushmen helped the Dukes pull away to a 57-48 decision as they maintained their half game lead over Fallsburgh and Liberty in Division I.

In other results, Fallsburgh clipped Wallkill, 68-53, Liberty bested Onteora, 64-52, Highland topped New Paltz, 83-52, and Rondout bounced Ellenville, 80-62.

Some atrocious shooting by Pine Bush, along with the performance of first-time starter Chris Lyons of Marlboro, paved the way to the Marlboro victory. The losers made just six of 27 shots from the field in the first half, and with that kind of help Marlboro pulled away to a 29-15 lead.

"Well, I got a better impression of my team," said a not too disappointed Bushman coach Bill Stevens. "We shot horribly our scoring was the big difference in the game, but I think we outplayed them the second half. I just don't like coming back."

Coming back against Marlboro is not the easiest thing to do, as the Bushmen discovered. Lyons, starting in place of Terry Monroe, came through with 14 points to lead the winners. That was especially appreciated since Anthony Monroe and Rich Carlson, normally the Dukes' top point getters, had just 11 and ten points respectively.

Steve Low had 22 for the losers and helped Pine Bush get as close as four points in the second half, but the Bushmen missed a couple of one-and-one situations that could have made things tighter.

Liberty kept pace, picking up its second win in as many starts, but the invaders from Onteora did not fall easily.

"We were lucky," said Liberty coach Floyd Emery. "Onteor had a good ballclub, and they played well against us.

OCS battled back in the second period to force a halftime tie before Liberty shook loose in the second half. Milt Martin with 23 points powered the win.

"We're really not the club people think we are," Emery said."Onteora, especially its guards, did a good job."

Steve Ross led Onteora with 14 points.

Fallsburgh likewise improved to 2-0, but the Comets also had a battle. It took a big third quarter to subdue Wallkill.

"We score off our press, but it wasn't really effective unt the third quarter," said Fallsburgh coach Marty Van Vleet. "We got out fast break going then."

Nick Boffenmyer held the Panthers together with 22 points and a lot of rebounds. Larin Young and John Gilmore carried the Comets' attack.

Bruce McCarthy led four of his teammates into double figures as Highland ran over New Paltz. The Big Blue had a 46-24 edge at the half, and they kept the pressure on when the action resumed. Rich Siegel's 11 points led the Hugies.

Paul Conklin had a big night—33 points worth—but Ellenville had little else to cheer about. Mike Mills led a steady Gander effort that had the winners in command right from the opening period.

Mills pumped in 27, and Jeff Debrosky scored 19 more to lead RVC. Rondout streaked out to a 20-9 lead in the first quarter and proceeded to send the Ellies to their third straight defeat.

Michaels Was Everybody's Choice

HEMPSTEAD (UPI) — Never was the selection of a head coach more simple. Walt Michaels was simply everybody's choice to become the coach of the New York Jets.

"It was a strange selection of a head coach," said Jets' General Manager Al Ward Tuesday after naming the 47-year-old Michaels the team's seventh head coach. "It was as much an election as a selection. And I'm not just talking about the board of directors, but also the players, the people in the organization, the media and the fans. There is no question that he was a nearly unanimous choice."

Thus Michaels, the Jets' defensive coordinator last season, achieved the position he had sought twice before without success. He succeeds Lou Holtz, who resigned one week before the season ended to accept the head coaching position at the University of Arkansas.

Michaels, an assistant coach with the Jets from 1963 through 1972, takes over a team that suffered its second straight 3-11 season. He becomes the team's fifth head coach in the past two seasons, although two of his predecessors (Ken Shipp and Mike Holovak) handled the position on an interim basis.

The Jets signed Michaels to a three-year contract estimated to be worth about $60,000 a year. They also gave Ward a new three-year contract and expanded his duties to include the overall operation of the team. In a third move, the club's board of directors appointed Leon Hess as acting president, succeeding Phil Iselin, who died last Tuesday.

"I accept the challenge of being head coach and expect our staff and players to be equally prepared for the task," Michaels said at a press conference at the Jets' training complex at Hofstra University. "I've known the owners a long time. They know what it takes to produce a winner and they are with Al Ward and me in this challenge."

Ward said he had about 40 hours of discussion with Michaels about the job and did not talk to any other candidates. The annoucement was delayed by Iselin's death last week, Ward added.

"I will have to sit down and evaluate our people and see what our needs will be for next year," Michaels said. "The top priority now is for me to find good assistants. We'll do what is necessary to turn this thing around."

Michaels twice was passed over for the Jets' head coaching position when many thought he deserved the job. Charley Winner, son-in-law of former Jet Coach Weeb Ewbank, was named following the 1972 season, prompting Michaels to resign and accept an assistant coaching position with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Sunday Racing Gets OK At Yonkers Track

YONKERS — Yonkers Raceway has received permission to stage a full nine-race card on Sundays . Post time will be 1 p.m.

The Westchester oval had asked the state for an extra racing day to help make up for the financial shortcomings it has experienced in recent months due to the increased patronage of Off-Track Betting by former YR fans and the emergence of the Meadowlands track in New Jersey.

Yonkers' revised schedule includes seven Sundays through Feb. 27. Roosevelt Raceway opens Feb. 28.

Sawyer Girls Fall

POUGHKEEPSIE—The Saugerties High School girls varsity basketball team had little to cheer about after absorbing a 57-25 Dutchess County Scholastic League loss Tuesday night at the hands of defending sectional champ Poughkeepsie.

"Poughkeepsie is very tall, very fast, and very good," said Saugerties coach Kathy Lund. "They have three starters back from the team that w the sectionals. The Kingston-Poughkeepsie game should be a good one."

Minty Thompson led Poughkeepsie with 18 points and Mary Maloney added 14. Only three of eight Saugerties players who saw game time scored points. Mickey Stilphen was top scorer with 11 points and Shelly Pfeil added 10.

Poughkeepsie opened up a 32-9 halftime lead on the strength of an 18-3 second quarter and coasted in the second half.

Saugerties (0-1) plays host to Lourdes Friday night in another DCSL contest.

Roundup: Unitas Colts' GM?

A front office dispute between Baltimore Colts coach Ted Marchibroda and general manager Joe Thomas could possibly result in former Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas returning to replace Thomas. Colts owner Robert Irsay acknowledged Tuesday that Unitas had expressed interest in Thomas' job should the general manager decide to leave. Thomas, who built championship teams out of the Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins and who revitalized the Colts, has one year remaining on his contract. Thomas is now asking for a five-year contract at more than $350,000 annually and Irsay said that is too rich for his blood....

The Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday signed reliever Ken Sanders, a pitcher who had his greatest years with the Brewers in the early 70s. The Brewer's top reliever last season, Danny Frisella, died during the holiday weekend in a dune buggy accident in Phoenix....

Sports fans aren't accustomed to hearing a woman's voice at sporting events in an official capacity except, perhaps, for the singing of the national anthem. And because of that, fans of the Chicago White Sox will be in for a big surprise this season when they tune into White Sox broadcasts. The reason is that a woman will be doing the broadcasts on radio station WMAQ along with veteran White Sox broadcaster Harry Caray. Mary Shane, who has been reporting sporting events here for more than a year for radio station WRIT, has been tabbed as Carey's new partner on at least 20 White Sox broadcasts — and the Milwaukee resident hopes to do even more games....

Dave Concepcion, the Cincinnati Reds' all-star shortstop, is seeking a three-year contract for a half-million dollars, he said Tuesday....

Adrian Garrett broke a 25-year-old record Tuesday night, hitting safely in his 28th straight games in the Venezuelan winter baseball league....

At age 31, Virginia Wade still retains all her enthusiasm for tennis—and it showed Tuesday night during her opening round victory in the $100,000 Virginia Slims of Washington tournament. "I was in a pretty good mood, but a few weeks off is enough to make you enthusiastic again," said Wade, who dumped Julie Anthony of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-2, 6-3. "Right now I'm hitting the ball a little harder than usual. I'm tidying up the rough ends of my game. I'm pretty ambitious at the moment. I'm thinking in a positive way"...

The Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday obtained lefthander Randall "Quincy" Hill from the Philadelphia Phillies to complete the trade that brought Johnny Oates to the Dodgers and sent infielder Ted Sizemore to the Phillies....

Former baseball writer Fred Leib, 88, resumes testimony in the Charles O. Finley-Bowie Kuhn lawsuit today, and was expected to tell of his relationship with the first baseball commissioner, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, and his recollections of baseball's first ruling body, a three-man commission. Leib was the first defense witness in Finley's $3.5 million damage suit against Kuhn, now baseball's commissioner. He testified briefly Tuesday after U.S. District Judge Frank J. McGarr, hearing the case, ruled against a defense motion for dismissal....A Miami firm has entered negotiations to purchase the Atlanta Flames hockey team from local developer Thomas Cousins. Attorneys for Thomas Holding Group, a holding company owned by Miami multi-millionaire Earl J. Thomas, and lawyers representing Cousins met Tuesday to discuss the possible sale of the National Hockey League team to Thomas....

Innsbruck could stage the 1980 Winter Olympic Games if Lake Placid should withdraw from its bid, Innsbruck Olympic press chief Bertl Neumann said Tuesday. "I can not imagine that Lake Placid will be ready for the Games in 1980," Neumann said after a tour to the U.S. winter resort.

Rhinebeck Scores

RHINEBECK — A strong all-around performance by Jim Ferriello helped Rhinebeck High get off on the right foot in Bi-Valley League competition here Tuesday night as the underdog Indians wrested a 54-45 victory from visiting Webutuck.

Webutuck was reputedly one of the top BV entries this time around, but that myth fell as Ferriello dumped in 20 points and his teammates combined to choke off the visitors with a pressing defense in the second half.

"We had a strong second half defensively," noted winning coach Bob Ahlin. "We pressed the whole game, but it hurt them in the third quarter especially. That's when we ran off 14 straight points and got the lead back."

Rhinebeck had jumped out to a first period advantage but trailed by two points at the half. Webutuck, however, managed only 16 points in the last two quarters as the home team stormed past for its second win against four losses overall.

"Ferriello had a strong game," Ahlin said. "He played good defense and he was our leading rebounder as well. Steve Sherman did another good job on one of their big scorers too."

Joe O'Han added a dozen points for the winners. Rhinebeck held a seven-point edge entering the fourth quarter and held it to notch the win.

Kingston Outswims Middletown, 89-82

MIDDLETOWN—Victories by Kirk Jacob in the 100 yard backstroke and by Chris Burns in the 100 breaststroke sewed up an 89-82 non-league swimming meet victory for the Kingston High School squad Tuesday against the mermen of Middletown.

The wins by Jacob and Burns came in the ninth and tenth events of the 11-event meet and gave the Tigers the margin of points they needed to guarantee victory. Middletown, which lost the meet-opening 200 medley relay, won the final relay one, the 400 free, for another seven points but it wasn't enough to catch Kingston.

The Tigers are now 4-1 overall and 3-0 in the Dutchess County Scholastic League.

Kingston took only five individual firsts, including Burns', two by Jacob and one by Steve Olson in the 100 free in 56.1, plus the 200 medley relay. Jacob won the 200 free in 2:03.5 and the 100 back in 1:04.2, while Burns took the 100 breast in 1:07.4, a pool record. Kingston's winning relay time of 1:50.2, by the quartet of Jacob, Burns, Ken Acquaviva and Olson, was a pool record.

"The lead went back and forth," said KHS coach Floyd McCormick. "We w it in the 100 back and 100 breast. I expected a close score. There were a couple of places I hoped we'd do better than we did. The 100 freestyle was a pleasant surprise, though."

In that event, won by Olson, Kingston took third and fourth.

The Tigers visit Poughkeepsie Thursday in a 6:30 p.m. start. "They're layin' for us," said McCormick.

In Section Nine Volleyball

Comets, MHS Win

KINGSTON—Two Ulster County Athletic League girls volleyball teams have qualified for the semifinals of the third annual Section Nine Tournament with two victories each on Tuesday.

In the semifinals Thursday at New Paltz High School, No. 12 seed Suffern will meet No. 3 seed Fallsburgh (18-2, UCAL champs) and No. 9 seed Marlboro (15-5, tied for third in the UCAL) will face No. 2 seed Clarkstown North (20-2).

First round action took place at four different sites Tuesday, and four of the five UCAL teams which made the 16-team field advanced. The fifth team, Onteora, lost to Marlboro in the opening round. New Paltz and Red Hook fell in in the second round.

At Suffern, top-seeded O'Neill defeated Deleware Valley, 15-11, 15-5 and Suffern topped Clarkstown South, 15-5, 5-15, 15-5. In the second round, Suffern beat O'Neill, 15-13, 17-15.

In the second round, Marlboro took New Paltz in three games, S-15, 15-6, 15-1.

No Pressure-Recruiting Of Women Athletes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Delegates to the annual convention of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women voted Tuesday to keep a tight lid on the recruitment of women student-athletes.

The delegates voted to ban paid campus visits for prospective women athletes, field recruitment by coaches of women's teams, personal solicitations and the on-campus signing of letters of intent.

Liz Ullman, a coordinator for the AIAW, said the stringent recruiting regulations were passed to keep athletic policies in line with educational aims and to keep fledgling women's sports programs from becoming like men's programs — "a business enterprise."

The AIAW is the women's equivalent of the NCAA, the governing body of men's collegiate sports.

Supporters of the recruiting rule changes said women athletes would be able to choose colleges with a minimum of pressure.

Regulations had permitted individual coaches to travel and recruit at their own expense. In men's sports, most recruiting is funded.

Several athletic directors said the recruitment by coaches on their own time and with their own money might be in violation of federal equal pay laws.

The rule changes are aimed at forcing athletic staff to discuss programs with prospects as part of routine business. The rules do not prohibit mailing literature or video tapes. Telephone calls and on-campus interviews with visits paid by prospects would also be permitted.

College coaches are allowed to watch athletic contests but they cannot initiate contact with prospective athletes.

The delegates voted against a plan to allow on campus tryouts at student expense as discriminatory to poor students.

Also, Letters of intent or scholarship forms must be sent to students' homes and cannot be signed on campus.

Opponents of the strict recruiting said the changes would violate Health Education and Welfare Department Title IX guidelines requiring equal support for men's and women's athletic programs.

But backers of the changes said federal guidelines permit differences in recruiting.

Ketcham Downs Rondout In Girls' Gymnastics

WAPPINGERS FALLS—Nancy Hakanson and Loretta Auch each won two events and Ketcham High School's girls gymnastics team handed Rondout Valley a 77-58.95 season-opening loss Tuesday.

Hakanson won the vaulting with a score of 8.3 and copped the floor exercise with 6.6. Auch won the uneven parallel bars (5.1) and the balance beam (6.0).

For Rondout, freshman Francis Irberseder was third in the vaulting and fourth in both the bars and floor exercise. Margaret Davis was third on the beam, Kathy Dennin third in the floor exercise and Terry Van Orden fourth in the vaulting, all for Rondout.

"I was generally pleased with our performances," said RVC coach Ann Acton. "We're basically a freshman team."

The Rondout girls open their league schedule at Red Hook Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

A Hot Barry Powers Golden State

NEW YORK (UPI)— "Sometimes the ball has eyes and it goes straight to the hoop," Rick Barry said. "It's something you have no control over."

"When you get hot like that," Jamaal Wilkes added with a smile, "you could kick the ball in."

Barry put on a spectacular shooting show in the third quarter Tuesday night when he clicked on jumpers up to 30 feet to reel off 20 of his season high 38 points against the New York Knicks and pace the Golden State Warriors to a 120-110 victory. In a 7½-minute span early in the period, Barry scored 16 points to help the Warriors outscore the Knicks 22-8 and take a 72-62 lead after trailing 54-50 at halftime.

Wilkes, scoreless in the third period, picked up Barry's cue in the fourth quarter and began bombing long range bank shots with Bill Bradley draped all over him. Wilkes hit his first six shots, flipping 20-25-footers off the backboard with his unorthodox behind the head shooting style, in just four minutesm to provide the Warriors with a 103-88 lead with 7:30 to go.

"I've never seen anybody hit that many bank shots from that distance," said Bradley."

The Knicks, who wasted a 32-point night by Earl Monroe, made a bid for a comeback when the Warriors "started to celebrate too early," according to Golden State coach Al Attles, but even a 13-2 blitz by New York in just over two minutes fell short when Barry hit a layup and two free throws in the closing seconds.

Barry, Wilkes and the other Warriors have been inconsistent most of this season, posting an 18-15 won-lost record for third place in the NBA Pacific Division. The Warriors are fourth in the league in scoring but 19th in defense. Barry and Wilkes were both shooting under 40 per cent during most of the 1976 portion of the schedule but they think they've finally broken out of their slump.

"I've had a cold and sore throat and I felt my body just didn't want to carry me," said Barry, who had 37 and 29-point performances last week. "But I'm getting my batteries recharged now. Perhaps we've gotten the worst stretch out of our system."

In other action, Portland trounced Boston 128-84, Atlanta surprised Denver with a 113-109 victory, Milwaukee ripped Phoenix 139-111 and Chicago beat the New York Nets 88-80.

Blazers 128, Celtics 84

Boston coach Tommy Heinsohn said the Celtics played "lousy defense, lousy offense, lousy everything," and he was right. Larry Steele and Corky Calhoun came off the bench to score 18 and 16 points, respectively, and Bill Walton, recovering from a bruised knee, grabbed 15 rebounds, blocked five shots and had six assists in 22 minutes. Walton scored only two points but his teammates provided plenty of points on their own in one of the most one-sided games in the NBA this season.

Hawks 113, Nuggets 109

Led by Lou Hudson's 25 points, Atlanta snapped an eight-game losing streak. The Hawks, playing their first game under new owner Ted Turner, scored nine straight points in a one-minute stretch to take an 80-72 lead with 2:24 left in the third quarter and the Nuggets were never able to regain the lead.

Bucks 139, Suns 111

Junior Bridgeman scored 38 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead Milwaukee to its sixth victory in the last eight games. The Bucks, playing without Bob Dandridge who had the flu, led 77-55 at the half. Their 139 points were a season high.

Bulls 88, Nets 80

Mickey Johnson scored 20 points to help Chicago snap a four-game losing streak and extend the Nets' losses to five straight.

Brawls Mar Maryland Cage Victory

By UPI

Maryland's 90-78 victory over Richmond Tuesday night was marred by two outbursts of fighting that resulted in the ejection of four players, including the 18th-ranked Terrapins' top three big men.

Maryland's Mike Davis was tossed out shortly before the second half started for throwing a punch at Richmond's Craig Sullivan, who remained in the game. The Terrapins' Larry Gibson and Lawrence Boston then were ejected with 5:57 remaining after a scuffle with Richmond's Mike Dow, who also was thrown out.

"It started when one of their players spat on Mike Davis at the start of the half," said the 6-foot-8 Boston. "There was some pushing and shoving during the half, then I saw everybody throwing punches, so I decided to throw some too. I had to get him (Dow) off my teammates. It looked like he was hurting my teammate."

Richmond Coach Carl Slone denied that Sullivan spat on the 6-foot-8 Davis. No injuries were reported as a result of the fighting.

"We can't afford to have our three big men on the bench," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, looking ahead to weekend Atlantic Coast Conference games against Wake Forest and North Carolina State. "We can't have people swinging at people and play the kind of basketball we have to play."

Steve Sheppard preserved Maryland's victory in the closing minutes as Richmond failed to get closer than eight points. Sheppard led Maryland with 25 points, including 9-of-12 shooting from the field.

Brad Davis added 19 points and Bill Bryant had 14 as the Terps, who shot 59 per cent from the field compared to 40 per cent for Richmond, improved their record to 10-1.

Senior forward Jeff Butler paced Richmond with 23 points.

In other games, Derrick Jackson scored 20 points and Georgetown sank 6 of 12 foul shots in the last 3:30 to hold off Boston University, 53-49.

Senior Steve Jones scored 24 points and sophomore Wally Swanson added 16 to lead Texas A&M to a 68-59 victory over Texas in the Southwest Conference opener for both teams.

James Holliman, Mark Landsberger and Tony Zeno each scored 27 points to offset Freeman Williams' 36 points as Arizona State downed Portland State 115-92.

Rosewall Outlasts Riessen

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Ken Rosewall, playing his first five-set match since Wimbledon in 1974, beat American Marty Riessen in a four-hour struggle in today to reach the quarter-finals of the $216,999 Australian Open tennis championships.

Rosewall, 42, outlasted Riessen, 6-7, 7-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

The Australian veteran had not played a five-set match since his amazing comeback against American Stan Smith in the semifinal of the 1974 Wimbledon championships.

The tournament organizers also smiled on Rosewall by giving him a day's rest now which will give him time to recover before playing the young bull, 22-year-old defending champion Mark Edmonson, in a quarter-final Friday.

In a surprise of the day's play, the finalists in last week's New South Wales Open tourney, Tony Roche of Australia and American Dick Stockton, were knocked out of the championship.

American Roscoe Tanner, the No. 2 seed, easily beat Roche, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, when Roche appeared to suffer a stomach injury in the second set.

Because of the long Rosewall-Riessen match on the center court, the Ross Case-Stockton match was transferred to an outside court.

Case beat Stockton, 6-4, 4-6, 6-7, 7-5, 6-2, in a shadow-covered court which produced bad bounces and bad tempers for the players.

Top seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina made fairly short work of American Charlie Pasarell, 7-6, 6-2, 6-3, while Arthur Ashe showed good form in beating fellow American Hank Pfister, 7-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Edmonson was much too good for 22-year-old Englishman Richard Lewis, winning 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Today's results set up these quarter-final parings: will be: Vilas vs. Case, Ashe vs. John Alexander, Rosewall vs. Edmonson and Tanner vs. Phil Dent.

In the women's matches West German Katja Ebbinghaus beat American Rainey Fox, 6-2, 6-7, 6-1, to advance to the quarterfinals.

Ebbinghaus, who turns 29 Thursday, took a heavy fall in the first set but managed to remain composed to run out a comfortable winner. She will play second seed Kerry Reid of Australia in the quarterfinals.

Memorable Night for NHL Pair

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI)— Usually there isn't much that is memorable about a 2-2 tie between two losing hockey teams.

But for rookies Dwight Schofield of Detroit and Bill Riley of Washington Tuesday night's deadlock will be easy to remember. Both scored their first NHL goals and Schofield's lifted the Red Wings to the tie with two minutes to play.

"I just can't believe it's true," said Schofield, a 20-year-old defenseman brought up Monday from the International League and playing in his first NHL game. "Everyone dreams of scoring that first goal, but it was asking too much for it to mean that my goal would stop us from losing."

Riley took a centering pass from Gerry Meehan and beat Detroit goalie Eddie Giacomin with 8:02 gone in the third period to tie the score 1-1. Bill Lochead's first period goal had given Detroit a 1-0 lead.

"It was set up just perfectly," said Riley, who assisted on the winning goal Sunday when the Capitals beat St. Louis for the first time ever. "Gerry waited just until I had come clear and he put the puck right in front of me. It would have been a damn shame if I had missed such a perfect opportunity."

Riley, playing in his fourth NHL game, was brought up by Washington from the International League last Thursday along with Bill Marson. Riley and Marson are the only black players in the NHL.

Tony White's goal less than five minutes after Riley's score gave the Caps a momentary 2-1 lead. But Schofield stole the puck from two Washington defenders and beat Washington's surprised goalie, Ron Low, at 18:00 of the final period.

Blues 4, Kings 3

Claude Larose scored with 5:33 remaining to break a 3-3 tie and give St. Louis its fifth victory in six games. Larose took the puck off the stick of Los Angeles goalie Rogie Vachon behind the Kings' net, then shot while falling. Mike Murphy scored two goals for Los Angeles.

Canucks 2, Penguins 2

Vancouver's Dennis Ververgaert scored with 47 seconds remaining to erase a two-goal defict.

Strange requests to dry cleaners

"Strange things are done 'neath the midnight sun," wrote Poet Robert Service when he told the tale of Sam McGee and his unfortunate demise. Even stranger things are told to, and asked of, dry cleaners around the country by the populace bringing clothing to be cleaned.

In the city of Chicago, people don't always think their requests through. One dry cleaning establishment close to the city's wealthy Gold Coast reported that a male customer came in brightly one morning with a suit he wanted to have dyed brown. The clerk making out the ticket didn't even blink when the man added, "I'd like white pin stripes on it, too, about an inch apart."

Fashion experts at Gleneagles, manufacturers of quality weatherwear and sportswear, asked dry cleaners about some of their strange requests. Though difficult to believe, all are true and all happened within recent memory of personnel at the dry cleaners.

A woman who operates a dry cleaning shop and plant in Massachusetts never ceases to be amazed at the number of people, mostly men, who remind her to be sure to clean the inside, the lining. She laughs at the thought of trying to clean only the outside of a garment.

The same cleaner told of an elderly woman who found her receipt for a fur coat which her cleaners had in storage for her for nine years. When she finally claimed the coat, she insisted that someone had worn it. The dry cleaner tried to explain, to no avail, that the coat had been locked in the vault all that time.

(One Kingston dry cleaning establishment had a true story to add to the list. It seems a woman brought several items of men's clothing in to be cleaned. Later, her husband stopped and was given the cleaned garments— only the clothing which his wife dropped off didn't belong to him.....)

Often a dry cleaning shop will have a night "drop" for the convenience of its customers. Any time of day or night' people leave their garments to be cleaned. One such dry cleaners in Oklahoma found a leather coat one morning with the customer's name and address and a note which read simply, "The spot is from sitting on a pizza."

In California, things are about the same as they are everywhere else. A top quality cleaners in San Francisco said that many of the items that are funny to him are really rather tragic. For the sake of humor, he adds signs of his own which provoke smiles. "Drop your pants here," commands one sign of potential customers. Another, advertising their pressing service, suggests, "Your clothes pressed while you hide your hide."

The cleaners in the City by the Bay suggests that people bring spotted clothing to the cleaners, telling the clerk just what the spot is. This, he said, will result in better cleaning than if a customer tries to rectify the spots at home. He recalled when people covered ink spots with buttermilk. Customers must have read it somewhere. The buttermilk, he said, was even harder to remove than the ink.

A few hundred miles to the south, a Los Angeles dry cleaner has had very funny requests! He will never understand a very wealthy customer who has his shirts laundered and folded but never ironed. In order to save a few cents, he wears wrinkled shirts.

Even stranger was the woman who was set to go to a party and found the zipper in her dress had been broken in the dry cleaning. She insisted that her dry cleaner sew the dress on her so she could wear it to the party, even though she had many other designer dresses. Her date' dressed in a tuxedo, stood by and watched the sewing operation.

A shop in Pennsylvania received a garment for cleaning with the comment, "Must have got the spot in the church pew (from someone who looked like he never was in it)." Another cleaner was told that an oyster slipped out on the suit that night.

People often give unusual reasons for stains such as the man who claimed that the stain in his suit came from the back of a tail pipe. If possible, the cleaners suggested, people would do their cleaners and themselves a favor by watching where they lean (if possible, avoiding dingy walls), not trying to remove stains themselves and taking the garment to the cleaners as quickly as possible. "Show and tell" helps in this case as the cleaners have an easier time if they know about the spot they're trying to erase.

Many customers think they know the cleaning business but, for some unknown reason, they don't think the industry has undergone changes or enjoyed advancements. One who thought he knew something told his neighborhood cleaners slyly, "Let me know what day they change the naphtha, and I'll bring my suit in."

That statement might have been sensible 50 years ago but surely not today. Now, everything is clean, and any day is a good day to patronize a quality dry cleaner. Often they will clean unusual possessions (one cleaners said that many bear rugs were brought to him for cleaning), make repairs and alter garments to fit. If their customers would help the dry cleaners, they, in turn, would reap the rewards.

Strange things are done, even to the hard-working, understanding and helpful dry cleaners.

Art Commissions Now Available

NEW YORK—Applications are now availalbe for New York State theatre groups who want to present new works for young audiences, according to Robert A. Mayer, executive director of the New York State Council on the Arts. These commissions are designed to stimulate a wider and more imaginative repertory for young people's theatre in New York State.

Selected theater groups will receive funds to commission a new play by an author with whom they would like to work. The program will offer playwrights a maximum fee of $4,000 and the producing groups will be eligible to apply for money toward mounting the new works.

Although only a theatre group can file the actual application, individual writers or creators may initiate the possible collaboration with a theatre organization. The commissions will be awarded on the basis of the writers' past work, the artistic quality of the producing organization and the merits of the proposed project.

Last spring nine theatre groups were selected to receive a total of $36,000.

This year's applications and guidelines may be obtained by writing to Theatre Program, New York State Council on the Arts, 80 Centre St., New York, 10013. Deadline for application is Jan. 17

Where to Complain about Food Problems

By Louise K. Breitung
Cooperative Extension Agent

KINGSTON—Stale bread, cracked eggs or the proverbial fly in your soup are legitimate consumer complaints; so are dirty stores and deceptive advertising. The following is a guide to some avenues of consumer redress; it covers only food for at-home consumption.

The store where you shop is the most likely place to complain about almost any food problem, since it has a direct economic interest in your satisfaction. Most reputable stores will refund or replace unsatisfactory food; managers or owners may also respond to complaints about personnel, stock and other problems. Some supermarket chains now have consumer representatives on staff; a letter to the headquarters consumer rep, public relations or communications head or the president of the chain should get results.

The manufacturer or packer of the food is also directly interested in customer satisfaction, and a letter to the president of the company many bring redress. The name and address of the manufacturer, packer or distributor appear on the label of packaged foods; business directories at local libraries list major companies and their officials.

Local consumer agencies: If your locality has a consumer affairs department, this local agency may be able to give you help or direction. Local agencies as well as the State Department of Agriculture and Markets have the power to license and-or fine retail stores; complaints to these agencies therefore may be quite effective. Under the law, retailers are responsible for many food problems which are in fact beyond their control; a short-weight packaged food, for example, may be a store's responsibility even if it was packed elsewhere.

State agencies: The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets has primary responsibility for licensing and inspecting retail food stores, as well as some processing plants within the state. The agency polices such things as store sanitation; weights and measures; adulteration and misbranding of meats, milk, milk products and food service items; unit pricing; misrepresentation of Kosher foods and other matters. Buffalo, New York City, Riverhead, Rochester and Syracuse offices handle consumer complaints.

The New York State Department of Health polices the sanitation of independent delicatessens and restaurants; in many cities and counties, local health departments exist and they assume responsibility for those complaints. Supermarket delis are inspected by State Agriculture and Markets.

The "Directory of Federal, State, County and City Government Consumer Offices" is published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is available for 95 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Federal agencies: All foods shipped in interstate commerce are subject to federal inspection. Contact the Food and Drug Administration to complain about impure or adulterated food, contamination or "misbranding" which includes false or misleading labeling or questionable nutritional claims. This agency has a consumer complaint system, and will refer the complainant to the proper agency if it does not have jurisdiction. Contact the complaint coordinator at: 850 Third Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11232; 599 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N.Y. 14202; or 256 Leo W., O'Brien Bldg., Clinton and N. Pearl Streets, Albany, N.Y. 12207. Field offices are also located in Binghamton, Hicksville, Rochester, Syracuse and White Plains.

U.S. Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction over meat, eggs and poultry, as well as processed foods which contain meat or poultry. For a complaint about a packaged food, check the label; if it says "Inspected, USDA" it falls within that agency's jurisdiction. USDA's Meat and Poultry Inspection Program offices are located at 80 Wolf Road, Albany, N.Y. 12225 and 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007; these offices handle complaints about suspected contamination of meat- and poultry-containing products' or about misgraded meat and poultry. (NOTE: USDA also grades many other food products for quality; a label declaration of a USDA quality grade may appear on a food, while its safety and cleanliness are FDA's responsibility.)

The Federal Trade Commission handles complaints about false and misleading advertising (but not labeling). The agency also polices supermarkets to maintain sufficient stocks of advertised "specials." (State Agriculture and Markets has overlapping jurisdiction on specials). FTC, 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007. Consumers in Buffalo and eight western New York counties should contact FTC at 1339 Federal Office Building, 1240 East 9th St., Cleveland, O. 44199.

Food Stamp and nutrition programs: Complaints about a food stamp allotment or application should be addressed to the NYS Department of Social Services with a request for a Fair Hearing. Fair Hearing offices are located in New York City, Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse; applications for a hearing are also available from the Fair Hearing Section, Department of Social Services, 1450 Western Avenue, Albany, N.Y. 12243.

Complaints about how stores handle food stamps should be addressed to the regional office of the Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, 729 Alexander Road, Princeton, N.J., 08540, or field offices in Albany, Rochester and Syracuse. These offices also handle inquiries and complaints about most government nutrition programs.

Other agencies: The following agencies have no specific jurisdiction over food problems, but will take action in some cases or will refer the complainant to the proper agency.

The State Consumer Protection Board is primarily involved in legislative issues, and would appreciate consumer comment on issues such as freshness dating, unit pricing, ingredient labeling and standard packaging. Offices at 99 Washington Ave., Albany, N.Y. 12210 and 2 World Trade Center, New York, N.Y. 10047.

The State Department of Law, Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection will mediate complaints between the consumer and the businessman; when mediation fails, it may consider filing suit. The department also takes legal action in general areas of consumer concern. Two World Trade Center, New York, N.Y. 10047; additional offices in Albany, Auburn, Binghamton, Buffalo, Harlem, Hauppauge, Plattsburgh, Poughkeepsie, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Watertown.

DEAR ABBY

Sensitivity Is Beautiful

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old white girl who is often told that I look like an Indian. Although there is no Indian in my background that I know of, I feel a close kinship to them. My heart aches and I cry whenever I think of how the Indians were mistreated by the white man years ago.

I even went as far as to buy a pair of moccasins, and I love wearing them.

I watch a popular TV program about two brothers "questing" for their long-lost sister, who lives among the Indians. I would love to become an actress and play an Indian role.

This may sound silly, but it has made me feel better to say it.—SENSITIVE AND SAD.

DEAR SENSITIVE: If more people would identify as you have with the cruelties and injustices of the minorities among us, we would be a better society. You don't have to become an "actress" to express charity and love. Don't be sad, dear. I think your sensitivity is beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to love a man but not be able to live with him?

We've been married for six years, and in that time we've had an average of one fight a week. And I don't mean squabbles. I mean real fights.

Our personalities clash. I seem to bring out the worst in him, and before I know it, he's yelling at me, beating on me and threatening to leave me.

I've tried everything. I've even gone to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've tried keeping quiet and refusing to fight back, but that only makes him madder.

I'm only 26 and we have no children. I can't see myself staying married to this man and taking all this abuse. He never says he's sorry after he hurts me. And he's never said he would try to change. The only reason I don't divorce him is because I love him. I'm really strung out over this and don't know what to do. Help me.— —MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE: Yes, it's possible to "love" a man you're not able to live with. But it's my opinion that the kind of "love" that keeps you coming back for more punishment is a poor trade-off and a miserable way to "live." But, it's your life and your decision.

Gloria Swanson's Fight Against the 'Sugar Blues'

By MARIAN CHRISTY

Health-food addict Gloria Swanson, who's 77 and looking more young than old under a sporty brimmed cap, is not famous for her silence. Neither is her husband of 10 months, 61-year-old William Dufty, a prize-winning author who, at his wife's behest, has lost 70 pounds in five months. Swanson, who weighs 95 pounds, is in black Dior sportswear that emphasizes her smallness. Dufty is wearing a high-necked turtleneck to disguise the unfamiliar skinniness.

Both are talking, a nonstop volley of words batted back-and-forth about their well-being and lifestyle. They mutually downgrade sugar as a ' ' killer" But, then, they've written a book called "Sugar Blues" which exposes the ills of sugar.

He is drinking beer. "I never get sick," boasts Dufty. She is nibbling on organically grown plums pulled out of a foil package from her Dior handbag. ' ' When I get sick," chirps Gloria in a rat-a-tat rhythm, ' ' I give myself an enema."

And so the animated conversation continues and it's more like eavesdropping than an interview:

He: ' ' Gloria Swanson's life changed my death. I mean: I was 39 when my son, who's now 21, was born. Well, I thought to myself, I'll be dead when he's 21. Then I thought about the alternative to death — senility. Well, I said to myself, I'd rather die. Then I met Gloria Swanson who pounced on me. She taught me about eating 'Mrs. God's' food — 'Mrs. God' is Mother Nature."

She: ' ' When I met him, he was the 210-pound ugly blubber sitting to my right."

He: ' ' I thought she was just another food weirdo."

She: Most people who are fat or sick or both go to doctors whom they consider The End. Some end. They could be their end."

He: ' ' When I lost those 70 pounds, I had wrinkles across my belly and crow's feet under my arms. Gloria encouraged me to take a lot of sea salt baths. Now my skin is very tight."

She: ' ' When I was starring in the play, ' ' Butterflies Are Free," youngsters in the show would throw up just before curtain time. They thought it was nerves. It wasn't. Those poor kids were eating hot dogs. Ugh. Every so often, cast members would announce they had a cold and wouldn't come near me. I'd say: ' Look, dears, I can't get your germs. I'm clean inside.'"

He: " Sometimes I make our breakfast. We eat watery oatmeal made with granola. We love fresh fruits, vegetables and grains. People should remember there's a big difference between man-made foods and ' Mrs. God's foods.' Gloria has a career based on make-believe. We won't eat make-believe food."

She: "When you have no toxics in your system, you can handle anything because you can think right. You know, once I came close to killing a woman who had been a nurse to my children. I saw something horrible she had written. I had to be locked in a room. Finally my doctor came and sent me to another doctor in California. My blood had turned green from anger. I was full of bile. I was literally green on the inside."

He: "Anger makes you green. Sugar gives you the blues."

She: "And how about the time I broke my nail past the quick? I was in Paris and my daughter took me to a well-known doctor. A footman greeted us at the door. There were fantastic old paintings in the waiting room. And, wonder of wonders, the doctor spoke in English. He said he'd fix my nail. And he proceeded to order an anesthetist, a nurse, an operating room, a hospital room. By God, he was going to perform surgery. I asked him if he had a Band Aid. He replied: "Sorry, no." The next day a veterinarian friend fixed the nail. He had a Band Aid."

He: "When I go anywhere with Gloria, people flock around her. Gloria Swanson. She's Exhibit A."

She: "They're always asking me if I'd had plastic surgery. No. They ask if I've had my teeth capped. No. They ask if I've had a breast removed. No. But I tell then I've had a lump removed. Then they ask for my autograph. I never say no."

He: ' ' When I was a newspaperman working in the city room, I felt my colleagues and I were like a bunch of war-weary soldiers in a fox hole. Guys dropped dead at the next desk. I always had this awful feeling that maybe I was next. Gloria reached me by example. Gloria Swanson is an example of a healthy person."

She: ' ' I refuse to think in terms of age. But, still, I might resort to plastic surgery one day. If I look in the mirror and don't like what I see, I'll consider a re-make."

He: ' ' Oh, too many doctors do unnecessary surgery."

She: ' I believe when you pay your hospital bill, you should receive a complete record of the services rendered. I mean, in two weeks you might be in Hong Kong and get hit by a rickshaw. Those records would be nice to fall back on."

Gloria Swanson, 77, and husband of less than a year Bill Dufty, 61, have co-authored an anti-sugar book called ' ' Sugar Blues."

She: ' ' Once I had to have X-rays taken and I asked this cute little nurse, ' Hey, aren't you afraid of working so often with a machine that makes X-rays?' She replied that she didn't know much about X-rays because she was only the substitute nurse. I put on my johnny and said bye-bye to her, the doctor and the hospital. Can you imagine such nonchalance about X-rays?"

He: ' ' Hey, I'm writing her biography."

Print Exhibit

There will be an exhibit of prints at Barrett House, 55 Noxon St., Poughkeepsie, now through Jan. 21. These works are the results of participation in a printmaking workshop funded by a grant from the America the Beautiful Fund of New York.

Upon learning and exploring the basic relief and intaglio processes, the workshop participants, residents of Dutchess and Ulster counties, translated their ideas into visual images reflecting personal experiences, values, daily life subjects and activities, environment, and also non-objective themes. The project director, Pat Jow of Kingston, encouraged work in a variety of techniques, such as woodcuts and linoleum cuts, which are the relief processes; and drypoint, etchings and collagraphs, which are the intaglio processes.

The project director, a graduate of the State University College at New Paltz, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in printmaking, is considered by many to be one of the most promising and prolific printmakers in the area. Ms. Jow's specialization is in intaglio printing, and she is noted for her richly colored viscosity prints and large shape themes.

Ms. Jow's free demonstration given to the general public prior to the start of classes drew people of different occupations who were enthusiastic and eager to learn and apply these printing methods. The participants, ranging in age from three years to 50, included housewives, teachers, clerks, students, nurses, artists, technicians. Their prints on exhibit depict subjects ranging from family, animals, landscape, and still-life settings, to using texture, design, composition and color create works which are suggestive of moods or feelings.

The six-week long workshop was held with the cooperation of Barrett House.

Conflicting Reports On Magazine Battle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only a handful of people really know what is going on in the fight for control of the New York Magazine Co. In the meantime, there are conflicting versions of what has happened so far in private meetings.

It all began last week when Australian publishing magnate Rupert Murdoch took over the New York Post, the city's only major afternoon daily, and said he was also trying to gain control of the New York Magazine Co. stock.

The company owns New York and New West magazines and The Village Voice, a weekly newspaper. The staffs of New York and New West have threatened a work stoppage if Murdoch takes over because of his reputation for sensationalism.

Over the weekend, Clay Felker, founder and publisher of New York, got a court order against Murdoch's purchase of a large block of the company's stock which would have given him a controling interest in the company.

But there are reports Murdoch ousted two members from the company's board of directors and got himself and an ally installed in their places at a stormy board meeting Monday night.

Another report that circulated Tuesday said Murdoch already had bought enough stock to control the company. Whose stock he bought and for how much and how many shares were not specified. And it was not clear whether Murdoch could legally do so before Felker's court case is settled.

Still another report said Felker and Murdoch will be meeting to negotiate a settlement of this complex dispute, against the wishes of the staffs of New York, New West and The Voice.

On Tuesday, Felker held a staff meeting and is said to have promised the uneasy staff that he will wage a "vigorous" court fight against Murdoch.

But the meeting was closed to outside reporters and a secondhand report on what went on conflicts with other reports. Felker himself declined to discuss the meeting when it ended.

Murdoch's own paper, the Post, was quoting a third party's description of what Murdoch said at Monday night's board meeting.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6

Your birthday today: From a rugged start your coming year turns into a pleasant exploration of possibilities. You can sell anything you believe in now with little effort, should get busy rounding up ideas to promote. Relationships are lively, full of surprises. Today's natives are original thinkers, scattered through all fields, not forming a typical class or group. Those born this year will subordinate emotional expression in favor of overt success in career advancement.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Short-term ventures turn out to be lasting hindrances to your career. Budgets go out the window if you get swept along by group enthusiasm.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Echoes from yesterday inspire you to take sides or continue to push for a defeated plan. Associates cool off, turn to more rational solutions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Details are beyond your control. Relax, go along with the trend, avoid drastic revisions. You sold your idea; give others time to digest it.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Be thrifty; you'll have plenty of uses for ready cash. Confrontations give way to intellectual approaches to solve problems without crisis.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Slow up enough to make sure health and resources are intact. Don't neglect persistent symptoms. Social connections are sensitive; don't say too much.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: According to your views, circumstances drift toward either conflict or cooperation. Avoid committing more cash. Evening talks bring simplification.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Reserve opinion until you hear more; stay on an even keel. Skip financing experiments, but do something for younger people in over their depth.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Differences sharpen to open dispute if you let them. People shift from assumptions of authority. Clear up unfinished work, more is on the way.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: What seems at first like a very small variation overturns set schedules. Tonight go in for entertainment, try to get your mind off the job.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: A conservative attitude now brings long-run security. Shortcuts are unavailable at the moment. Where convictions clash, do not overstate your case.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Assume responsibility for ventures based on your own original ideas. Keep your local environment in good order, but avoid extreme changes.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: There's no point bickering or taking umbrage. What looks like a practical joke is probably coincidence; take it so. Be wary of vague promises.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

DISTANCE: (Q.) I met this guy Andy last July. I was going with someone else and he was too. He asked me on a date and I went. That night, we discovered we liked each other.

He broke up with his girl and I broke up with my boy friend. We started going together. But in August, he moved away. It's just an hour's drive, though, and he comes up here, usually every weekend.

I like Andy more than any other guy ever. I think about him constantly. I cry a lot because he's there and I'm here. I really love him, and I'm not a pushover. I'm afraid because we're not together as much as we were it will die. How can I stop that from happening? — 15 in Pennsylvania.

(A.) You and Andy see each other once a week. That is enough to keep love alive and healthy.

If he lived down the street, you couldn't see him every minute, but you wouldn't cry. So dry up the tears and the worries. Spend your time and energy usefully at school and at home. Waste no time daydreaming or ightmaring.

Live postively and cheerfully, and you will be at your best when Andy and you can be together.

PURSUED: (Q.) My boy friend got me into square dancing. After a while, he dropped out of it and I got this 56-year-old man for a partner. Soon I found out that the old man was in love with me.

But I'm in love with my boy friend and he's in love with me.

The old man knows about us, but that doesn't stop him. What I want to know is how do I tell him to leave me alone without hurting him and feeling like a two-timer? He keeps calling me up at work. I am 18 now and have a job and want to keep it — and my boy friend too. — Uneasy in Connecticut.

(A.) Tell the man that he's too old for you and that you want to end the friendship because it's bugging you. Do not be afraid of hurting him. He knows what he is doing and that it isn't the right thing to do.

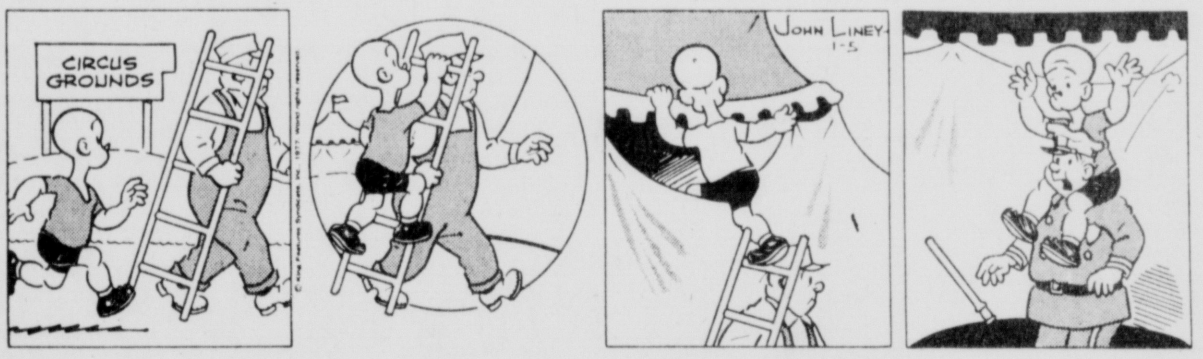

Do not feel like a two-timer. You have not tried to lead him on. Get RID of him.

(Have a problem? Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

DON'T LASH OUT AGAINST TRUMP LEAD

It's natural to resist when somebody tries to take the bread out of your mouth, but don't lash out wildly. Too much resistance may be worse than none at all.

Opening lead — ♠ 8

South wasn't going to let any miserable opponent stop the heart ruffs, so he won the first trick, cashed the top hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy.

South next wanted to return to his hand to ruff the last heart, but when he led a club from dummy West won and led another trump.

Now South was in bad shape. He couldn't cash the king of clubs and get back to dummy for the jack of clubs; and since dummy was out of trumps South couldn't ruff out his last heart.

When the ace of diamonds turned up in unfavorable position, South had to lose two diamonds, one club and one heart.

SHOULD LEAD CLUB

After the opening trump lead South can ruff only one heart in dummy. Instead of jumping wildly to do so, South should first lead the king of clubs.

South wins the trump return and cashes the queen of clubs. Then, at last, he can take the top hearts and ruff a heart in dummy. He is in position to cash the jack of clubs, and 10 tricks are assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player bids one spade. You hold: ♠62 ♡Q1093 ◇AJ93 ♣1074. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You were planning to bid one heart if the opponent had passed, but you cannot afford to bid two hearts. The raise in diamonds does justice to your hand.

Hundreds of Free Public Events Planned

The Inaugural Uninvited Can Still Enjoy Capitol

WASHINGTON(UPI) — Even without a special invitation to Jimmy Carter's inaugural, Americans still can come and enjoy hundreds of free public events, including fireworks, square dances, symphony concerts and an all-night jazz, blues and soul session.

The big ceremonial events — box seats at the swearing in and a chance to dance at one of six presidential parties that night — are by invitation only — and only if you've paid $25.

But the inaugural committee announced Tuesday that starting Jan. 18 — two days before the inauguration — there will be hundreds of free events for Republicans and Democrats alike who just want to come to town for the festivities.

Bardyl Tirana, co-chairman of the inaugural committee, said the free events were part of Carter's plan to "make Washington a stage for the celebration of the inauguration."

"President-elect Carter wanted as many people as possible to come to Washington for the inauguration and participate in as many events as possible," Tirana said.

The free events include:

— A fireworks display on the mall, officially opening Jan. 18.

— An all-night jazz, blues and soul session at a Washington church.

— Four two-hour informal concerts at seven of the Smithsonian museums, and 200 musical events at museums and galleries throughout the city.

— Free concerts at the Kennedy Center by the combined Atlanta and National Symphonies directed by Robert Shaw, leader of the Robert Shaw Chorale.

— The "world's biggest square dance" in cavernous Union Station Jan. 21. The first 10,000 people who pick up free tickets will be admitted.

— Folk dancing in Union Station Jan. 18, also open to 10,000.

— The prayer service opening Inaugural Day at the Lincoln Memorial, featuring opera stars Leontyne Price and Sherrill Milnes of the Metropolitan Opera, a 400-member choir, the Atlanta Boys Choir and Dr. Martin Luther King Sr. The committee expects 50,000 to attend.

— Shuttle bus service all over town during the week, especially on Inauguration Day. There also will be free tours of Washington and the Pentagon and Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, leaving each day from the Kennedy Center.

One thing the public will not be able to do is visit the White House, which President Andrew Jackson threw open for his inaugural. "It was never considered because of logistical problems and problems of security," Tirana said.

British Plan Sale To Reds

WASHINGTON(UPI) — The British government plans to sell the Soviet Union a control system for jet engines that has apparent applications to the Russian Backfire bomber, according to Air Force sources.

The proposal involves a $17 million contract between Lucas Aerospace, a British company, and the Soviet government, to design and develop an electronic control system for the Kuznetsov NK144 turbofan jet engine, an upgraded version of which is used on the twinengine Backfire.

The Soviet bomber is seen by U.S. military authorities as a strategic threat. It has been, along with the U.S. cruise missile now under development, the major obstacle to conclusion of a SALT II agreement with Russia, according to U.S. government sources.

Pentagon spokesmen said they would have no immediate comment on the British proposal until they receive official notification of it.

The Lucas contract is ready to be placed before the International Coordinating Committee, otherwise known as COCOM, by Britain's delegate, according to embassy officials here.

COCOM is a group consisting of most NATO countries plus Japan which meets weekly in Paris to monitor technological exports to Communist countries. Compliance with objections lodged by other members against a deal is voluntary.

When the contract was announced Dec. 23, Lucas said only the control system was for use in the Russian supersonic transport, the TU144, which is believed to have been taken out of service because of mechanical problems.

Air Force sources said electronic systems to control fuel and air flow and to monitor performance for the TU144 could also have applications to Backfire engines.

The swing-wing Backfire is close in size and appearance to the U.S. B1 bomber. It has been in production since 1974 and is now being deployed to Soviet long-range aviation units for both overland and naval use. A total of 80 to 90 have been built so far, according to U.S. sources.

Barge Corp. Facing Suit In Del Spill

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — The owners of a barge which ran around in the St. Lawrence River last June, spilling 308,000 gallons of fuel oil, face a $10.34 million lawsuit filed by State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz.

Lefkowitz said Tuesday he filed the claim against the Oswego Barge Corp., owners of the barge "Nepco 140," in U.S. District Court in Utica at the request of state Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter Berle.

While being pushed by a tug, the barge ran aground near Mason Point on June 23, spilling the oil.

The suit for penalties and damages charges that the corporation killed and injured protected wildlife, violated the state's water quality standards, damaged state parks and wetlands in the area, and required the expenditure of $9 million for clean-up operations, Lefkowitz said.

He said the U.S. Coast Guard's expenses incurred in the cleanup were included in the damages sought.

The corporation had previously filed papers with the court seeking an exoneration or limitation on its liability for the spill to about $3.77 million.

World in Brief

Another Liberian Tanker Is Aground

A barge today was pumping oil from the 824-foot tanker Universe Leader, which ran aground in the Delaware River just off Salem, N J., Tuesday night. The ship was carrying a cargo of 21 million gallons of crude oil from Nigeria to a Gulf Oil Co refinery near Chester, Pa So far there has been no spillage reported.

It was the sixth Liberian-flag tanker accident in or near U.S. waters since mid-December. The oil is being removed in an effort to lighten the load and get the vessel afloat, after it ran aground to avoid a collision with another tanker which was heading down the river

...Search Goes On For Lost Oil Ship

BOSTON (UPI) — A 34,000-square-mile area of the Atlantic Ocean was searched Tuesday by U.S. and Canadian aircraft in an effort to find the Panamanian tanker Grand Zenith, which was last heard from last Thursday. The ship at that time radioed it was encountering bad weather south of Nova Ssotia.

The Grand Zenith, with 38 crewmen and 8.2 million gallons of oil aboard, has not been heard of since. The search will continue today, but a winter storm moving up the coast could hamper efforts.

New Members Sworn Into 95th Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With families and friends looking down from the galleries 435 members of the House and 33 new or re-elected members of the Senate took the oath of office Tuesday at the opening of the 95th Congress

A new set of leaders — Howard Baker as Republican leader and Robert Byrd as Democratic leader, in the Senate, and Thomas "Tip" O'Neill Speaker of the House — took over amid the traditional pomp and ceremony.

Coffee Sales Total Is Brazilian Record

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — UPI was told by sources Tuesday the year's gross coffee sales of Brazilian coffee will be in excess of $2.3 billion, more than double the $900 million gross export sales of 1975. The Brazilian Coffee Institute was expected to release official figures for 1976 in a few days.

The boom is being enjoyed by both producers and exporters. But the coffee drinkers and migrant pickers are suffering, the former from increased price and the latter because there is little coffee to pick. And it will take three years for the new trees planted this year to bear fruit.

China Quake Toll Put at 655,237

HONG KONG (UPI) — An earthquake that struck Tangshan province, about 100 miles southeast of Peking, July 28 was one of the strongest recorded in the world in more than a dozen years. And if figures are correct it was the second deadliest in history.

A report attributed to Chinese leaders in the affected province said the quake that registered 8.3 on the Richter Scale killed at least 655,237 and injured more than 779,000.

Calls Cut and State Govt. Rehaul Vital to Future

Carey Asks $200 Million Tax Cut

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — Gov Hugh Carey today proposed a $200 million tax cut and the contraction and reorganization of state government, calling both vital to the state's economic future.

The recommendations in the governor's annual State of the State message to the legislature came less than a month after he announced that the state faced a "$1 billion budget problem." The proposals marked a dramatic turn from the gloomy economic terms he had used in his 1975 and 1976 messages.

His call for a tax cut stripped the Republican legislators of the tax issue as a weapon to use against him in the coming lawmaking session and in his likely 1978 re-election campaign.

Keying the broad economic development plan outlined by Carey was a proposal that the voters be asked next fall to approve $750 million in state borrowing for capital construction projects that would create thousands of jobs.

Carey's message failed to touch on several issues which were expected to be in the forefront of the 1977 legislative session. Among them were details of how he would deal with the "$1 billion budget problem," which only weeks earlier he had warned would require significant cutbacks in state funding for education, welfare, and aid to localities.

It represented a continuation of his administration's efforts to trim down the size of the government bureaucracy, which began in 1975 with the announcement of a freeze on state hiring that to date has reduced the state's 184,000-man workforce by 10,700 persons.

However, the governor did not offer an explanation of whether the continued "contraction" of the state bureaucracy would mean additional layoffs.

Carey promised that the state budget he would present to the legislature Jan. 18 "will reflect the twin commitments of reducing both the size of government and its obligations while bringing tax relief and economic hope."

"For this commitment to be fulfilled," the governor said, "we must acknowledge that our resources are still restricted, our actions are being observed and judged at higher levels of government, and our economic future is literally on the line"

He proposed that the state adopt "a multi-year perspective" and said he would ask lawmakers to establish "a panel on the future of government in New York" which would "assist us as we chart the new direction of a costconscious government .."

A summary of major recommendations:

TAXES: Allow the 2 5 per cent income tax surcharge to expire March 31st, plus creation of a $100 million tax reduction for middle and lower income taxpayers. Adoption of his overall plan would permit future tax reductions for businesses and industry.

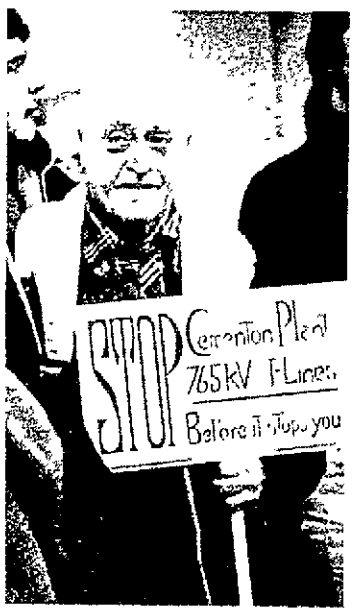

REORGANIZATION: Split up the massive Department of Mental Hygiene into three agencies for mental health, retardation and alcohol and drug abuse. Overhaul a number of smaller agencies and boards

CRIMINAL JUSTICE: Tougher restrictions on handguns, increasing mandatory sentences for violent offenders, pushing for voter approval this fall of court reform amendments calling for elimination of election of high court judges and new disciplinary and administration procedures

ECONOMY: Ask the voters to approve a $750 million bond issue this fall for public works projects, accelerate capital

Anti Nuke Sentiment Runs Nearly 4-1

There's no doubt about where Al Scarpa of Preston Hollow stands.

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman Staff

HUDSON — Sentiment at the initial public hearing on a proposed Cementon nuclear power plant ran nearly 4-1 against the facility, but still unclear at the end of the marathon session Tuesday was whether the unsworn testimony would have any effect on the final decision.

Midway through 8½ hours of testimony from 117 speakers, a staff member of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission confided to reporters that most of the arguments presented at the joint federal-state hearing were on general nuclear power issues that already have been settled on the federal level.

Opponents argued chiefly that nuclear plant operation is unsafe and that radioactive waste can't be effectively eliminated. However, several acknowledged that those arguments wouldn't have much weight as the hearing process turns to months of specifics and technicalities.

The hearing officers face the throng.

"All the significant issues are automatically excluded from this hearing," said Joel Kobran of Kingston, representing the Environmental Task Force of Ulster County, one of dozens of opponent groups sitting through the daylong hearing at Columbia-Greene Community College

Support for the 1,200-megawatt plant, which the N Y. State Power Authority proposes to build on 270 acres of rural-industrial land in Cementon, came chiefly from labor unions and employer groups, who argued for area economic benefits and for national power security against further foreign oil embargoes

"Congress has said that nuclear power plants are okay, if they can be built within certain parameters," said Frederic J. Coufal, chairman of the NRC licensing board, who shared presiding examiner's duties with Edward D Cohen of the state Board on Electric Generation Siting and the Environment.

While there are federal regulations on permissible levels of radioactive leakage from nuclear plants, opponents argued that no level of radiation would be acceptable to them

Should nuclear construction be permitted at Cementon, "there are an awful lot of us willing to put our bodies on the line," said Martin S Carey of Willow, a member of Woodstock Nuclear Opponents

In a written statement of support, former U S Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan called for an end to "pipe dreams" about alternate energy sources and said nuclear opponents are "hurting New York's economy and potential for new jobs and a secure energy supply.

NYSPA, which now operates two nuclear plants, one at Indian Point south of Newburgh, said construction of the Cementon plant would employ 2,100 workers and create a $168 million payroll before it went on line in 1984 Then there would be 206 permanent jobs and an annual payroll of $4.4 million, NYSPA said

The quasi-public utility wouldn't pay taxes on its property, although an estimated $150,000 a year would go to local government in lieu of taxes, NYSPA Chairman James A Fitzpatrick said.

Near Record Crowd Turned Out For Last Chance to Be Heard

HUDSON — A joint federal-state hearing Tuesday on a proposal to build a nuclear plant in Cementon was the last chance for the general public to air its views — but only the first round in months or years of technical arguments

Now that the hearings turn to sworn testimony and technical evidence, most of the spectators will "thin out after two or three more sessions," a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said.

However, nearly 100 so-called "full" intervenors will continue to participate in the hearings as the joint sessions of the NRC and state siting board stretch through the months, possibly as long as mid-1977.

Then the hearings split into separate affairs where the state continues to ponder the environmental compatibility of N.Y State Power Authority's proposal to build the 1,200-megawatt Cementon plant.

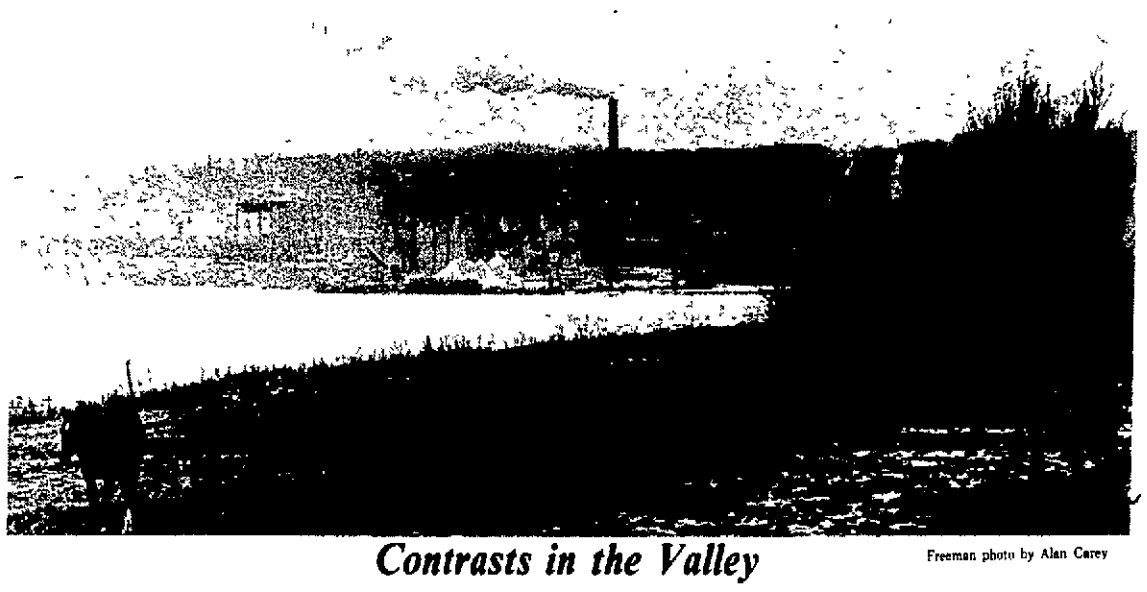

The NRC hearings on the federal level go into an even longer chain of construction permit reviews, environmental statements, safety reviews and hearings, and then another set of procedures on an operating license — all amounting to several years of testimony and argument.

NYSPA has said it needs state and federal approval sometime in 1978 to get the plant operating by 1984.

First Arterial Round Lost, Others Planned

KINGSTON — Two citizens groups have lost the opening court battle in their fight to stop an arterial highway from being built through downtown Kingston, but other legal warfare is being planned.

WHITA, the We've Had It Taxpayers Association, and an ad hoc residents committee known as CCTI, were notified by Albany Supreme Court Judge Edward Conway last week that their petition to delay construction for another public hearing on the project had been denied.

The judge said the appeal for another hearing on the proposed 2.4-mile downtown bypass and bridge should have come several years ago, not several months before construction is scheduled to begin

Mary E. McMickle, WHITA president, said the decision was "disappointing but not unexpected," and she said no appeal is planned Instead, the groups now will head for federal court for a permanent injunction against the roadway as an unnecessary, excessively costly and disruptive burden on taxpayers and residents.

WHITA and CCTI also are conducting a petition drive against the project.

"The battle has been lost — but not the war," Mrs. McMickle said

Woodstock Reopens Welfare Office

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA
Freeman Staff

WOODSTOCK— Ulster County has unexpectedly closed the books on Woodstock's welfare recipients, prompting a hasty move by the town board last night to return them temporarily to the local rolls.

Taken by surprise with a notice Tuesday afternoon that the county Social Services Department would no longer pick up Woodstock's home relief tab, the board agreed last night to temporarily reopen the local welfare office, reappointing supervisor Val Cadden to act as welfare officer. But the board pointed out that it might decide to shut down again, if "some other possible action" appears feasible.

Woodstock closed its office in November 1975, and the county has paid recipients since that time. But the county this week began billing Woodstock property owners for some $38,000 in costs involved through a special chargeback. And the town is now suing the county in an effort to avoid those payments.

Now, however, with the county's welfare doors also closed, board members felt they had only three options:

- Reopen the Woodstock office today and start making payments to those persons determined eligible by the county.
- Pay for only those categories of recipients which the town considers legitimate town expenses, and refuse payment to all others.
- Refuse to open its office and refuse payment to anyone.

That the town chose the first option was based in part on the reaction to the problem of the large crowd attending the meeting. Several people argued that it would be unethical, illegal and morally incorrect not to assume payment, or to arbitrarily strike recipients off the rolls.

"We can't make currently legitimized, innocent people suffer," insisted poet-playwright Alfie Robinson. Others agreed with him. Recipients now being turned away from the county's doors were "victims," they said, who shouldn't be left "cold and starving in the middle of winter." Some criticized the board for not making any contingency plans for just such possible county action.

Others argued that if the town refused to care for recipients, private or community efforts would have to be mounted to set up relief stations in churches or town-owned buildings to feed and house welfare cases. Some residents, recalling benefit fund-raisers held in the depression 1930s suggested similar functions to

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON— The suspension, with pay, of Judge Hubert Richter will cost city taxpayers $40 a day in addition to the money allocated for judges in the 1977 budget.

By a vote of 12 to 2 the Common Council last night passed a measure authorizing the $40 a day payment to Special City Court Judge David Greenwald, Richter's replacement. Greenwald, whose weekly court responsibility has gone from one day a week to six days a week since Richter's suspension last month, will receive the money in addition to his yearly salary of $2,296. The money will be paid for only three months since the state will begin assuming local judicial costs on April 1st. As City Court Judge, Richter receives $9,368.

In casting no votes, Aldermen Clarence Raichle, R-Ward 1 and Joseph Markle, R-Ward 3, both said that Richter should be made to pay back the money he receives from city taxpayers while he is not performing any service. Markle prefaced his vote by saying that taxpayers, facing cutbacks in police and fire service, should not be asked to pay a judge "who goes and gets himself suspended"

Corporation Council Andrew Gilday, in response to a question from Markle, said that Richter would not be required to pay back any money if he should be found guilty of the charges of "intemperate, injudicious and abusive acts" leveled against him by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

Alderman John Finch, chairman of the council's finance ways and means committee, said that Greenwald will be paid from the city's contingency fund

A request from Mayor Frank Koenig asking for authorization to file a preapplication for $300,000 in federal "discretionary" funds received unanimous approval. The money is made available to communities on a competitive basis by

Proud of Her Invite

Texas prison inmate Mary Bradix, 55, proudly holds an invitiation inviting her to the presidential inauguration of Jimmy Carter on January 20. Mary wrote a letter about two months before the election supporting Carter, saying "I can't vote but I can pray for you." She received a note from the president-elect thanking her and then she received the invitation.

Liquor Is Quicker..But

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Drink liquor and you'll warm up, right?

Try coffee or soup instead.

Dr. Gregory Collins, director of the alcohol rehabilitation center Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital and assistant professor of medicine at Case Western Reserve University's Medical School, says alcohol dilates blood vessels in the skin, causing flushing and that warm, tingly feeling at first, but it also means the body is losing heat through the skin.

He says drinking booze also enhances sweating, which also lowers the body's temperature.

Menu 'Imports' Cited

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The city's crackdown on misleading menus marches on.

In the past few months, restaurant owners have been fined for advertising "Louisiana shrimp" they could not prove came from the bayou state, "Idaho potatoes" that never knew a field north of Oakland, and "just caught fish" that were hooked in a deep freeze.

The owners of the Old World restaurants were fined $600.

Their offense: Their "imported" mozarella cheese was imported from Minneapolis.

Area Coffee Drinkers Resigned

KINGSTON — The national consumer kettle may be boiling over about the upward climb of coffee prices, but local shoppers seem more or less resigned to paying up for their morning cup or two.

The better part of 20 or so persons putting coffee in their supermarket shopping carts Tuesday said they were definitely disgruntled by the creeping coffee hike, but only two were contemplating a complete boycott of America's national beverage.

The rest said they would still buy some coffee, even if the price went up to $3 a pound, as the wholesale marketers now say it will.

"Oh,I'll buy it, but I won't drink as much of it," said Mrs. Grant Gilsinger of Chichester. "Some tea will take the place of a few of those cups of coffee." Mrs. Gilsinger said she now buys a pound to a pound and a half of coffee each week.

Andrew Campbell of Kingston says he sticks to instant coffee and will limit himself to two cups a day, but he's not going to give it up completely.

Area supermarkets report that coffee sales have not declined during the past month or so, but Grand Union grocery manager Jeff Sheldon speculated that was probably because of increased holiday entertaining."

A spokesman for Waldbaums added his opinion that shoppers were intelligent enough to make their own decisions and anticipated that as coffee prices rose, sales would fall.

"We have coffee on sale this week at $1.99," said the manager, who declined to be indentified. "We'll sell more than usual, but we're trying to hold the line, we're not making any money on coffee, and sometimes I'm even selling it for less than I pay for it wholesale."

Coffee prices in the area run anywhere from $1.89 on sale to $2.59 for specialized brews such as Sanka or Medaglio D'Oro, but the average cost of a pound of ground coffee is $2.09.

In recent weeks, major coffee companies, including Folger, have announced that their prices would go up to $3.09 a pound because of the early frost in Brazil which wiped out a large part of that South American country's coffee bean crop.

At A&P, where whole coffee beans can still be ground to order at the store's checkout counter, the scent of fresh roasted beans still fills the air, but shoppers seemed scarce on the coffee aisle.

Mrs. Carl Kaminsky of Woodstock said she had drawn the line at $2 a pound, as she searched the shelves for the A&P brand on sale this week with a special coupon offer.

"Yes! I'm a coffee drinker, she added, emphatically, but I'll switch to tea if the price goes any higher...but then I expect they'll raise the price of that, too."

The local store manager declined to comment on the chain's future plans for coffee sales and the regional merchandising director for coffee was unavailable for a statement, either .

The Concerned Consumers of New Paltz had added their voice to that of New York City's Commissioner of Consumer Affairs Elinor Guggenheimer who has asked residents to boycott coffee.

"Coffee drinkers of New Paltz, unite!" says co-chairman Rhea Sharefkin, who is advocating a New Paltz Tea Party as another example of "resistance to unjust taxation, which is what is happening with the price-fixed gouging by the OTEC (Organization of Coffee Exporting Countries) cartel."

"If they can't afford coffee, let them drink tea, or milk or martinis," says Ms. Sharefkin.

A number of coffee companies themselves are offering cents-off coupons to customers, in the hope of keeping costs down until people get used to the notion of premium prices.

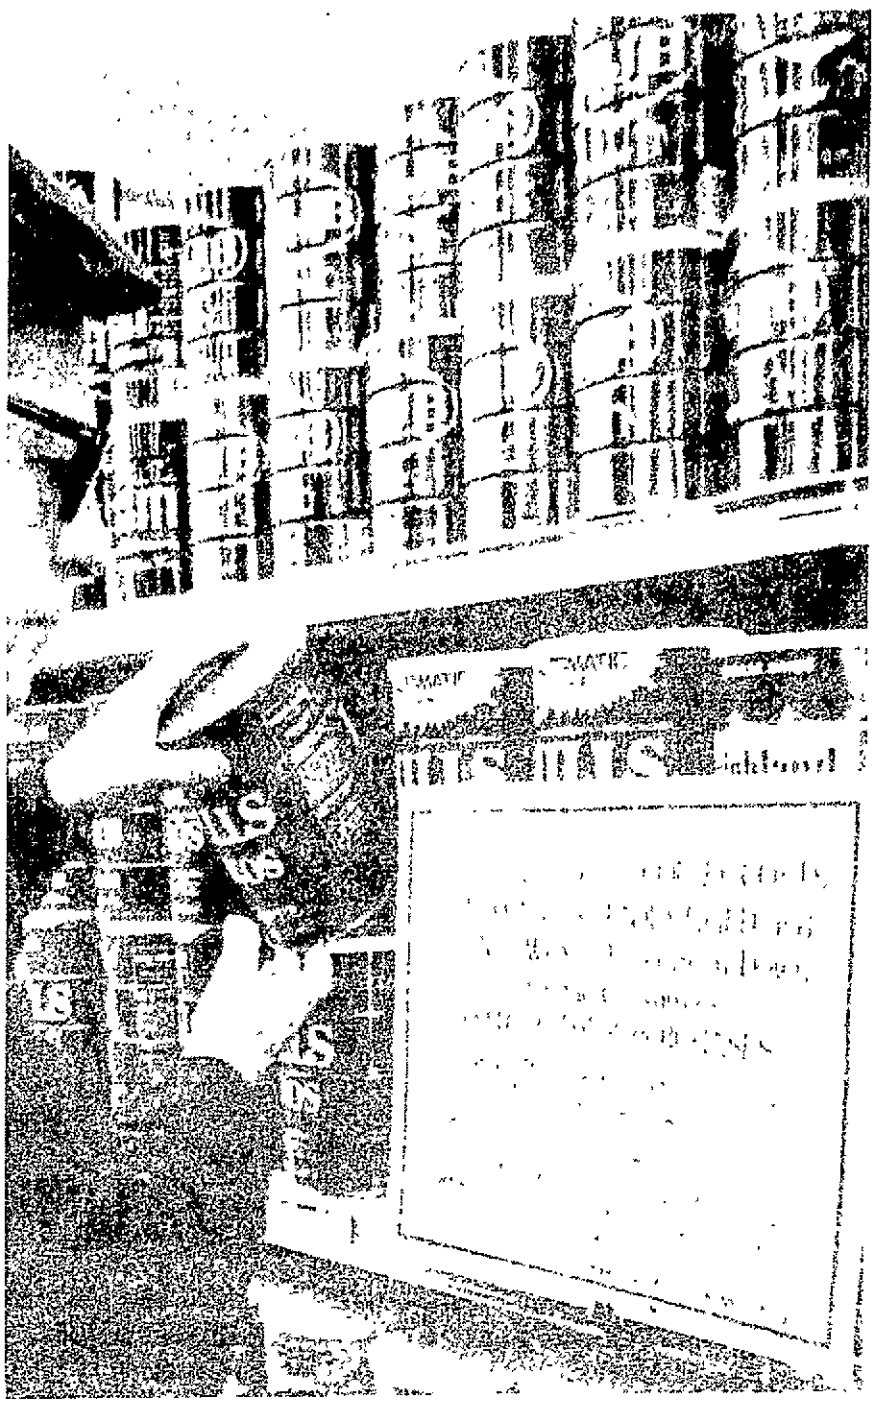

Alfred Zesterman of Kingston stopped into the ShopRite store Tuesday to pick up a can of Sanka, which usually sells for $2.59.

"My wife wrote the company a while ago and last week they sent her six coupons for 50 cents each, so we'll buy it, for now," he said.

Tuesday's Daily Freeman also carried an ad from the Nescafe Company with three cut-out coupons good for large discounts on instant coffee for the next three months.

One elderly gentleman, who came down from Hunter Mountain to shop in the Caldor Plaza Tuesday, said that no matter what the price, "I'll pay it anyway. I haven't got that much longer to live, so I might as well enjoy myself."

He bought three pound of coffee, a bag of bagels and went off to get a haircut in Kingston, "where at least you can find a good barber."

Coffee is on his mind..and also the price.

Brazilian Growers Grew Rich Last Year

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Brazilian coffee growers earned record profits last year and apparently are unconcerned over American attempts to fight high prices with a boycott.

The Brazilian Coffee Institute was expected to release official figures for 1976 in a few days and sources told UPI Tuesday the year's gross sales will be in excess of $2.3 billion.

This is more than double the $900 million gross export sales of 1975 and $1 billion more than Brazil's previous record of $1.243 billion in 1973.

Attempts at launching a coffee boycott to push down the current price in the United States of nearly $3 a pound have been spearheaded by New York City's consumer affairs commissioner.

A spokesman said Coffee Institute President Camilo Calazans had confided to a small group that attempts at boycotting Brazilian coffee "could be good for Brazil."

The spokesman said Calazans told the group: "The fact is the Brazilian government isn't interested in having Brazil continue being responsible for the largest part of international coffee demand. We cannot continue exporting or we will exhaust our stocks in a few months."

The Brazilian boom is being enjoyed by both producers and exporters. Only the coffee drinker and migrant picker are suffering.

Before the July 1975 frost, that destroyed or damaged 71 per cent of Brazil's coffee trees, the price of coffee for domestic consumption in Brazil was about 70 cents a pound. The price now is about $1.90 a pound.

The price the farmer receives for a 132-pound sack has gone up from $33 to $44 to $200 registered this week.

"The reason is there just isn't any coffee around," said a coffee specialist. "Before, they had too much. You couldn't sell it, and the buyers told the farmers what they were going to pay and that was that."

For the same reason, the migrant worker is suffering since there is little coffee to pick. It will take three years for the new trees planted this year to bear fruit and provide work for the nearly 500,000 pickers who depend on the harvest for seasonal work.

McHugh Favors More Public Works Funds

WASHINGTON—Congressman Matthew F. McHugh indicated today that he would support legislation for additional public works funding. At the same time, he expressed strong concern over the manner in which Title I of the Public Works Employment Act of 1976 was implemented by the Economic Development Administration.

"Some form of additional legislation is clearly justified," McHugh said. "There are many good projects that have not been funded and unemployment is still much too high. On the other hand, we must be sure that any new legislation enacted by Congress provides for a fair distribution of funds, with those areas of highest unemployment receiving priority."

"A number of fine projects in district were funded," McHugh said. "However, I am disturbed by the fact that many communities with high levels of unemployment received no funds whatsoever under Title I of the first public works legislation. For example, Sullivan and Ulster Counties, areas with extremely high levels of unemployment within my own district, received no Title I funds, and I know that this problem is not peculiar to my district."

Title I provides $2.3 billion in Federal funds in states and localities for public works projects that could be started quickly and that would have an immediate impact on high unemployment. The projects will be 100 per cent Federally funded.

"We need to know how and why this distribution of funds occurred," McHugh said, "and I believe that the GAO (General Accouting Office) can perform a thorough and competent assessment." The GAO is located within the legislative branch of government, and is charged with the responsibility of determining whether programs are being implemented in accordance with Congressional intent.

"I believe the study will help clear the air," McHugh observed, "and I am hopeful that the findings of the GAO will be a major help to the Congress in preventing what is happening from reoccurring."

McHugh stressed, however, that the present economic situation makes it highly unlikely that there will be enough funds for every legitimate project. "Unfortunately some communities are always going to be disappointed because their projects are not funded. This is understandable since even EDA admits that many of the unfunded projects are worthwhile. However, everyone should realize that there are limits to the ability of the Federal Government to sort all public works projects."

Whispell Figures to Get 40 of 52 City GOP Votes

KINGSTON— As many as 40 of the 52 GOP committeemen in the City of Kingston are expected to cast their votes in favor of Kenneth Whispell when the Republicans meet Friday night to select their new county chairman.

According to city GOP leader Frank Stauble, Whispell's opponent, Michael Catalinotto will get only about six votes from the city, with six city committeemen not voting at all.

"Mike is a nice guy," said Stauble, "but we would feel more comfortable sitting down with Ken. He's a real down to earth, grassroots type of fellow. The type that will roll up his sleeves and loosen his tie when he sits down to talk to you."

The city GOP is not scheduled to meet this week, but Stauble said today he would have no objection to Catalinotto calling a special meeting to address the committeemen.

"I wouldn't stand in the way if he wanted to get the committeemen together to talk to them," said Stauble, "but I wasn't going to call the meeting."

Catalinotto, who earlier this week said he expected to carry the city in Friday night's election, was unavailable for comment.

Point Cadets Face Honor Edict Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Martin Hoffman is faced with making a decision that will determine the fate of dozens of U.S. Military Academy cadets charged with cheating and thousands more who will live with the West Point honor code in years to come.

Army sources expected Hoffman, at a news conference today, to agree to many of the recommendations made last month by a blue-ribbon panel headed by former astronaut Frank Borman, but perhaps to insist on his own views in some cases.

One of the major issues involves the fate of members of this year's graduating class who so far have resigned or been expelled as a result of widespread collaboration last year on a take-home electronics exam, as well as others who were implicated and whose cases are still in process.

Another issue is whether the code, which states that "A cadet will not lie, cheat or steal, nor tolerate those who do," should permit lesser penalties that the present dismissal for minor offenses.

Hoffman's view has been that cadets found guilty in the current scandal should be allowed to apply for readmission to the academy next year, while the Borman panel's recommendation was that those dismissed so far should be reinstated as quickly as possible and investigations of others implicated be halted now.

In issuing 21 recommendations, the panel found that "education concerning the Honor Code has been inadequate and the administration of the Honor Code has been inconsistent and, at times, corrupt."

It called the system "grossly inadequate" and demanded improvement.

The panel recommended the basic provisions of the code be unchanged. In addition to discretion in administering penalties, it proposed cadets have options aside from reporting honor violations by others or being considered violators themselves.

Job Action Possible in West Park

WEST PARK— Teachers at the West Park School in Esopus, working without a contract since July, say they are considering some type of job action if a settlement with the board of education is not reached soon.

The announcement comes in the wake of the school board's rejection of a factfinder's report which recommended a salary increase and the teacher's right to binding arbitration agreements in grievance procedures. According to Jeff Hanna, president of the West Park Teacher's Association (WPTA), the teachers are seeking "only those contract provisions which have been granted to teachers in almost all other districts in our area."

A negotiating session between the WPTA and the school board has been scheduled for today.

West Park is a publicly funded school located on the campus of the St. Cabrini Home in Esopus.

STATE OF THE STATE

Carey Would Restructure Rule

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — A summary of New York State government news.

Gov. Hugh Carey today opened the 1977 session of the legislature with his annual "State of the State" message that included a call for a $200 million dollar cut in income taxes — $100 million by dropping the emergency surcharge and $100 million in actual cuts for middle and low income wage earners.

Carey also told the lawmakers he wanted to restructure state governmet to make it more efficient and attract business, would propose a $750 million capital construction bond issue, push for changes in the criminal justice system, and ask for a panel on the state's future.

ASSEMBLY

Democrat Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut of Brooklyn has been re-elected by majority Democrats for another two years as Speaker, easily brushing back a challenge by Assemblyman Frank Barbaro. Republican Minority Leader Perry Duryea will continue in that role in the Assembly, controlled 90-60 this year by the Democrats. Other leadership posts won't be decided until Thursday and Friday.

SENATE

Republican Majority Leader Warren Anderson says he opposes any increase in taxes and wants to allow exisiting emergency surcharges on income, corporate franchises and banks to expire as scheduled. Anderson outlined his position at a "State of the Senate" dinner for GOP senators that annually precedes the opening of a new legislative session. He also called for closer cost controls by the Carey administration, spending on approved construction projects to stimulate the economy, and better efforts and laws to attract business to the state.

BONDS

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt says the state's Common Retirement Fund has resold $15 million of state bonds at a profit of nearly $1.3 million. The bonds, carrying 7 per cent interest, were resold to Chase Manhattan Bank and Associates, who agreed to pay a premium of $1,228,746. They had been purchased by the Retirement Fund last April 15 after the private money market showed no interest in buying them.

OIL SPILL

State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz has filed a $10.34 million suit against the owners of a barge which ran aground in the St. Lawrence River last June, spilling more than 300,000 gallons of oil. Lefkowitz said the claim was against the Oswego Barge Corp., owners of the barge "Nepco 140." It was filed in U.S. District Court in Utica. The barge ran aground near Mason Point on June 23, 1976.

BLUE

Blue Cross rates for community-rated subscribers in 13 Northeastern counties have been increased by an average of 19.9 per cent, the Insurance Department announced. The plan, which provides hospitalization coverage for 183,347 community-rated subscribers in the area, had requested a 32.9 per cent increase. The new rates were made effective Jan. 1. Blue Cross of Northeastern New York had received a 15.1 per cent increase on Feb. 1, 1976.

EQUAL RIGHTS

Major contractors with the state will be required to have equal opportunity hiring programs under an executive order signed by Carey. The order also established an office of state contract compliance. Under its terms, a bidder must submit an "affirmative action" job plan before any contract is awarded by a state agency for construction or non-construction work of $50,000 or more. Violations could result in termination or suspension of the contract and disqualification from further state bidding for up to two years.

Hundreds of Thousands More Injured

Chinese Quake Killed at Least 655,237

HONG KONG(UPI) — The strongest earthquake recorded in the world in more than a dozen years killed at least 655,237 persons and injured more than 779,000 when it struck northern China last summer, according to a report attributed to Chinese leaders in the affected province.

The July 28 temblor was centered at Tangshan, about 100 miles southeast of Peking, and was one of six major earthquakes to hit China during 1976.

If the figures on the Tangshan quake are correct, it would be the second deadliest in history. It also could mean that a million or more persons may have died in all the quakes in China last year.

Chinese officials have not made public any precise figures on casualties and property damage in any of the six quakes.

But many official reports have said losses were "extremely serious."

The report giving the casualty figures was issued by the Hopeh Provincial Committee of the party and the Hopeh Revolutionary Committee last Aug. 6, according to Nationalist Chinese sources who obtained a text and made it available.

Intelligence sources familiar with such documents said they had no reason to doubt its authenticity.

"According to preliminary statistics," the report said, "in such seriously stricken areas as Tangshan municipaltiy, and Fengnan and Feng-yung, there were 655,237 persons dead. Some 79,000 persons were seriously injured and under emergency treatment, and some 700,000 persons suffered various degrees of injuries.

"In other stricken areas, the number of dead and injured was comparatively smaller," the report said.

Communist Party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, in a major policy speech delivered in late December, also spoke of grave losses and said the Tangshan quake "inflicted a loss of lives and property that is rarely seen in history."

The Tangshan quake registered 8.3 on the Richter scale, making it the most severe recorded in the world since the Alaska quake in March, 1964.

The deadliest quake in history struck China's Shensi Province in 1556 and reportedly killed 830,000 persons.

The city of Tangshan, which had a population of more than one million, was flattened by last summer's quake. So were nearby Fengnan and other smaller cities in the surrounding area.

Peking and Tientsin, the second and third largest cities in China, also were affected by the Tangshan quake. The death toll in those cities was relatively light, so far as can be determined, but millions were left homeless.

Quake Set Deadly Record

By UPI

The death toll of 655,237 in northern China's earthquake last July 28, which Nationalist Chinese sources say has been reported by provincial officials in China, would make it the second deadliest in recorded history. Other quakes noted for their intensity and the damage they caused include:

— Shensi province of China, January 1556: Killed 830,000 persons, the largest number of fatalities on record from an earthquake.

— Tokyo and Yokohama, Japan, September 1923: A reading of 8.3 on the openended Richter scale. The quake and subsequent fires destroyed most of both cities, killing an estimate 200,000 persons, the second largest number of fatalities from an earthquake in the 20th century.

— San Francisco, April 1906: Richter reading estimated at 8.3 (the scale had not been devised). The quake and subsequent fire were blamed for an estimated 700 deaths.

— Alaska, March 1964: Richter reading 8.5. A total of 114 persons were killed.

— Guatemala, February 1976: Richter reading 7.5. Authorities reported more than 23,000 deaths.

Area Burglaries Under Probe

SHAWANGUNK — Four burglaries in Shawangunk and one in Esopus are under investigation by the Ulster County Sheriff Department.

The entries were all reported Tuesday to police who noted that the Shawangunk burglaries occurred within a two-mile area.

A $145 tape player and stereo head phones valued at $9. were reported taken from the residence of Dorinda Dembroski, RD 3, with entry gained by prying a lock on a cellar door.

A $200 color television set was removed from a Wallkill Avenue residence, reported by Robert Cariffe.

Lorenzo Miranda of Wallkill Avenue reports that thieves entered his residence through an unlocked front door and took an $85 radio-tape player, a wallet containing $50, two $50 bills, two rings valued at $100 each and a bank containing $17.45.

The Dominick Cotugno house on Homa Road, Shawangunk, was entered through a side door. A portable television was removed as was a $280 chain saw, $140 shotgun and $55 pellet gun.

The Esopus burglary was reported by a neighbor of a New York City man who owns the summer residence on Old Post Road.

Deputies report that the front door was kicked in, a medicine cabinet was ransacked, but nothing was reported missing at this time.

Woman Cabby Robbed

A woman taxi driver in Ellenville was forced out of her cab on Route 32 by a black male passenger she was taking to Monticello Tuesday night. The 5-foot ten, 175 pounder relieved her of her wallet containing about $25, stole the taxi and hasn't been seen since, according to Ellenville State Police who are investigating.

Madolin Fitch, 43, the operator of the taxi, picked up the suspect in Ellenville and was taking him to his destination when he grabbed her by the back of the neck and forced her to stop the cab about three miles west of Ellenville and ordered her out. No weapon was displayed at the time, police said.

The wanted man has short black hair, brown eyes and was clean shaven.

Guards Assaulted

A Lloyd man, who is a guard at Greenhaven State Correctional Facilty, was one of two guards who were assaulted Tuesday with a steel rod wielded by a prisoner during a changing of shifts Tuesday afternoon.

John W. Hentschel Jr., 35, of Route 292, Lloyd, sustained a fractured skull and is in satisfactory condition today in Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

The other guard, Gus Weiford, 30, of Route 52, Fishkill, also suffered a fractured skull and is in satisfactory condition at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Fishkill State Police report that criminal action is pending against the inmate, Gonzalez Medina, 30, who allegedly assaulted the guards.

According to police inmates were milling around outside their cellblocks during a change of shifts. As Hentschel and Weiford were preparing to leave, they walked through a group of inmates. Hentschel was struck first and Weiford, who was a few steps behind, was then struck repeatedly by Medina who was in possession of the steel rod, which appeared to be part of a window. The inmate was subdued by two other guards who came to the rescue

"dramatize the situation and give other towns a moral route to emulate."

Still, there was some minority reaction that the town would bankrupt itself if it re-shouldered the welfare burden. And others felt Woodstock would prejudice and jeopardize its current lawsuit against the county by even a temporary reopening of its office.

But the strong undercurrent that surfaced through the crowd was that emergency aid was now necessary because of the county's refusal to pay. "It's a different ball game if nobody accepts the responsibility of payment," said councilwoman Jane Van De Bogart, "and interim relief must be provided."

The concensus of most present was that it would be "unthinkable from an ethical point of view" not to reopen the Woodstock office. And, for the board to decide on its own who could and could not be eligible for payments was equally unacceptable to most present. While the board has made clear it would hope to eliminate students, transients, and those with medical excuses that prohibit them from working from the rolls, several residents insisted such action would leave the town open to lawsuits by the state, county, and individual recipients themselves.

The board had indicated a strong desire not to vote on either option last night. The matter, members felt, was "too serious" to act on, on such short notice.

But, in the face of public reaction that the town had no alternative , legally and morally, but to take care of its own— and with the insistence by many that taxpayers had a "right" to observe the board's deliberations in the matter, if not to participate in its vote on final options, the board opted for an on-the-spot decision.

The local welfare office was reopened this morning. But the board could revamp its strategy almost immediately and close the office again within a few days, if the majority of members opt to continue their commitment against payments.

The office was closed originally to protest abuses in the system and as a meansto fight for reforms. Said Mrs. Cadden, "We've been fighting this battle for more than a year, and our final decision will, in essence, be a reform bill. We need time to discuss the eventual strategies involved with counsel, and to divulge information in public on those strategies which might hurt our current lawsuit."

The board will meet again with its attorney in executive session on the matter, and will hold another special, public meeting Thursday night to reconsider options. Whether it will continue to keep its welfare office open for temporary relief or close it down again will be decided at that time.

"We're still trying to figure out the best way for the town," said Mrs. Cadden, "and we're not ready to decide on a situation so complicated.

To date, the county has authorized payments to only 12 recipients, but Mrs. Cadden expects additional authorizations this week. Woodstock currently has more than 40 people on its rolls, which could mean expenditures in January alone of some $8,000.

And, once again, the supervisor pointed out that many of those are in their mid-20s, have medical excuses, and have lived in Woodstock for only a few months

Woodstock, however, is not alone in its problem. Ulster County Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer has advised all town supervisors that the county is closing out all town home relief cases everywhere. That poses similar situations in other towns, most notably in Saugerties, where more than $100,000 in proposed welfare funds were deleted from the 1977 budget.

Recipients there, advised by the county to go to the town for their money, were already lining up in front of his door, said town supervisor Frank Greco. The Saugerties board, which met last night for a reorganization meeting, stuck strictly to that agenda, and welfare matters were not discussed at all.

the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 and will be allocated by the government based on such considerations as the amount of substandard housing in a given community and how the money will be used in relation to that situation. As a result of two recent public hearings, the city will use the money, if received, to upgrade the water distribution in the Broadway East/Ponckhockie area of the city.

The council, after some discussion, passed a measure authorizing the city to collect water rents not paid by city residents in 1976. Because of a state law, passed in 1899, the city water board is not empowered to collect the delinquent money, and every year the council must approve a resolution authorizing the city to make the collection. Aldermen Phillip De Cicco, D-Ward 9 and Donald Quick, D-Ward 6, both voted against the measure, with Quick saying that "it's not right for the city to be a collection agency."

De Cicco cast the lone dissenting vote on a local law that raises the mileage allotment for city employes from nine cents to 15 cents a mile. De Cicco said he felt that "now is not the time to be raising things." Alderman Titus Sims, (R-Ward 13), said he shared DeCicco's feelings, "but since the city employees are paying from their own pockets, I feel the increase is justified."

The move is expected to cost taxpayers about $1,000 to $1,200 a year.

The council's Finance Ways and Means committee formally received a copy of the mayor's proposed $8.9 million budget for 1977 and last night's meeting was recessed, rather than adjourned, to give the aldermen time to consider the spending plan

By early today, the heaviest snows extended through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, though portions of Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas and eastern Montana also were hard hit. Snow also clogged portions of Iowa.

Seven to eight inches of fresh snow hit southeast of Lincoln, Neb., and Mexico, Mo., reported 6½ inches of snow. Kansas City, Mo., reported five inches of snow. St. Louis had three inches.

Five-inch snowfalls clogged the Illinois communities of Springfield, Decatur and Quincy, while Peoria reported three inches Scores of high school basketball games were postponed or canceled Tuesday night because of the storm.

The storm headed northward for Wisconsin and up to three inches of snow was forecast for portions of the Chicago area today

Bitter cold spread over the Rockies and the northern Plains early today in the wake of the powerful snowstorm and sub-zero temperatures were the rule.

South of the snow belt, freezing rain put a glaze on streets and highways

'Family' Made Problems Worse

Dear Editor:

The "Family of Woodstock" supporters certainly seem to be using partisan political gimmickry in taking dead aim at Woodstock Supervisor Val Cadden and the majority of the Woodstock Town Board ever since the Ulster County legislators rejected any public funding for "Family" in the final vote on the 1977 county budget.

May I clarify the situation by saying that the majority of the legislators voted as they did after weighing all the aspects, and expecially after hearing from the usually silent majority — the taxpaying public — in enough numbers, pages and pages of signed petitions which asked the legislature to eliminate any public funding for "Family" in the county budget in order to avoid creating a levy of additional expenses on the communities and other agencies to handle the problems created by "Family's" activities.

If you will remember, there was no provision for "Family" in the tentative Ulster County budget; hardly the work of Val Cadden and the Woodstock Town Board. Then, too, a combination of legislators from both sides of the aisle voted in committee to ask reinstatement, at which time I voted against it. Again, hardly the work of Val Cadden and her Town Board. Thirdly, my stand against funding for "Family" could hardly be blamed on Val Cadden and the Town Board of Woodstock. I was elected by the Town of Saugerties voters, I always research subjects before taking a stand, and I never forget the county's overall well-being when making a decision.

What the "Family" supporters have their heads in the sand about is that the solid citizens of the communities in this county feel that "Family" is an organization which is attracting and serving transient alcoholics, drug addicts, the mentally ill, runaways, and dropouts. This brand of clientele does not make a positive contribution to the community, but only uses services.

Dollars which are in short supply for such vitally needed services as public saftey, education and transportation should not go into promoting these transients who are already putting an extra burden on the state, county and local law enforcement officials, the judicial system, family court, and the District Attorney's office, and now "Family" wants to expand into other communities as well as Ellenville.

And, what with all of the "Family" supporters' high minded outpourings, why didn't "Family" include in its tour to the County Legislature's Public Health Committee what has become known as "Family's " flophouse — where a room is supposed to contain six or seven mattresses, with no separation as to male or female, young or old, and its so-called boarders may sleep there for up to three days.

The majority of citizens of this county are not in favor of setting up a beacon with a neon sign saying "Family — Come and Get It, and Line up at the Trough."

Local Bank Shows Brotherhood

Dear Editor:

Recently, I visited one of our banking institutions, and I was thoroughly inpressed with the beautifully decorated greens, the colorful arrangements and the loveliness which permeated the area. As I approached the teller's counter, I saw a beautiful bronze and enamel Menorah, which to my surprise had drippings of colorful wax. The Menorah was not an ornament, but a symbol of light.

For those of you who may not know what a Menorah is, may I briefly tell you that it symbolizes the light which burned for eight days for the Macabees after they restored the Temple following their victory for freedom against overwhelming odds. In my opinion the bank was truly expressing the feeling of brotherhood.

That same evening I had the pleasure of meeting Mr Kugelman, and I commended him on the lovely gestures of good will. He explained that he had researched the story of Chanukah in depth to learn how this holiday is celebrated by the Jewish people. I learned from Mr. Kugelman, that during Chanukah, a candle was lighted each day at 4:30 p.m. by the employes, until all eight candles had been lit.

In these times of tension, stress and struggle, it's wonderful to know, that regardless of our faith, we're all striving to achieve good will toward men, and a sincere feeling of brotherhood.

I'm sure that I express the feelings of many, that to appreciate and understand each other is the basis for Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men.

Thank you for allowing me to express my sentiments on this lovely gesture.

Job Loss Begins Welfare Woe

Dear Editor.

I have been born and raised in this area. I have held jobs, collected unemployment insurance, even public assistance here. Recently, I lost my job. I applied for public assistance. The following paragraph was taken verbatim from the letter I received about my case decision.

> Your application has been denied for the following reasons:
> Wage clearance from your employer indicates that you lost your last position due to your own negligence, therefore we are denying your case as per DSS reg 385.6 and sanctioning you for 75 days beginning 11-24-76 (DSS reg 385.7). In the mean time your needs may be met at the Ulster County Home.

I have a home and I refuse to be uprooted! I do not pay a large amount of rent, nor do I run up unnecessary medical bills, of course I have to eat to live. As I mentioned earlier, I have received assistance before, so I know living on public assistance is a hassle. You pay for every check you get with the mental anguish of trying to live on the meager sum they allot you. But I do not have a job and I would like to continue living.

In order to live, I will have to obtain affadavits from people who had spoken with my employer about my being fired. Presently, I am dealing with Mid-Hudson Valley legal services at 286 Wall St. We'll end up in court for a fair hearing regarding my case. Right now I am ineligible for unemployment insurance and might have to deal with the courts concerning it, also. After contacting the aforementioned legal services and literally starving for over a week, I was able to obtain food stamps. I need medical attention and I have no funds for this.

If I had a child, or was expecting a child, I would be receiving public assistance today. Unfortunately I am a 21-year-old, white, single woman who made a mistake at her job, was fired and is being denied help from her community. The very community I was brought up to respect! I don't know how I can respect a community where there is no concern for PEOPLE!!! The Ulster County Department of Social Services disgusts me with its lack of concern and air of indifference.

Funds are exhausted. Civil service workers are unsatisfied with their pay and benefits. I can understand a reluctance to spend more money. I applaud the crack-down on welfare fraud and worthwhile efforts to cease unnecessary spending.

With my low rent and food stamps, the county would be saving money by maintaining me in my own home, rather than at the county home. It puzzles me that our social services system would spend so foolishly when they're in their present condition.

This is why there is no money to help those who really need it!!! This is why I must struggle through our court system while searching for a job. It isn't easy. I have no car or money for buses and cabs. I must walk everywhere and as I stated earlier, I need medical attention. This is our friendly, supportive community/government and I'm ashamed to be part of it!!

Fred Dubois Always Helpful

Dear Editor:

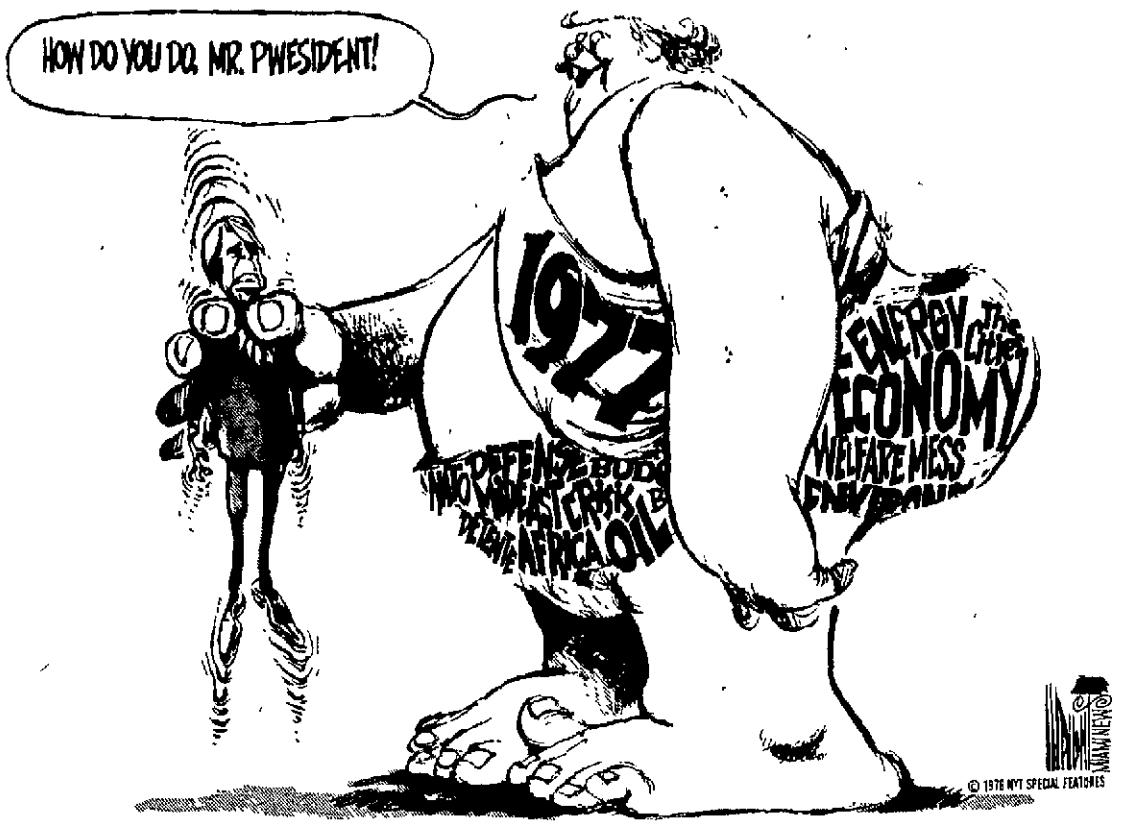

I want to thank publicly Fred Dubois, our dept ig county treasurer, for the help he gave me personally in looking up material in the treasurer's archives in the County Office Building. He always stood ready to assist any person who entered his office seeking help, offering his help cheerfully and patiently.

Somehow, to me, Fred Dubois never seemed like an elected official. He worked quietly, efficiently and effectively, dedicated to serving the public and doing the very best job possible, shunning controversy and the limelight. He acted like one of the staff in the office, not like the boss. And that office enjoyed an esprit de corps that I've not witnessed in many places, testimony to the high esteem in which his staff held him.

Fred, you were a refreshing difference in the ranks of office holders. If only more of your caliber sought public office! Enjoy yourself in whatever you tackle next.

The Econo-Crime Capers

WASHINGTON - The varieties of economic crimes and our ways of catching the transgressors are wonderful, bewildering and long past rational understanding. Take the case of the University of Minnesota versus the National Collegiate Athletic Association. A federal court has granted the university an injunction stopping the NCAA from suspending the university teams from post-season play and lucrative televising of its games.

What did the university do? It refused to suspend three players who are alleged to have sold basketball tickets at a higher price than the one printed on them. This is the heinous crime of scalping, only it isn't so heinous when businessmen do it and instead of selling tickets they're selling wheat. Then it's called buying low and selling high, and if you're very successful at it everybody will call you Mister, idiot journalists will interview you about topics on which you are even more ignorant than they, and Jimmy Carter may appoint you Secretary of the Treasury.

Nevertheless, ticket scalping is almost universally frowned on and is illegal in most places. Legislators and prosecutors who spend their idle hours denouncing price controls on steel or hogs or molybdenum will go out and try to put people in jail to enforce price controls on tickets of all unlikely things. As for the NCAA, if that organization were not erroneously connected with higher education in the public's mind, its efforts to control the wages of professional athletes playing for schools would be a clear violation of the Clayton Act. As it is, we all write articles applauding the NCAA for working so hard to keep the standards up. What standards? What's up?

Another econo-crime is shylocking or loansharking. Again, people who swear by laissez-faire enthusiastically approve of putting people in jail for breaking the price-control laws by charging high interest rates. Like the price of tickets, the price of money ought to be governmentally administered even when the price for nothing else is.

You can't anticipate what will and what won't be regarded as an econo-crime. Take the recent case of Matthew Feldman, the president of the New Jersey State Senate. The luckless Feldman pleaded guilty to the crime of commercial bribery. Specifically he admitted he had agreed to pay the representative of a restaurant chain 2 5 per cent of $240,000 worth of business that Mr. Feldman's family-owned liquor company had anticipated getting Why this should be a federal misdemeanor surpasses understanding. Mr. Feldman's customer may have a beef with its own employe if he pocketed the 2.5 per cent discount instead of passing it on to the management. It's not clear that's what happened but, if it did, why should it be against the law? Purchasing agents do take money under the table from suppliers all the time and their bosses have a satisfactory remedy. They can sue them to get the money back. In any event Mr. Feldman finds his name linked with the word bribery in the headlines and his political career in jeopardy because he offered a rebate or a discount to the wrong person at the wrong time.

The most important econo-crime case of the year was the sentencing in Chicago Federal court the other day of 47 cardboard box industry executives to prison terms and fines. This is unheard of. The last time a businessman found guilty of breaking the anti-trust laws was sentenced to pull some time was in 1960 The heaviest punishment handed out by Judge James Parsons was only 60 days and a $35,000 fine to R. Harper Brown, president of the Container Corporation of America, the people who've specialized in those tasteful institutional ads that feature great sayings by political philosophers like Alexis de Tocqueville and Aristotle. So much for the idea that when you learn knowledge you gain virtue. If your kid goes to Harvard he may know a lot, but they can't make a law-abiding citizen out of him.

The executives aren't going to do very hard time. The judge has said they can go to their offices during the week and go to jail on their weekends. That may ruin a certain number of golf games but even that may not come to pass since the judge has said he'll hear motions to mitigate these already-less-than-onerous sentences. It happens every time with white-collar crime. Even though all the evidence we have suggests that jail is indeed a deterrent to white-collar crime, if no other, the judge looks down at that defendant and he sees himself standing there awaiting the judgment of doom. Still it gives one a yummy feeling just to read that a chap named R. Harper Brown has been sent to the cooler.

In the last session of Congress the punishments for criminal violations of the anti-trust statutes were beefed up. If you believe people like Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter on how important the free market pricing system is to our national prosperity, then what these men did was very, very serious. By abolishing the free market in their industry they helped inflation and therefore unemployment and so could be said to have contributed to everything bad from crime to spreading disease, although whether violating the Sherman Act really has such terrible consequences is at least debatable.

Yet here these men commit the most serious of econo-crimes and get away with it. At least a bank-robber, who does far less harm to the society, would think he got away with it if he only got 60 days.

Maybe we should concede the judges aren't going to jail businessmen for this kind of behavior and make the punishment fit the crime. When businessmen collude and conspire to fix prices they are repudiating their own free market faith So perhaps firms convicted of these acts should be punished by being placed under price control, control administered by a court-appointed functionary. The functionary would be instructed to set the prices "in the public interest," and that, for most executives, would be a fate worse than jail.

The Carter Threshold

WASHINGTON—Leroy Simpkin entered the psychiatrist's office and went directly to the couch.

"What seems to be the trouble?" Dr. Heinrich Applebaum asked.

"I just discovered I have a low Jimmy Carter Threshold," Simpkin said nervously.

"Could you explain exactly what you mean?"

"He isn't even in the White House yet and I can't stand reading about him any more. I don't know how I'm going to get through the next four years."

Dr. Applebaum started to take notes. "When did you discover you had a low Carter Threshold?"

"I saw him on the cover of Time last week as 'Man of the Year' and I decided not to buy the magazine."

"I don't think that's too peculiar," Dr. Applebaum said. "There have been many weeks I haven't bought Tine magazine."

"It isn't just Time magazine, Doctor. I can't stand reading about Carter in Newsweek either—or in the newspapers. I'm sick and tired of seeing him on television. I've never admitted this to anyone, Doctor, but I'd rather read about an oil spill in Delaware than Jimmy Carter in Sea Island, Ga."

"Why do you think you feel this way?"

Simpkin stared at the ceiling. "I believe I know everything I want to know about Jimmy Carter. I know about his family, I know about the public school his kid is going to, I know about his brother Billy, I know about his mother Lillian, I know what Rosalynn eats for breakfast and what Amy eats for lunch.

"I know what Carter thinks of God, and what God thinks of Carter. I know what's in his heart. I know about his finances. I know where he stands on the issues. I know everything about his peanut business. I can't take it any more. I've had it up to here."

"You seem overwrought with Carter stories," Dr. Applebaum said, "but this is quite normal. The press has nothing to write about until January 20th and they're giving everyone large doses of Carter. But it won't last forever. After the swearing-in you may find your Carter Threshold is higher than you thought and you'll start wanting to read about him again."

"I wish it was true, Goctor, but it's hard to believe. Do you know if I have the choice of reading about Carter or Richard Nixon, I read about Nixon?"

"That's very interesting."

"What's even worse is that I'll read a story about Mayor Beame before I'll read one about Carter."

Applebaum whistled. "Beame before Carter!"

"The other day I found myself choosing an article on Howard Hughes' will over one on Jimmy Carter's plans for a tax cut. An I sick, Doctor?"

"No, you're not sick. You're the twelfth patient I've had today who said he can't take one more story about Jimmy Carter. You all seem to be suffering from what we doctors call a 'Carter syndrome' or, to put it in layman's terms, 'an overdose of Plains, Ga.'"

"Is there a cure?" Simpkin asked plaintively.

"We haven't got one yet," Dr. Applebaum said. "Our only hope is that Congress will pass legislation that you can't get a story about Jimmy Carter or any member of his family without a prescription. The trouble now is that all the Jimmy Carter stories are sold over the counter, and many people like yourself with a low Carter Threshold have become allergic to them."

"Help me, Doctor," Simpkin begged. "If I see one more magazine cover with Jimmy Carter on it I'm going to do something drastic."

"Let me ask you something," Dr. Applebaum said. "Didn't you have the same feelings reading about Gerry Ford?"

Simpkin looked puzzled. "Ford? Who's Gerry Ford?"

FDA Ignores Sour Evidence

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration is sitting on scientific evidence that saccharin, the artificial sweetener used by millions, may cause cancer.

The evidence is so persuasive that many FDA officials are privately alarmed at the agency's failure to act. Saccharin should be taken off the market, they say, because of several tests showing it causes malignant tumors in the bladders of animals.

The tests are as conclusive, scientists have told us, as the evidence linking cyclamates and cancer. Cyclamates have been banned from the market.

Americans consume about five million pounds of saccharin each year In diet drinks, ice cream and puddings. It is also widely used as coffee and tea sweeteners.

Yet the FDA has established from its own tests that a disturbing number of animals developed malignant bladder cancer after consuming saccharin. Other studies indicated that saccharin caused cancer of the uterus in female animals.

The FDA is supposed to protect the public from dangerous foods and drugs. Yet the agency won't issue warnings against saccharin until more tests have been conducted. These will take at least until 1978.

Our sources compare this attitude to the FDA's inaction on Red Dye No. 2, which the agency left on the market for 15 years despite evidence that it causes birth defects, genetic damage and cancer. The dye was finally banned this year.

The General Accounting Office, after a confidential investigation of its own, warned the FDA that the continued use of saccharin "could expose the public to unnecessary risk " Nevertheless, an FDA spokesman told our associate Howie Kurtz that no action will be taken against the sugar substitute until further tests are completed

One possible reason was suggested by a top FDA official He conceded that the huge commercial sales made the FDA reluctant to ban saccharin. In other words, the agency appears to be more concerned about corporate losses than the public health.

In the case of another artificial sweetener, called aspartane, test results allegedly were falsified and distorted to get it on the market The FDA at first authorized aspartane to be sold to the public but withheld it from the market after the discrepancies were discovered

Independent scientific tests showed that aspartane caused brain damage in animals. The manufacturer, G.D. Searle and Company, wants to use the sugar substitute in breakfast cereals, puddings, beverages, gelatins and chewing gum.

When some animals died in test experiments, Searle substituted the blood of other animals for the dead ones, investigators have alleged. There were also significant discrepancies between Searle's date and the summaries the company submitted to the FDA, according to the government investigators. One pathologists's study, for exanple, was allegedly edited to make the findings appear more favorable.

The case against Searle is being referred to a grand jury for possible prosecution A spokesman said the company strongly disagrees with charges that it altered its data but couldn't comment directly because the matter is under investigation.

FDA investigators discovered the alleged alterations by examining just a few of Searle's files. Yet the agency has now turned its investigation over to an independent group of scientists who, incredibly, will be paid by Searle.

Thus the alleged corporate culprit will finance the investigation of itself. "If you believe that Searle is going to pay all this money and not have some say in the results, you're kidding yourself," one angry FDA official told us

An FDA spokesman insisted that the company would not interfere with an objective investigation. But Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D.-Wis.) would disagree. Allowing the drug companies to pay for the testing of its own products, he told us, leads to unreliable or biased results.

PIPELINE POSTSCRIPT: The Interior Department is investigating our report that the federal official overseeing the construction of the Alaska pipeline, Andrew Rollins, accepted favors from the Morrison-Knudsen construction conbine. The company is building a 135-mile segment of the pipeline.

Rollins requested the investigation himself after we asked him about the chartered plane rides, free fishing vacations and other favors he had accepted from Morrison-Knudsen.

We have now learned that the House subcommittee on Energy and Power, headed by Rep. John Dingell (D.-Mich.), encountered considerable flak when its investigators inspected the pipeline construction last summer.

They questioned federal inspectors about the pipeline. But the inspectors' superior in the Interior Department, Jack Turner, ordered then to write down all the questions they were asked and all the answers they gave. He demanded that these written reports be submitted to his office.

This had an "intimidating effect" on the federal inspectors, subcommittee sources complained.

In confidence, some inspectors informed the subcommittee that Turner has frustrated their efforts to make pipeline contractors comply with federal laws. For example, he rescinded the authority of the inspectors to halt the work if they found a contractor breaking the law.

Footnote: The outspoken Turner acknowledged that he required the inspectors to take notes on their interviews with subcommittee investigators. But he denied this was a form of intimidation and said he had supported the inspectors. "The Dingell staff," he grumped, "conducted themselves in a very unprofessional and unethical manner."

Oh, for A Benevolent Despot

The farther I move into this experience we like to call life, the more I think we ought tc be governed by a benevolent despot.

The first time I heard that term I thought it meant a more comfortable railroad station. But the professor explained that despot meant "dictator" and benevolent meant "for the common welfare."

We tried other forms of government and found them lacking. Monarchy didn't work becuase each king became more and more fond of silks, satins, caviar, and prettier Antoinettes.

All of which takes money, so the king raised the taxes. Simple.

After a while the king became so accustomed to silks and satins that he couldn't stand to look at anyone except the nobility, and soon he couldn't tell the difference between his peasants and the hogs they were raising for slaughter. They all began to look so much alike.

When a neighboring king sneered at the family name, the king simply went to war to defend his honor and find out how bright his generals were. It was like a duel, except that instead of two individuals it was two nations, and other people did the fighting. Mostly the peasants, because, as I said, the king was unable to tell them apart and wouldn't miss them when they were gone.

And if the generals weren't too clever, the king could surrender whenever he saw fit, usually when the storehouse ran out of caviar, silks, or Antoinettes.

After surrendering, he was allowed to keep his throne, because the enemy king was his half-brother and didn't want to make him too uncomfortable. The victor's daughter was due to marry the loser's son the next year anyway, so he had to give the fellow a chance to raise his taxes again to buy some new threads for the wedding.

The curious thing is that monarchy as a form of government lasted a very long time. Longer than we have records, I think. But then in the 1700s some malcontents (who wanted to make a living while they worked) complained that they didn't have enough bread.

So Antoinette, instead of printing some more, said "Let them eat cake" (well, that's what they said she said). That frosted them miserably, and some of them declared independence while others went out and constructed a guillotine.

The 1700s were kind of tough on the nobility. Many survived, though. Even in World War I you could find some of them honorably cutting each other down.

Some peole tried democracy. In a land with unlimited resources democracy works fine, except for the native inhabitants, who have to be shifted around whenever their land becomes valuable. IF we didn't shift them around, they'd just live there and let the land alone. Well, we can't have that. If it weren't for oil wells and gold mines, no one would know how to drive a Cadillac. Or a Mercedes.

Actually the Greeks tried democracy way back in B.C. But it was a limited democracy because the lower classes and slaves were not allowed to participate.

The upper classes had the notion that they were able to think better than the others. They were right, in a sense. That's how they got to be the upper classes.

They figured out how to work less, which allowed them to think more. This enabled them to figure out how to work even less and take even more time with their thinking.

In our democracy it's different. Here the upper classes work themselves into early graves, while the lower classes are requested to work. They draw unemployment and welfare checks and think a lot.

That's an inaccurate statement. Actually, the leisure classes in our democracy are at the very top and the very bottom of the economic ladder. All the others in between work and tell you they wish they didn't have to.

The leisure classes, both top and bottom, are unhappy because they aren't working. But they regard each other with suspicion and never speak.

The others in between work continually, creating problems for everybody. They pollute the streams, land, and the air with their industry.

They spill crude oil into the oceans. They build and operate nuclear power plants before they know how to handle radioactivity. They dump poisonous wastes inot rivers. They build mountains of garbage and tear down natural mountains to get at coal and oil.

And that's why we need a benevolent despot. Can't you see hm sitting in WAshington, grandfatherly beyond his years, balancing inequities, each of his decrees beneficial for all mankind?

"Shipping oil in huge unwieldy tankers shall cease."

"You may build one nuclear power plant for experimental purposes and no more until further notice."

"You may not tear down the Rocky Mountains for oil-bearing shale."

"This factory shall be shut down until its effluent problems are solved."

"Yes, you may have an air conditioner. No, you, twenty-five and healthy, may not."

See how beneficial he could be? He could put things in their proper persepective, put greed and haste in check.

The problem is, benevolent despots are hard to find. There are plenty of candidates, but their resumés don't come up to snuff.

Every time I run into one, he's either wearing silks and satins or developing a better guillotine. And there goes my faith in him, Blooie!

To Expand Rome Mill

ROME, N.Y. (UPI) — Revere Copper and Brass Inc. announced Tuesday that it will undertake a $5 million-plus expansion program in the spring at its copper and brass rolling mill here.

Charles R. Getty, group vice president, said the expanded facilities would create 80 jobs when in full operation. He said he hopes to have the new facilities "in production by early 1978."

The expansion will increase the mill's continuous casting capacity for copper and alloy cakes, including cupro-nickel, Getty said.

Campus Attitudes Are Undergoing Change

The Sixties haven't quite come to an end on the college campuses, where the late Mao Tse-tung, murderer of millions, is still acclaimed a hero by the radicals. At Princeton, they ran ads in the Daily Princetonian in the fall praising Chairman Mao and urging undergraduates to "live like him... dare to struggle... dare to win."

Regardless of lingering Maoism, however, it is no longer a straight-line movement to the Left in Academia. Despite "the campus disdain for football prowess at Princeton" (the quotation is from "Prospect," a publication put out by "concerned alumni"), the football players, seeking a return to glory, are now saying "to hell with the fans, we'll win this for ourselves." While this is a little more self-centered than winning it for Princeton, at least they aren't,trying to win it for Mao.

Meanwhile, at Harvard, the dean of the faculty of Arts and Sciences, Henry Rosovsky, has been busy with an overhaul of the liberal arts program to re-establish a structured curriculum, one that will reinstate the dread word "required" in certains parts of the catalogue. If all goes as Dean Rosovsky hopes, no student will be able to leave Harvard without an "informed acquaintance" with "the major religious and philosophical conceptions of man" and "some of the important scholarly, literary and artistic achievements of the past." Smorgasbord education which has allowed students to pick and choose their courses without reference to "a common basis for intellectual discourse" is on the way out.

True enough, there are cross-currents besetting the effort to make the student acquainted with "other cultures and other times." Though Dean Rosovsky argues quite convincingly that "it is no longer possible to conduct our lives without reference to the wider world," the proportion of students enrolling in modern languages has been steadily falling throughout the country. Alphonse Juilland, chairman of the Department of French and Italian at Stanford, says the problem will get worse in the next few years. With a sharp jibe at his own institution he says, "Disparagement of foreign language study by Stanford and other universities has played a decisive role in reducing foreign language study at the secondary level... if universities like ours do not care for foreign languages, high schools most certainly will not, either."

One senses that the coming battle on the campuses will center less on traditional Left-Right political confrontations and more on the Isolationist-Internationalist issue. The isolationist has no need for German or French. Spanish, maybe, if he lives in those sections of the country where the word "Hispanic" has its own minority connotations.

There was a time, before the development of the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile and the long-range bomber, when Isolationism represented a serious poltical response. But with Soviet nuclear submarines infesting the "Atlantic moat" and Cuban mercenaries dominating Angola where the building of a Soviet naval base is imminent, Isolationism is no longer realistically tenable. It is this insight that gives Eisenhower College in the little upstate community of Seneca Falls, New York, a special appeal. There was no "general education" at the West Point of Eisenhower's undergraduate days, but Ike's experience in World War II and as President of the U.S. convinced him of the need for at least one college that would make World Studies the meat and potatoes of its general curriculum.

The Eisenhower World Studies program offers a four-year overview of cultures both East and West that becomes paradoxically intensive in its attention to detail, beginning with ancient times and ending not only with modernity but with "future realities and Utopia." Along with the general education in the origins of peoples and cultures and their emergence into the modern world, the Eisenhower curriculum insists on a "concentration" that is something more intensive than a standard major. And a requirement in a "lifetime activities program" in the field of physical education must be met.

Alas for hopes of perfection, Eisenhower College offers foreign languages as "an opporunity rather than a requirement." This concession to permissiveness strikes one as a little odd in a college based on a "world oriented curriculum."

The Lighter Side — Dick West

The Woman of The Year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the transition period is nearly over, President-elect Jimmy Carter is still looking around for qualified women to fill jobs in his administration.

If I were on his transition team, I would recommend that a high level position be given to Elaine Edwards, wife of the governor of Louisiana.

A few weeks ago, you'll recall, it was reported that Mrs. Edwards received a $10,000 gift from a South Korean businessman in 1971 when her husband was a member of Congress.

Her husband, however, said he didn't know anything about it until the Internal Revenue Service began investigating his income tax returns in 1974.

I suppose the first question that sprang into everyone's mind was: how did she keep him uninformed?

Seems unlikely she would have pinned an envelope containing 10 grand inside her bra. Unless it was a $10,000 bill, or two $5,000 notes, her husband surely would have noticed she had suddenly become more convex.

However she did it, anyone, male or female, who is or ever has been married surely will agree this was a supreme triumph of spousemanship.

At some point during a marriage, nearly everyone comes into possession of a little extra cash. Maybe he or she wins the office football pool. Maybe there is a sudden increase in the egg money. Whatever.

Anyway, the spouse in the chips may try, or at least be tempted to try, to keep the other marital partner in the dark with respect thereto.

Usually, it is not necessarily a question of concealing the windfall. It is more a matter of not revealing it.

The difference between concealing something and not revealing it may be a subtle distinction, but that is the stuff of which marriages are made or broken.

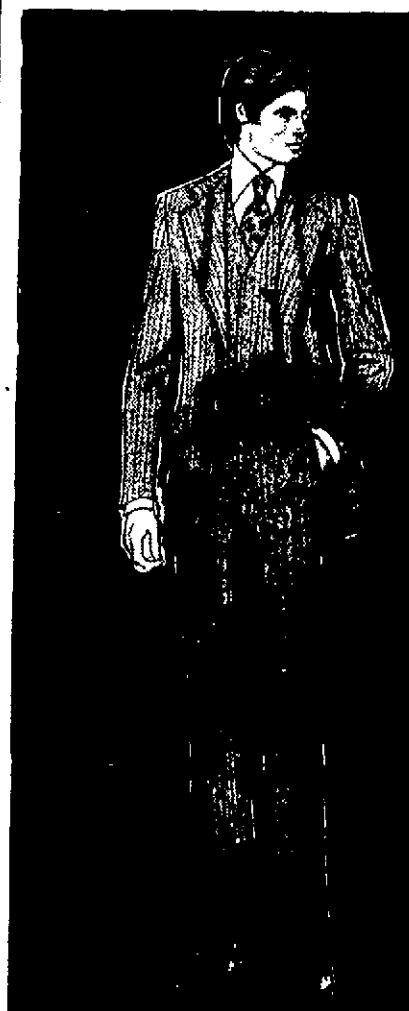

And it is also the stuff that is the very essence of government.

Morever, the reason for nondisclosure may be entirely honorable. That's not saying the motive would stand up under cross-examination. But in the mind of the withholder, it could be a case of justifiable non-revelation.

Ethical or not, anyone who has been through the experience is well aware that almost inevitably, in one way or another, one's spouse gets wind of the windfall. Usually within 24 hours or less.

"The bank will be happy to approve our loan as soon as we can prove we really don't need it."

Nuke Foes: 'We're Willing To Put Our Bodies On The Line'

While most of the plant's output would go to the Metropolitan Transit Authority, chiefly to run New York City subways, some power would go into a statewide network that would include 100,000 kilowatts for Columbia and Greene County, NYSPA said.

Opponents argued that NYSPA's first statements at prehearing conferences in September said all the power would go to the MTA, and they wondered why the potential market had been changed.

Another metropolitan utility, Consolidated Edison, recently announced it would study sites in Ulster and Dutchess Counties for as many as four nuclear plants to serve downstate needs.

The fact that these plants are planned for distant rural areas instead of congested areas they will serve could be an admission of safety hazards and potential loss of lives, opponents argued.

"Why is the plant being built way out in the country?" asked Joy J. MacNulty of Woodstock, who said utility and labor claims of nuclear safety "can't be believed."

The youngest witness was her son, nine-year-old Bill MacNulty, who likened the hearing to a boxing match where he planned to "bet my last dime" on the opponents.

The noisiest moment in an otherwise orderly session came when Edward Van Acker of the Albany-area plumbers and steamfitters union likened the reaction of nuclear opponents to "the hysteria of savages witnessing a solar eclipse."

His remarks then were drowned out by stamping from the audience, which at times reached an estimated 500 persons as the crowd milled in and out of the college gymnasium.

Among Ulster County witnesses were:

• Jane Van DeBogart, Woodstock Town Council member, who said sabotage or "inevitable" human error with nuclear wastes would be a danger for hundreds of thousands of years, while the plant itself would be useful only 30 or 40 years.

Anxious faces in the crowd

Woodstock and more than a dozen other area communities, as well as four county legislatures, have passed resolutions calling at least for a moratorium on nuclear power.

• Joseph M. Roglieri of Kingston, president of the four-county Building and Trades Council, who said his six years of independent study have convinced him that nuclear power is "the safest, cheapest form of energy we have today."

• William E. Fischang of Saugerties, who supported nuclear power as the only means to reducing the nation's reliance on foreign oil.

• Jean Smalldon of Kingston, who called for energy conservation instead of nuclear power, for which uranium supplies are as subject to international embargo as oil, she said.

• Jack Walter of Saugerties, head of Irate Consumers of Ulster County, who charged that all the utilities are exaggerating their need for increased generating capacity.

• Fred Steuding of Kingston, who feared nuclear power means "hopeless contamination" in future generations.

• Saugerties poet Aleda Schoonmaker, who read one of her works warning that "the sea is dying, the earth will be ashes."

Bill McNulty, right, gives testimony.

• Joseph R. Bundy of Kingston, an engineering teacher who blamed the opponents for economic recession and said residents near nuclear plants elsewhere in the country have no qualms about safety.

The joint hearings will continue Monday in Albany, where the federal and state agencies will decide on witnesses and data to be examined on technical issues.

Another Tanker Accident

By UPI

In the sixth Liberian-flag tanker accident in or near U.S. waters since mid-December, the 824-foot ship Universe Leader ran aground in the Delaware River Tuesday night. No spillage of the tanker's 21 million gallon oil cargo was reported.

A barge pumped oil from the Universe Leader today in an effort to lighten the load and get the vessel afloat once again

The accident occurred off Salem, N.J., about 20 miles down river from Marcus Hook, Pa., where another Liberian-registered tanker, the Olympic Games, ran aground Dec. 27 and spilled 133,500 gallons of oil

A Coast Guard spokeswoman said the Universe Leader became stuck in mud about one mile southeast of the entrance to the Chesapeake-Delaware Canal, en route to a Gulf Oil Co. refinery near Chester, Pa.

She said the Universe Leader ran aground while avoiding a collision with another tanker, the Texaco California, which was heading down the river

"The grounding resulted from a meeting situation in the channel," the spokeswoman said. The weather was clear at the time.

The ship was carrying 21 million gallons of crude oil from Nigeria, the Coast Guard said

The accident was the sixth in three weeks involving tankers registered under a Liberian "flag of convenience." The first was on Dec. 15, when the Argo Merchant ran aground off Nantucket Island, Mass., leading to a 7.6 million gallon oil spill called the worst ever on the Atlantic coast.

The Sansinsena exploded two days later in Los Angeles harbor, killing nine men and injuring more than 50. The Oswego Peace spilled 2,000 gallons of oil in Connecticut's Thames River on Dec. 24. The Daphne ran aground in Guauanilla Bay, Puerto Rico, Dec 29 but was refloated without a spill.

In the spookiest tanker episode, a Panamian-registered ship, the Grand Zenith, carrying a Chinese crew of 38 and 8.2 million gallons of oil, has been missing for six days in the North Atlantic.

The Liberian-flag tanker accidents have sparked high-level governmental investigations into the overall question of their safety Proceedings are also underway in the Argo Merchant and Olympic Games mishaps

IBM In Cabinet

NEWTON, Mass.(UPI) — The 20-member board of directors of IBM will furnish three of President-elect Jimmy Carter's cabinet members, the trade paper Computerworld reported in this week's edition.

The weekly newspaper, which publishes U.S., European and Asian editions, said Harold Brown, chosen as secretary of defense, has been an IBM director since 1972; Patricia Roberts Harris, chosen as secretary of Housing and Urban Development, has been an IBM director since 1971; and Cyrus Vance, chosen as secretary of state, has been an IBM director since 1969.

Computerworld also said Carter's choice for attorney general, Griffin B. Bell, is a partner in the law firm of King and Spalding, which often represents IBM in the Atlanta area. As head of the Justice Department, Bell would be in charge of prosecuting the government's eight-year-old antitrust suit against IBM.

Money Doctors Growing

NEW YORK (UPI) — You still can't look up a money doctor under that title in the Yellow Pages, but the profession is growing — and attracting young people to its ranks.

Even though it's about a decade since the term first came into use, and it is widely known in business circles, you generally hear about a money doctor from one of his "patients." In the phone book, he's likely listed as a financial counselor, a securities dealer or a life insurance agent.

For the uninitiated, a money doctor is a skilled generalist who handles all his clients' money problems the way a medical general practitioner looks after the family's health.

"The number of money doctors keeps increasing," says Terence Herzog, partner in Elms Capital Management, a corporation, which advises 32 clients with fortunes totaling $250 million and manages directly portfolios of about $8 million.

The other partner is Bruce Lipnick, who founded Elms. It's a curious linking of two externally dissimilar young men from Brooklyn.

Lipnick has a couple of university degrees and formerly was a teacher. Herzog is a high school dropout who enlisted in the Navy at 17 and spent some adventurous shipboard months in the Antarctic in the Navy's "Operation Deepfreeze." Later he worked in Wall Street, first for a cocoa bean broker, then for 10 years as a securities salesman.

"We met on the subway quite by accident, discovered we had similar ideas and decided to go into business together," Herzog said.

"We began with one client who paid us $1,000 a year to manage a $50,000 portfolio," said Lipnick. "We first tried advising small institutional clients and ended up doing a lot of work for little money before we realized it is the rich individual who really needs a money doctor."

The first money doctors were men with long and wide experience who depended for compensation strictly on the fees and commissions they earned by handling stock and bond trades and tax matters for clients.

Herzog and Lipnick, however, operate strictly on professional fees unrelated to individual transactions.

Super-Savings Plans

Greyhound Cuts the Traveling Costs

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—How does a ticket costing not more than $50 to anywhere in the U.S. sound?

If you like that, how about $99 for nine days of unlimited travel? Well, now it's possible.

Greyound Lines have announced three new super-savings plans to make bus travel the best buy around.

1.—A $50, one-way ticket to anywhere in the U.S. served by Greyhound.

2.— A $33, three-day round-trip excursion.

3.—A $99, 9-day Ameripass for unlimited travel over Greyhound's routes throughout the U S. and Canada.

The three super-savings plans went into effect Jan. 3 and will be good through March 32 31.

In addition, all three plans will offer a Greyhound bonus ..that one child under 12 can travel free for each adult fare purchased.

The $50 one-way ticket to anywhere in the U.S means precisely that, according to Charles D. Kirkpatrick, vice president-marketing who said " Greyhound serves just about every point in the U.S., coast-to-coast and border-to-border."

The ticket is good for two months and permits free stopovers en route so long as travel is out of state and is maintained on the most direct route between origin and destination.

Typical of the savings· Miami to Seattle, $50 on Greyhound compared with $220 by air coach and $188 by Amtrak. Boston to San Diego, $50 on Greyhound compared with $211 by air coach and $200 by Amtrak. New York to Los Angeles, $50 on Greyhound compared with $202 by air coach and $173 by Amtrak.

The $33, three-day round-trip excursion is the perfect cost-conscious travel solution for long weekends and other short, out-of-state trips The plan provides that all travel must be completed within three calendar days. It's Greyhound answer to the ski weekend, the winter carnival, the get-away-from-it-all "Great Escapes" weekend.

The $99, nine-day Ameripass permits unlimited travel over the more than 100,000 miles of Greyhound routes throughout the U.S. and Canada. Leisurely, unlimited stopovers are permitted and the Ameripass comes with a host of discounts on hotels, sightseeing and meals.

In addition to the new Ameripass, Greyhound still offers its full range of Ameripass tickets: 15 days for $165, one month for $225 and two months for $325. The nine-day, 15-day and one month Ameripasses may be extended at the rate of only $11 for each extra day so that a Greyhound traveler can custom-design, custom-price the plan that bst fits his travel needs.

Accused of Air Piracy

Crotians Go on Trial Upstate

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A federal grand jury in Buffalo begins hearing evidence today in the case of five Croatian nationals accused of hijacking a TWA airliner that was en route from New York City to Chicago last September.

U.S. District Court Judge John R. Bartels dismissed air piracy charges in Brooklyn last month against the five who forced the pilot to fly the plane to Paris because the actual hijacking took place over Western New York.

U.S. Attorney Richard Arcaro said Bartels "found no venue in New York's Eastern District (Brooklyn) as to the air piracy counts, so we're alleging that in view of that decision the jurisdiction would be here."

Bartels indicated in his decision that he agreed with the government that there were strong policy considerations in favor of the government's argument that the case should be tried in Brooklyn.

"Unfortunately," he said, "Congress did not so provide."

After Bartels' decision, U.S. Attorney David Trager, who was handling the case in Brooklyn, filed an 18-page brief with the Second U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals charging that the Croatians were "judge shopping" by trying to get the case moved to Buffalo.

He also said the air piracy law says a crime can be prosecuted either in the district in which it is committed or in the district where it began. But he noted that Bartels accepted the arguments of the defendants that a crime has not begun so long as the defendants have a chance to change their minds.

Despite the appeal, Arcaro said the government decided to attempt to reinstitute the charges here because of a new law that require cases to be tried in six months, or defendants are to be freed without bail.

"I would expect that this case would move quite rapidly once the grand jury decides because of the speedy trial questions," Arcaro said. But he added, "We don't feel we want to limit the scope of the grand jury investigation."

Arcaro said he expects that the grand jury probe "will last a few weeks."

The defendants also face murder charges in New York City in connection with the death of police officer Brian Murray, who was killed trying to defuse a bomb they allegedly left behind in Grand Central Station.

Authorities said the device was left in a subway parcel locker by the defendants before they boarded the flight.

They are charged with commandeering the TWA flight with 92 passengers aboard last Sept. 10. After refueling stops in Montreal and Iceland, the plane flew to Paris where the suspects were arrested.

Israeli Press Is Blamed for Suicide

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — A son of Housing Minister Avraham Ofer has accused the Israeli press of driving his father to suicide, and a leading newspaper suggested the investigation of the dead man's affairs be "reconsidered."

Ofer's funeral was scheduled for today in the regular section of the Kiryat Shaul cemetery near Tel Aviv despite a Jewish rule that suicides be buried apart from other people. The government announced the site following consultations with the chief rabbinate of Israel.

The 54-year-old minister, who shot himself in the head on a car parked along an isolated beach, was under investigation on charges of mishandling funds of Shikun Ovdim, the Labor movement's housing company.

Before his death, he had demanded a clear statement of the charges against him, but complained he received only repeated promises of answers with "a few days."

"You journalists killed him," one of Ofer's sons shouted at reporters who came to the family home.

In an editorial, the prestigious English language Jerusalem Post questioned the manner in which the investigation had been conducted.

"Ofer's suicide cannot be considered simply in terms of a personal tragedy," the Post said.

"The investigation which prompted it will have to be reconsidered, not simply in terms of his death, but also in the light of his final protestation of innocence and his confidence that the truth will redeem him."

The Post and other newspapers called for investigators to issue a full report on their probe.

In a related development, Asher Yadlin, onetime director of the Labor movement's sick fund who was recently jailed on suspicion of bribery and fraud, was hospitalized with an apparent gall bladder attack.

Ofer was one of the "doves" in the Israeli cabinet and a long-time ally of Prime Minister Rabin, who resigned two weeks ago but remains in office in a caretaker capacity until he can form a new government or new elections are called.

Treat of Freeman Is State Director

SYRACUSE — Richard L. Treat, vice president and publisher of the Daily Freeman, has been reappointed to the board of directors of the New York State Publishers Association, the state association of daily newspapers.

Richard L. Treat

John L. Heselden, senior vice president, staff and services of the Gannett Company Inc., Rochester, is the new association president, succeeding Robert J. Danzig, who has taken over the general manager of the Hearst Newspapers in New York City.

Long associated with the newspaper business, Treat came to the Freeman as an assistant general manager in November 1966 and was named general manager in April 1967. He was named publisher in December 1970.

Treat, a graduate of Middlebury College of Vermont, began his newspaper career in 1941 in the advertising department of the Boston Post. After a three-year stint in the Navy, from which he was discharged as a lieutenant, he rejoined the Post, serving as classified advertising manager and retail advertising manager until 1956.

He and his wife Mary resident in Kingston and they are the parents of two sons, Richard L. Jr. and Donald J.

Fire Dispatcher Test Slated for Kingston

KINGSTON— An open competitive examination for the post of fire dispatcher, with an annual salary range of $7,468-$8,565, will be held by the City of Kingston Municipal Civil Service Commission on Saturday, Feb. 5, 1977.

Candidates must have been a legal resident of Ulster County for at least four months prior to the date of the exam and a resident of Kingston at the time of the appointment.

A high school diploma or an equivalency diploma are considered minimum qualifications unless the applicant has had satisfactory business, clerical or military experience which can be substituted for high school graduation.

The will cover knowledge, skills or ability in such areas as operation of a two-way radio, record keeping and clerical aptitude.

All interested must file their application by Jan. 17.

Raffaldi Is Elected

WEST HURLEY — Former West Hurley Fire Chief Frank Raffaldi was recently elected to fill a vacancy on the West Hurley Board of Fire Commissioners.

He replaces Millard Rowe, a 20-year veteran of the board who did not seek another term. Rowe served the majority of his years on the board as its chairman.

Seals Campaign Progresses

KINGSTON — Carrying the responsibility for the success of the 1976 Christmas Seal Campaign locally is the American Lung Association, Hudson Valley, Inc. The campaign has now passed its half-way mark and its Ulster County chairman, Rose Marie Feeney, R.N., Kingston, noted that it is appropriate during this holiday season to respond to the appeal with a contribution.

"It's not too late to use Christmas Seals and contribute," she said, reminding Ulster County residents the Lung Association is a not-for-profit voluntary health agency with the major goal of preventing and controlling all forms of lung disease, including emphysema, chronic bronchitis, asthma, lung cancer, and tuberculosis.

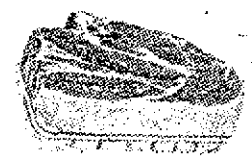

"It's one way any one individual can help stem the tide of harmful cigarette smoking, ease the pain of those suffering lung ailments, wage war against the community's air pollution, and finance research vitally needed to uncover still newer ways of helping lung patients," she said. She urged all those who have not done so already to contribute to the Christmas Seal campaign now underway.

Contributions may be sent to the Association's computer headquarters at White Plains. All donations by Ulster County residents will be returned to the Kingston office for use in this area. Further information is also available locally by writing or phoning the Kingston office, 124 Green Street.

Raquel Returns To Ron

BY ROBIN A. SLOAN

Q: You mentioned Johnny Carson's ex-wife recently and I wondered what kind of alimony she gets from Johnny. - D.L., Miami.

A: Well, when told that her ex might quit "The Tonight Show" and run for public office, Joanne asked: "What will happen to my $100,000 a year if he does that?"

Q: What's new with Raquel Welch's love life these days - is she still involved with some Rio playboy? - L.L., New Haven, Conn.

A: Raquel's Latin lover lasted about as long as any season in the sun. Nowadays, she's back with old flame, dress designer Ron Talsky, but Raquel admits she's so busy concentrating on her career she doesn't have that much time for any man in her life. Alas, her career hasn't been exactly busting lately and the last genuine sex goddess of the movies has had to content herself with TV guest spots on variety shows and her nightclub tours on the summer stock circuit. No big film roles are being offered to her at the moment.

Q: Lee Grant is always on TV talk shows explaining how much she wants to direct movies. Will she ever get the chance? - O.L., Trenton, N.J.

A: No one is more determined than Lee and she's already completed a short for the American Film Institute based on an Ibsen one-act play, starring Susan Strasberg. The advance word is that the $20,000 film is so good, actress Grant will soon be known as director Grant and be offered a major film.

Gossip Beat

Q: I read in a gossip newspaper that Ethel Kennedy is going around with Gene Kelly. Is this really true? - P.S., Brooklyn

A: No it isn't. What happened was the big Hollywood agent, Irving Lazar, gave a dinner for Ethel when she was in Los Angeles. Lazar asked Kelly to escort her. That's the total relationship - one dinner.

Q: What's happened with Debbie Reynold's daughter's attempt to become a big movie star? - S.M., Minneapolis

A: Carrie Fisher has a major role in a new science fiction epic called "Star Wars," made in England last year by George Lucas, who gave us "American Graffiti." Debbie's still smarting over Carrie's bit role in "Shampoo," and that rough language she used, but Carrie is independent and listens to older friends, like actress Joan Hackett, more than she listens to her famous mom.

Q: I keep reading conflicting reports about the long-standing love affair between Cybill Shepherd and director Peter Bogdanovich - is it off or on? - E.L., Scottsdale, Ariz.

A: It's been off and on several times but right now it is hot, which is more than can be said for Bogdanovich's career as a director. His latest, "Nickelodeon," will not be the comeback smash he needed after the flops of "Daisy Miller" and "At Long Last Love." So he and Cybill have decided to leave Hollywood and move back to Peter's hometown, New York City, from where he'll act as executive producer for a film or two for another director, and maybe even renew his own frustrated, unsuccessful acting career. Cybill, meanwhile, will still be looking for good roles for herself while indulging her intellectual pursuits with classes at New York University or Columbia University. Peter and Cybill also have come to the conclusion that their Svengali-Trilby image was bad for both careers and from now on, they'll not work together - at least not for some time to come.

Q: Now that David Niven has found himself a whole new career as a successful writer is he thinking about giving up acting? - A.S., Raleigh, N.C.

A: Niven won't abandon movies if he can help it. As he says, "Actors never retire; they just get offered fewer and fewer parts."

Soviet Union Reports Record Grain Harvest for Past Year

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced today a record harvest of 223.8 million tons of grain for 1976.

Soviet Agriculture Minister Mesyats told a news conference that 1976 was a difficult year because of the disastrous grain crop of the previous year.

"But we had a good crop, 223.8 (metric) million tons of grain, for 1976," Mesyats said.

The previous record Soviet grain crop was set in 1973 when a total of 222.5 million metric tons were harvested.

Asked about prospects for 1977, the Soviet agriculture minister said, "There won't be any catastrophes because we have a good material base. Everything will be all right."

The agriculture minister said the Soviet Union had stockpiled enough grain to meet its needs for 1977 but would keep its agreement to purchase a minimum of six million tons of wheat and corn annually from the United States for the next four years.

"We have laid in stock enough grain to satisfy all of our needs," Mesyats said. "However, what has been foreseen by the agreement — we'll take it all."

The drought-ravaged 1975 grain crop totaled only about 138 million metric tons and forced the Soviets to purchase some 14.5 million metric tons of grain from the United States.

During 1976, the Soviets bought approximately 6.6 million metric tons of grain from the U.S.

Mesyats also said the Soviet Union harvested 80 million metric tons of potatoes last year, falling far short of the target of 100 million metric tons due to frost damage.

He said the sugar beet harvest totaled 85 million metric tons.

Views Shake Claudine

Claudine bundles up on Aspen street.

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — Singer Claudine Longet visibly tensed at statements by prospective jurors who described a souring love affair between the French-born entertainer and pro skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

"I think she probably did it," said Jonathan Gardner, a bearded restaurant worker. "It seems like it has already been determined for a lot of people and I have been influenced by the media and the talk going around."

Miss Longet, wearing a full-length rabbit coat and flanked by her attorneys in the chilly courtroom, glared at Gardner and became increasingly solemn as several jurors indicated they believed she was guilty of felony manslaughter.

She faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $30,000 fine if convicted of the manslaughter charge in the shooting of Sabich last March 21 at the mountain chalet they shared in Aspen.

Gardner, a long-time admirer of Sabich who frequently watched the former World Pro Cup winner practice on the nearby slopes, was given preliminary seating after the prosecution and defense were assured he could be impartial.

Ski patrolman John Erstpalmer, questioned next, said he had asked Sabich two weeks before the skier's death to judge a contest where "the girls take off their clothes and we give them money or skis or bindings."

He quoted Sabich as refusing the invitation by saying: "No, I would have to get a divorce to come to the party." To the suggestion that he bring Miss Longet, Erstpalmer said Sabich replied: "No, I wouldn't have any fun."

Miss Longet reacted to the comments with a look of surprise and a glance away from the audience. Sabich, who had shared his luxury home with the singer and her three children from her marriage to singer Andy Williams, had reportedly asked Miss Longet to move out by April.

Carla Stroh, who was questioned after a juror had been removed Tuesday on a peremptory challenge from the prosecution, said she had met the couple 10 days before Sabich's death at a party given for the French ski team at her mother's home in Aspen.

"There was not a great deal of communication between them," said Mrs. Stroh. "He (Sabich) came about half an hour earlier because she (Miss Longet) had to feed her children. The French girls were taking up his time when she arrived."

Fourteen prospective jurors have been chosen so far.

Sawyers Knew They Wouldn't Fold

Colavita Becomes a Believer

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

SAUGERTIES—When Saugerties High School failed to win a single Dutchess County Scholastic League basketball game in the 1975-76 season, Sawyer fans had little to cheer about. So they made up for it Tuesday night in one glorious burst as Saugerties surprised Poughkeepsie, 80-71, in the league debut for both squads.

"I don't remember the last time we beat Poughkeepsie," said a happy Fred Seither, long-time athletic director. "I think it was during the 1970-71 season." It was.

In defeating the Pioneers, the Sawyers served notice upon the rest of the league that they are not to be taken for granted any longer. They raised their overall record to 3-2 and dropped Poughkeepsie to 1-3 overall by blowing the Pioneers out in the opening quarter, then tenaciously hanging on in the second half as Poughkeepsie mounted a furious comeback.

First-year coach Dick Colavita was pleased with the way his team refused to fold in the clutch. "We had the big lead, it shrunk to three points, we got rattled a little, but these kids came back," he said. "They showed poise at the end, hit those two backdoor layups when we needed them. I'm happy.

"My guys were convinced they were going to win," Colavita added. "They told me, 'Don't worry coach. We're not going to fold. We're going to win.' I believe 'em!"

SPORTS TODAY

The Sawyers thrilled their long-suffering fans with an awesome first quarter in which they outplayed Poughkeepsie in every phase of the game. The Saugerties man to man pressing defense shut down the Pioneers, whose few shots were bad selections. Saugerties also controlled the boards and the Pioneers got themselves in early foul trouble as Saugerties led, 28-14, after the opening quarter.

Senior forward Jim Hackett, who got 12 of his game-leading 32 points in the first quarter and had 20 by the half, led the way. There was one incredible 49-second stretch in which Saugerties rammed in 10 points to build its lead up to 22-8. Hackett had a steal, field goal and free throw, Tim Cole contributed five points and center Marc Becker, making his first start of the season, hit a bucket. Jim Hitchcock also had a theft, and three steals followed by three buckets happened within 22 seconds.

Poughkeepsie calmed things down in the second quarter, outscoring the Sawyers, 17-15, to trail 43-31 at halftime. The Pioneers scored 10 of the final 12 points of the quarter as they started quietly creeping back.

Poughkeepsie used a pressing defense and excellent outside shooting, particularly by Lance Dawkins and Vin Lowndes, to draw within three, 59-56, with 26 seconds left in the third quarter. But failure to hit free throws cost it a chance to get even closer, and the Sawyers led by five entering the final quarter.

Hackett, who sank 14 of 16 free throws, hit six of seven from the charity stripe in the fourth quarter to help Saugerties slowly pad its lead to as much as 11 points with 3:50 remaining. But the Pioneers, who were cold in the middle of the quarter, hit some more clutch outside shots and drew within four, 75-71, with 1:10 left.

Kevin Chiarot hit three free throws and Chris Swech added two to wind up the game for Saugerties.

Poughkeepsie shot an awful 36 per cent (31 for 87) from the field and also did poorly in free throws, sinking nine of 21. The Sawyers shot 46 per cent (27 for 58) and hit on 26 of 39 freebies. The Pioneers won the battle of the boards, 60-50.

"There might be a happier guysomewhere tonight," summed up Colavita,"but I don't know where."

Poughkeepsie won the junior varsity contest, 83-39.

Raiders Put Running to a Purpose

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Webster drew a distinction between hustle and bustle. So did Coleman High and visiting Red Hook during their UCAL basketball confrontation Tuesday night.

Both teams did a lot of running up and down the court, but it was the Raiders who put it to a purpose as they walked (ran?) off with an 84-70 victory to inch within a half game of first place in Division II.

They ran like jackrabbits for about half the first quarter— everybody did. With the score something like 4-4, Red Hook coach Rod Chando had seen enough. He called time out.

"You stink," he told his sweating troops. They didn't argue.

Thus chastised, the Raiders returned to the fray with eyes a little sharper, passes a little better. They pulled out to a lead that reached ten points early in the second quarter. Coleman was never able to do anything about it.

When the game ended about 8,000 miles later, Statesman coach Vince Bitonte looked like he didn't believe it.

"How do you shoot 46 percent and lose?" he wanted to know. "They beat us down court. That's it—that's the quote for the week." But he looked like he didn't believe it.

For most of the game Red Hook's running was hustle. The Raiders hit the boards well and looked for a fast break. They never had an uncontested layup, but they often had a couple of trailers on the play that turned things into a three-on-one situation.

Coleman, meanwhile, sometimes ran too fast. Thirty turnovers isn't an encouraging statistic to live with, especiall when about half of them are just wild passes that sail untouched into the bleachers.

"Thirty turnovers," said Bitonte. "Back to the drawing board."

Red Hook had another item going for it, depth, and Chando put it to use. He shuffled everybody into the action, and that kept everybody at top speed. It also enabled him to uncover the stars of the night—like Dennis Porter.

"Porter really helped us through the bad spots," said Chando. "He normally doesn't start, and he doesn't do that well against a zone, but against a man-to-man like Coleman's he can do it."

What Porter did was handle the ball well and pump in 16 points. He hit five straight shots from the field in the third period, and if he hadn't Coleman would have scrapped back in the contest at that point.

Matt Kurdziel, the high man with 19 points, Mark Gravino and Bob Mergendahl were Red Hook's other mainstays. Gravino, nursing a sore ankle, helped the Raiders early. Mergendahl, the 6-4 junior, did a lot of rebounding and defense.

The Statesmen couldn't get enough men into the attack. Four players got all but four of the points, and that disappointed Bitonte. Joe Augustine and Bill Robertson had 19 each, Dave Engel hit for 15, and Charlie McDonough canned 13. That wasn't enough.

The height disadvantage Coleman is accustomed to didn't bother the Statesmen as much as it has on other occasions. It was a factor all right. Red Hook took a lot of defensive rebounds on the first shot and canned more than one follow, but Coleman hit its season high off the boards. There were just too many mistakes to offset it.

Chando was pleased, "to win one here." But he looked at the final score and tempered it a bit.

"I don't like to give up 70 points. But we're not a bad team. We hustle."

Red Hook won the JV game.

Ketcham Deals KHS An Unpleasant Shock

WAPPINGERS FALLS — Kingston High wasn't expecting the DCSL basketball race to be easy, but the Tigers were a little surprised to learn Tuesday night that things might be even more difficult than they anticipated.

Ketcham, not a team rated among the serious contenders in the preseason, stung KHS with a 64-47 setback here as league action opened.

"We just couldn't do anything right," stated KHS coach Mike Rienzo. "They're big, and that (Tony) Larsen killed us. We couldn't handle him, and we couldn't get any points."

Ketcham took control of the contest from the outset, and the Tigers, shooting 38 percent from the field, never made a strong challenge. Larsen, a muscular, 6-2 shooter, dumped in 27 points to keep his Indians rolling on the momentum.

Kingston figured to have offensive problems from time to time anyway this year, but in this game everything seemed to be wrong. For one thing Jay Foust, the forward counted on to carry KHS along the inside track, was sick and missed the contest.

"I have no idea how long he'll be out," said Rienzo, "Two games, the whole season...I don't know. He's got German measles or something."

And for another thing Ketcham recognized that the other main threat to their hopes was Daryl Mills. RCK reacted with a box-and-one that checked the little Tiger guard to a lone field goal for the night.

"Daryl got two points. In the first two games we had he averaged 19. Maybe 15 points or so there might have made a difference," said Rienzo.

Beyond that there just wasn't enough KHS power to turn things around. Ron Mapes' 12 markers was a team high. Next down the line was Larry Walkowski with nine.

Kingston was down by six at the first quarter mark and down by six more at the half. The losers picked up a bit of ground in the third period at the Indians managed only ten points, but that was hardly a comeback. Ketcham took control again in the fourth quarter.

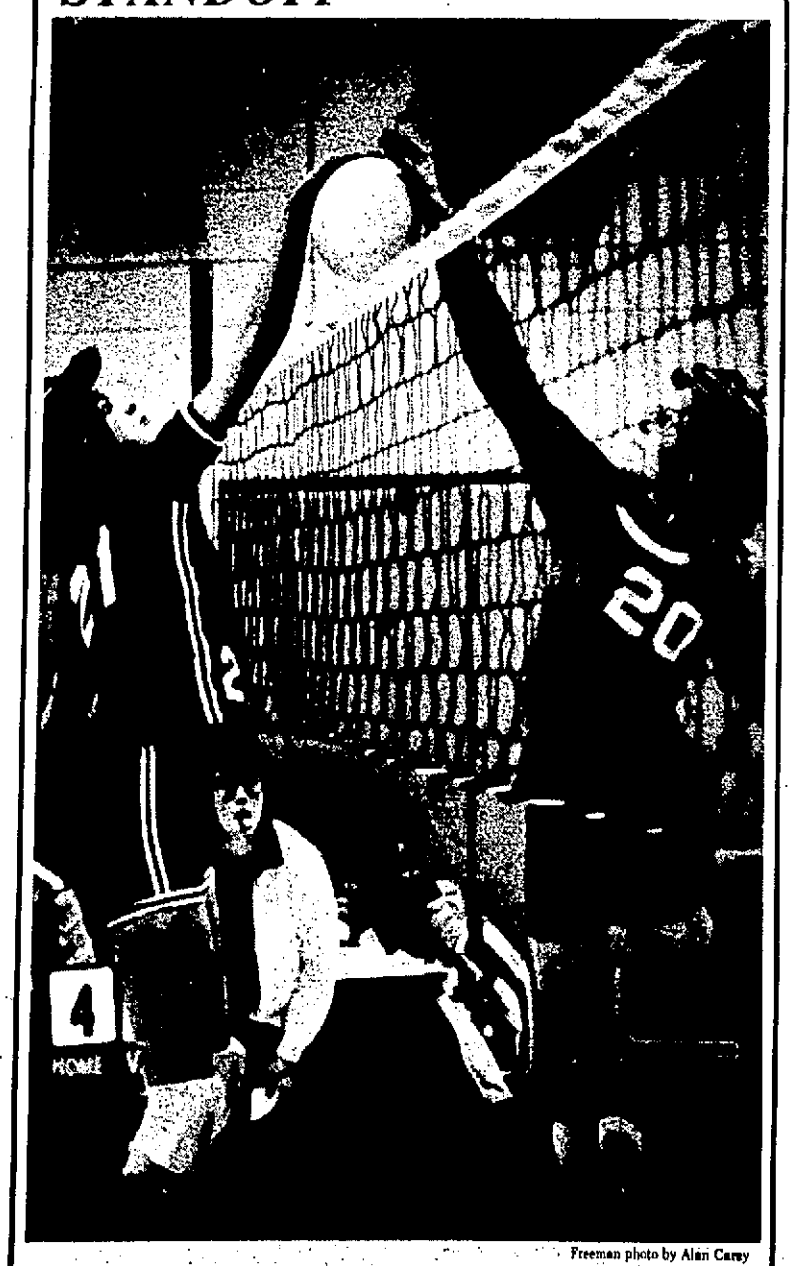

"It wasn't too encouraging," Rienzo said. "I was wondering how we'd do after that long layoff—now I don't have to wonder anymore. Even the jayvee's got clobbered."

Ketcham took the JV contest, 70-55.

In other DCSL action, John Jay defeated Arlington, 78-66, Beacon nipped Roosevelt, 68-67, Spackenkill dumped Lourdes, 66-60 and Saugerties downed Poughkeepsie, 80-71. Kingston continues league play Friday at Arlington.

Dukes Survive UCAL's First Big Test

KINGSTON — In what was possibly a preview of the UCAL championship game, divisional leaders Pine Bush and Marlboro Highs clashed Tuesday night to highlight a full schedule of basketball action. A cold start by the Bushmen helped the Dukes pull away to a 57-48 decision as they maintained their half game lead over Fallsburgh and Liberty in Division I.

In other results, Fallsburgh clipped Wallkill, 68-53, Liberty bested Onteora, 64-52, Highland topped New Paltz, 83-52, and Rondout bounced Ellenville, 80-62.

Some atrocious shooting by Pine Bush, along with the performance of first-time starter Chris Lyons of Marlboro, paved the way to the Marlboro victory. The losers made just six of 27 shots from the field in the first half, and with that kind of help Marlboro pulled away to a 29-15 lead.

"Well, I got a better impression of my team," said a not too disappointed Bushman coach Bill Stevens. "We shot horribly our scoring was the big difference in the game, but I think we outplayed them the second half. I just don't like coming back."

Coming back against Marlboro is not the easiest thing to do, as the Bushmen discovered. Lyons, starting in place of Terry Monroe, came through with 14 points to lead the winners. That was especially appreciated since Anthony Monroe and Rich Carlson, normally the Dukes' top point getters, had just 11 and ten points respectively.

Steve Low had 22 for the losers and helped Pine Bush get as close as four points in the second half, but the Bushmen missed a couple of one-and-one situations that could have made things tighter.

Liberty kept pace, picking up its second win in as many starts, but the invaders from Onteora did not fall easily.

"We were lucky," said Liberty coach Floyd Emery. "Onteor had a good ballclub, and they played well against us.

OCS battled back in the second period to force a halftime tie before Liberty shook loose in the second half. Milt Martin with 23 points powered the win.

"We're really not the club people think we are," Emery said."Onteora, especially its guards, did a good job."

Steve Ross led Onteora with 14 points.

Fallsburgh likewise improved to 2-0, but the Comets also had a battle. It took a big third quarter to subdue Wallkill.

"We score off our press, but it wasn't really effective unt the third quarter," said Fallsburgh coach Marty Van Vleet. "We got out fast break going then."

Nick Boffenmyer held the Panthers together with 22 points and a lot of rebounds. Larin Young and John Gilmore carried the Comets' attack.

Bruce McCarthy led four of his teammates into double figures as Highland ran over New Paltz. The Big Blue had a 46-24 edge at the half, and they kept the pressure on when the action resumed. Rich Siegel's 11 points led the Hugies.

Paul Conklin had a big night—33 points worth—but Ellenville had little else to cheer about. Mike Mills led a steady Gander effort that had the winners in command right from the opening period.

Mills pumped in 27, and Jeff Debrosky scored 19 more to lead RVC. Rondout streaked out to a 20-9 lead in the first quarter and proceeded to send the Ellies to their third straight defeat.

Michaels Was Everybody's Choice

HEMPSTEAD (UPI) — Never was the selection of a head coach more simple. Walt Michaels was simply everybody's choice to become the coach of the New York Jets.

"It was a strange selection of a head coach," said Jets' General Manager Al Ward Tuesday after naming the 47-year-old Michaels the team's seventh head coach. "It was as much an election as a selection. And I'm not just talking about the board of directors, but also the players, the people in the organization, the media and the fans. There is no question that he was a nearly unanimous choice."

Thus Michaels, the Jets' defensive coordinator last season, achieved the position he had sought twice before without success. He succeeds Lou Holtz, who resigned one week before the season ended to accept the head coaching position at the University of Arkansas.

Michaels, an assistant coach with the Jets from 1963 through 1972, takes over a team that suffered its second straight 3-11 season. He becomes the team's fifth head coach in the past two seasons, although two of his predecessors (Ken Shipp and Mike Holovak) handled the position on an interim basis.

The Jets signed Michaels to a three-year contract estimated to be worth about $60,000 a year. They also gave Ward a new three-year contract and expanded his duties to include the overall operation of the team. In a third move, the club's board of directors appointed Leon Hess as acting president, succeeding Phil Iselin, who died last Tuesday.

"I accept the challenge of being head coach and expect our staff and players to be equally prepared for the task," Michaels said at a press conference at the Jets' training complex at Hofstra University. "I've known the owners a long time. They know what it takes to produce a winner and they are with Al Ward and me in this challenge."

Ward said he had about 40 hours of discussion with Michaels about the job and did not talk to any other candidates. The annoucement was delayed by Iselin's death last week, Ward added.

"I will have to sit down and evaluate our people and see what our needs will be for next year," Michaels said. "The top priority now is for me to find good assistants. We'll do what is necessary to turn this thing around."

Michaels twice was passed over for the Jets' head coaching position when many thought he deserved the job. Charley Winner, son-in-law of former Jet Coach Weeb Ewbank, was named following the 1972 season, prompting Michaels to resign and accept an assistant coaching position with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Sunday Racing Gets OK At Yonkers Track

YONKERS — Yonkers Raceway has received permission to stage a full nine-race card on Sundays . Post time will be 1 p.m.

The Westchester oval had asked the state for an extra racing day to help make up for the financial shortcomings it has experienced in recent months due to the increased patronage of Off-Track Betting by former YR fans and the emergence of the Meadowlands track in New Jersey.

Yonkers' revised schedule includes seven Sundays through Feb. 27. Roosevelt Raceway opens Feb. 28.

Sawyer Girls Fall

POUGHKEEPSIE—The Saugerties High School girls varsity basketball team had little to cheer about after absorbing a 57-25 Dutchess County Scholastic League loss Tuesday night at the hands of defending sectional champ Poughkeepsie.

"Poughkeepsie is very tall, very fast, and very good," said Saugerties coach Kathy Lund. "They have three starters back from the team that w the sectionals. The Kingston-Poughkeepsie game should be a good one."

Minty Thompson led Poughkeepsie with 18 points and Mary Maloney added 14. Only three of eight Saugerties players who saw game time scored points. Mickey Stilphen was top scorer with 11 points and Shelly Pfeil added 10.

Poughkeepsie opened up a 32-9 halftime lead on the strength of an 18-3 second quarter and coasted in the second half.

Saugerties (0-1) plays host to Lourdes Friday night in another DCSL contest.

Roundup: Unitas Colts' GM?

A front office dispute between Baltimore Colts coach Ted Marchibroda and general manager Joe Thomas could possibly result in former Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas returning to replace Thomas. Colts owner Robert Irsay acknowledged Tuesday that Unitas had expressed interest in Thomas' job should the general manager decide to leave. Thomas, who built championship teams out of the Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins and who revitalized the Colts, has one year remaining on his contract. Thomas is now asking for a five-year contract at more than $350,000 annually and Irsay said that is too rich for his blood....

The Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday signed reliever Ken Sanders, a pitcher who had his greatest years with the Brewers in the early 70s. The Brewer's top reliever last season, Danny Frisella, died during the holiday weekend in a dune buggy accident in Phoenix....

Sports fans aren't accustomed to hearing a woman's voice at sporting events in an official capacity except, perhaps, for the singing of the national anthem. And because of that, fans of the Chicago White Sox will be in for a big surprise this season when they tune into White Sox broadcasts. The reason is that a woman will be doing the broadcasts on radio station WMAQ along with veteran White Sox broadcaster Harry Caray. Mary Shane, who has been reporting sporting events here for more than a year for radio station WRIT, has been tabbed as Carey's new partner on at least 20 White Sox broadcasts — and the Milwaukee resident hopes to do even more games....

Dave Concepcion, the Cincinnati Reds' all-star shortstop, is seeking a three-year contract for a half-million dollars, he said Tuesday....

Adrian Garrett broke a 25-year-old record Tuesday night, hitting safely in his 28th straight games in the Venezuelan winter baseball league....

At age 31, Virginia Wade still retains all her enthusiasm for tennis—and it showed Tuesday night during her opening round victory in the $100,000 Virginia Slims of Washington tournament. "I was in a pretty good mood, but a few weeks off is enough to make you enthusiastic again," said Wade, who dumped Julie Anthony of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-2, 6-3. "Right now I'm hitting the ball a little harder than usual. I'm tidying up the rough ends of my game. I'm pretty ambitious at the moment. I'm thinking in a positive way"...

In Section Nine Volleyball

Comets, MHS Win

KINGSTON—Two Ulster County Athletic League girls volleyball teams have qualified for the semifinals of the third annual Section Nine Tournament with two victories each on Tuesday.

In the semifinals Thursday at New Paltz High School, No. 12 seed Suffern will meet No. 3 seed Fallsburgh (18-2, UCAL champs) and No. 9 seed Marlboro (15-5, tied for third in the UCAL) will face No. 2 seed Clarkstown North (20-2).

First round action took place at four different sites Tuesday, and four of the five UCAL teams which made the 16-team field advanced. The fifth team, Onteora, lost to Marlboro in the opening round. New Paltz and Red Hook fell in in the second round.

At Suffern, top-seeded O'Neill defeated Deleware Valley, 15-11, 15-5 and Suffern topped Clarkstown South, 15-5, 5-15, 15-5. In the second round, Suffern beat O'Neill, 15-13, 17-15.

At Washingtonville, Red Hook blanked Port Jervis, 15-5, 15-3 and Fallsburgh downed Pearl River, 15-12, 15-7. In the second round, Fallsburgh bested Red Hook, 15-0, 15-6.

At New Paltz, the 13th-seeded New Paltz squad surprised No. 4 Monticello, 15-11, 16-14, coming back from 11-0 and 14-3 deficits in the second game, and Marlboro got its revenge over Onteora, which had beaten it twice during the UCAL season, 15-12, 15-11. In the second round, Marlboro took New Paltz in three games, S-15, 15-6, 15-1.

At Clarkstown North, Cornwall topped Minisink, 15-5, 15-11 and Clarkstown North, which won the sectionals last season, beat Spring Valley, 15-4, 16-14. In the second round, Clarkstown North bested Cornwall, 13-15, 15-10, 16-14.

Suffern meets Fallsburgh at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and Marlboro and Clarkstown North lock horns at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for adults and .75 for students.

The finals will be Saturday at 7 p.m., also at New Paltz High School. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

No Pressure-Recruiting Of Women Athletes

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Delegates to the annual convention of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women voted Tuesday to keep a tight lid on the recruitment of women student-athletes.

The delegates voted to ban paid campus visits for prospective women athletes, field recruitment by coaches of women's teams, personal solicitations and the on-campus signing of letters of intent.

Liz Ullman, a coordinator for the AIAW, said the stringent recruiting regulations were passed to keep athletic policies in line with educational aims and to keep fledgling women's sports programs from becoming like men's programs — "a business enterprise."

The AIAW is the women's equivalent of the NCAA, the governing body of men's collegiate sports.

Supporters of the recruiting rule changes said women athletes would be able to choose colleges with a minimum of pressure.

Regulations had permitted individual coaches to travel and recruit at their own expense. In men's sports, most recruiting is funded.

Several athletic directors said the recruitment by coaches on their own time and with their own money might be in violation of federal equal pay laws.

The rule changes are aimed at forcing athletic staff to discuss programs with prospects as part of routine business. The rules do not prohibit mailing literature or video tapes. Telephone calls and on-campus interviews with visits paid by prospects would also be permitted.

College coaches are allowed to watch athletic contests but they cannot initiate contact with prospective athletes.

The delegates voted against a plan to allow on campus tryouts at student expense as discriminatory to poor students.

Also, Letters of intent or scholarship forms must be sent to students' homes and cannot be signed on campus.

Opponents of the strict recruiting said the changes would violate Health Education and Welfare Department Title IX guidelines requiring equal support for men's and women's athletic programs.

But backers of the changes said federal guidelines permit differences in recruiting.

For Rondout, freshman Francis Irberseder was third in the vaulting and fourth in both the bars and floor exercise. Margaret Davis was third on the beam, Kathy Dennin third in the floor exercise and Terry Van Orden fourth in the vaulting, all for Rondout.

"I was generally pleased with our performances," said RVC coach Ann Acton. "We're basically a freshman team."

The Rondout girls open their league schedule at Red Hook Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Rhinebeck Scores

RHINEBECK — A strong all-around performance by Jim Ferriello helped Rhinebeck High get off on the right foot in Bi-Valley League competition here Tuesday night as the underdog Indians wrested a 54-45 victory from visiting Webutuck.

Webutuck was reputedly one of the top BV entries this time around, but that myth fell as Ferriello dumped in 20 points and his teammates combined to choke off the visitors with a pressing defense in the second half.

"We had a strong second half defensively," noted winning coach Bob Ahlin. "We pressed the whole game, but it hurt them in the third quarter especially. That's when we ran off 14 straight points and got the lead back."

Rhinebeck had jumped out to a first period advantage but trailed by two points at the half. Webutuck, however, managed only 16 points in the last two quarters as the home team stormed past for its second win against four losses overall.

"Ferriello had a strong game," Ahlin said. "He played good defense and he was our leading rebounder as well. Steve Sherman did another good job on one of their big scorers too."

Joe O'Han added a dozen points for the winners. Rhinebeck held a seven-point edge entering the fourth quarter and held it to notch the win.

Kingston Outswims Middletown, 89-82

MIDDLETOWN—Victories by Kirk Jacob in the 100 yard backstroke and by Chris Burns in the 100 breaststroke sewed up an 89-82 non-league swimming meet victory for the Kingston High School squad Tuesday against the mermen of Middletown.

The wins by Jacob and Burns came in the ninth and tenth events of the 11-event meet and gave the Tigers the margin of points they needed to guarantee victory. Middletown, which lost the meet-opening 200 medley relay, won the final relay one, the 400 free, for another seven points but it wasn't enough to catch Kingston.

The Tigers are now 4-1 overall and 3-0 in the Dutchess County Scholastic League.

Kingston took only five individual firsts, including Burns', two by Jacob and one by Steve Olson in the 100 free in 56.1, plus the 200 medley relay. Jacob won the 200 free in 2.03.5 and the 100 back in 1:04.2, while Burns took the 100 breast in 1:07.4, a pool record. Kingston's winning relay time of 1:50.2, by the quartet of Jacob, Burns, Ken Acquaviva and Olson, was a pool record.

"The lead went back and forth," said KHS coach Floyd McCormick. "We w it in the 100 back and 100 breast. I expected a close score. There were a couple of places I hoped we'd do better than we did. The 100 freestyle was a pleasant surprise, though."

In that event, won by Olson, Kingston took third and fourth.

The Tigers visit Poughkeepsie Thursday in a 6:30 p.m. start. "They're layin' for us," said McCormick.

A Hot Barry Powers Golden State

NEW YORK (UPI)— "Sometimes the ball has eyes and it goes straight to the hoop," Rick Barry said. "It's something you have no control over."

"When you get hot like that," Jamaal Wilkes added with a smile, "you could kick the ball in."

Barry put on a spectacular shooting show in the third quarter Tuesday night when he clicked on jumpers up to 30 feet to reel off 20 of his season high 38 points against the New York Knicks and pace the Golden State Warriors to a 120-110 victory. In a 7½-minute span early in the period, Barry scored 16 points to help the Warriors outscore the Knicks 22-8 and take a 72-62 lead after trailing 54-50 at halftime.

Wilkes, scoreless in the third period, picked up Barry's cue in the fourth quarter and began bombing long range bank shots with Bill Bradley draped all over him. Wilkes hit his first six shots, flipping 20-25-footers off the backboard with his unorthodox behind the head shooting style, in just four minutesm to provide the Warriors with a 103-88 lead with 7:30 to go.

"I've never seen anybody hit that many bank shots from that distance," said Bradley."

The Knicks, who wasted a 32-point night by Earl Monroe, made a bid for a comeback when the Warriors "started to celebrate too early," according to Golden State coach Al Attles, but even a 13-2 blitz by New York in just over two minutes fell short when Barry hit a layup and two free throws in the closing seconds.

Barry, Wilkes and the other Warriors have been inconsistent most of this season, posting an 18-15 won-lost record for third place in the NBA Pacific Division. The Warriors are fourth in the league in scoring but 19th in defense. Barry and Wilkes were both shooting under 40 per cent during most of the 1976 portion of the schedule but they think they've finally broken out of their slump.

"I've had a cold and sore throat and I felt my body just didn't want to carry me," said Barry, who had 37 and 29-point performances last week. "But I'm getting my batteries recharged now. Perhaps we've gotten the worst stretch out of our system."

In other action, Portland trounced Boston 128-84, Atlanta surprised Denver with a 113-109 victory, Milwaukee ripped Phoenix 139-111 and Chicago beat the New York Nets 88-80.

Blazers 128, Celtics 84

Boston coach Tommy Heinsohn said the Celtics played "lousy defense, lousy offense, lousy everything," and he was right. Larry Steele and Corky Calhoun came off the bench to score 18 and 16 points, respectively, and Bill Walton, recovering from a bruised knee, grabbed 15 rebounds, blocked five shots and had six assists in 22 minutes. Walton scored only two points but his teammates provided plenty of points on their own in one of the most one-sided games in the NBA this season.

Hawks 113, Nuggets 109

Led by Lou Hudson's 25 points, Atlanta snapped an eight-game losing streak. The Hawks, playing their first game under new owner Ted Turner, scored nine straight points in a one-minute stretch to take an 80-72 lead with 2:24 left in the third quarter and the Nuggets were never able to regain the lead.

Bucks 139, Suns 111

Junior Bridgeman scored 38 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead Milwaukee to its sixth victory in the last eight games. The Bucks, playing without Bob Dandridge who had the flu, led 77-55 at the half. Their 139 points were a season high.

Bulls 88, Nets 80

Mickey Johnson scored 20 points to help Chicago snap a four-game losing streak and extend the Nets' losses to five straight.

Brawls Mar Maryland Cage Victory

By UPI

Maryland's 90-78 victory over Richmond Tuesday night was marred by two outbursts of fighting that resulted in the ejection of four players, including the 18th-ranked Terrapins' top three big men.

Maryland's Mike Davis was tossed out shortly before the second half started for throwing a punch at Richmond's Craig Sullivan, who remained in the game. The Terrapins' Larry Gibson and Lawrence Boston then were ejected with 5:57 remaining after a scuffle with Richmond's Mike Dow, who also was thrown out.

"It started when one of their players spat on Mike Davis at the start of the half," said the 6-foot-8 Boston. "There was some pushing and shoving during the half, then I saw everybody throwing punches, so I decided to throw some too. I had to get him (Dow) off my teammates. It looked like he was hurting my teammate."

Richmond Coach Carl Slone denied that Sullivan spat on the 6-foot-8 Davis. No injuries were reported as a result of the fighting.

"We can't afford to have our three big men on the bench," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, looking ahead to weekend Atlantic Coast Conference games against Wake Forest and North Carolina State. "We can't have people swinging at people and play the kind of basketball we have to play."

Steve Sheppard preserved Maryland's victory in the closing minutes as Richmond failed to get closer than eight points. Sheppard led Maryland with 25 points, including 9-of-12 shooting from the field.

Brad Davis added 19 points and Bill Bryant had 14 as the Terps, who shot 59 per cent from the field compared to 40 per cent for Richmond, improved their record to 10-1.

Senior forward Jeff Butler paced Richmond with 23 points.

In other games, Derrick Jackson scored 20 points and Georgetown sank 6 of 12 foul shots in the last 3:30 to hold off Boston University, 53-49.

Senior Steve Jones scored 24 points and sophomore Wally Swanson added 16 to lead Texas A&M to a 68-59 victory over Texas in the Southwest Conference opener for both teams.

James Holliman, Mark Landsberger and Tony Zeno each scored 27 points to offset Freeman Williams' 36 points as Arizona State downed Portland State 115-92.

Rosewall Outlasts Riessen

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Ken Rosewall, playing his first five-set match since Wimbledon in 1974, beat American Marty Riessen in a four-hour struggle in today to reach the quarter-finals of the $216,999 Australian Open tennis championships.

Rosewall, 42, outlasted Riessen, 6-7, 7-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4.

The Australian veteran had not played a five-set match since his amazing comeback against American Stan Smith in the semifinal of the 1974 Wimbledon championships.

The tournament organizers also smiled on Rosewall by giving him a day's rest now which will give him time to recover before playing the young bull, 22-year-old defending champion Mark Edmonson, in a quarter-final Friday.

In a surprise of the day's play, the finalists in last week's New South Wales Open tourney, Tony Roche of Australia and American Dick Stockton, were knocked out of the championship.

American Roscoe Tanner, the No. 2 seed, easily beat Roche, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, when Roche appeared to suffer a stomach injury in the second set.

Because of the long Rosewall-Riessen match on the center court, the Ross Case-Stockton match was transferred to an outside court.

Case beat Stockton, 6-4, 4-6, 6-7, 7-5, 6-2, in a shadow-covered court which produced bad bounces and bad tempers for the players.

Top seed Guillermo Vilas of Argentina made fairly short work of American Charlie Pasarell, 7-6, 6-2, 6-3, while Arthur Ashe showed good form in beating fellow American Hank Pfister, 7-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Edmonson was much too good for 22-year-old Englishman Richard Lewis, winning 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Today's results set up these quarter-final parings: will be: Vilas vs. Case, Ashe vs. John Alexander, Rosewall vs. Edmonson and Tanner vs. Phil Dent.

In the women's matches West German Katja Ebbinghaus beat American Rainey Fox, 6-2, 6-7, 6-1, to advance to the quarterfinals.

Ebbinghaus, who turns 29 Thursday, took a heavy fall in the first set but managed to remain composed to run out a comfortable winner. She will play second seed Kerry Reid of Australia in the quarterfinals.

Memorable Night for NHL Pair

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI)— Usually there isn't much that is memorable about a 2-2 tie between two losing hockey teams.

But for rookies Dwight Schofield of Detroit and Bill Riley of Washington Tuesday night's deadlock will be easy to remember. Both scored their first NHL goals and Schofield's lifted the Red Wings to the tie with two minutes to play.

"I just can't believe it's true," said Schofield, a 20-year-old defenseman brought up Monday from the International League and playing in his first NHL game. "Everyone dreams of scoring that first goal, but it was asking too much for it to mean that my goal would stop us from losing."

Riley took a centering pass from Gerry Meehan and beat Detroit goalie Eddie Giacomin with 8:02 gone in the third period to tie the score 1-1. Bill Lochead's first period goal had given Detroit a 1-0 lead.

"It was set up just perfectly," said Riley, who assisted on the winning goal Sunday when the Capitals beat St. Louis for the first time ever. "Gerry waited just until I had come clear and he put the puck right in front of me. It would have been a damn shame if I had missed such a perfect opportunity."

Riley, playing in his fourth NHL game, was brought up by Washington from the International League last Thursday along with Bill Marson. Riley and Marson are the only black players in the NHL.

Tony White's goal less than five minutes after Riley's score gave the Caps a momentary 2-1 lead. But Schofield stole the puck from two Washington defenders and beat Washington's surprised goalie, Ron Low, at 18:00 of the final period.

Blues 4, Kings 3

Claude Larose scored with 5:33 remaining to break a 3-3 tie and give St. Louis its fifth victory in six games. Larose took the puck off the stick of Los Angeles goalie Rogie Vachon behind the Kings' net, then shot while falling. Mike Murphy scored two goals for Los Angeles.

Canucks 2, Penguins 2

Vancouver's Dennis Ververgaert scored with 47 seconds remaining to erase a two-goal defict.

Strange requests to dry cleaners

"Strange things are done 'neath the midnight sun," wrote Poet Robert Service when he told the tale of Sam McGee and his unfortunate demise. Even stranger things are told to, and asked of, dry cleaners around the country by the populace bringing clothing to be cleaned.

In the city of Chicago, people don't always think their requests through. One dry cleaning establishment close to the city's wealthy Gold Coast reported that a male customer came in brightly one morning with a suit he wanted to have dyed brown. The clerk making out the ticket didn't even blink when the man added, "I'd like white pin stripes on it, too, about an inch apart."

Fashion experts at Gleneagles, manufacturers of quality weatherwear and sportswear, asked dry cleaners about some of their strange requests Though difficult to believe, all are true and all happened within recent memory of personnel at the dry cleaners.

A woman who operates a dry cleaning shop and plant in Massachusetts never ceases to be amazed at the number of people, mostly men, who remind her to be sure to clean the inside, the lining She laughs at the thought of trying to clean only the outside of a garment

The same cleaner told of an elderly woman who found her receipt for a fur coat which her cleaners had in storage for her for nine years. When she finally claimed the coat, she insisted that someone had worn it. The dry cleaner tried to explain, to no avail, that the coat had been locked in the vault all that time.

(One Kingston dry cleaning establishment had a true story to add to the list. It seems a woman brought several items of men's clothing in to be cleaned. Later, her husband stopped and was given the cleaned garments— only the clothing which his wife dropped off didn't belong to him.....)

Often a dry cleaning shop will have a night "drop" for the convenience of its customers. Any time of day or night' people leave their garments to be cleaned. One such dry cleaners in Oklahoma found a leather coat one morning with the customer's name and address and a note which read simply, "The spot is from sitting on a pizza."

In California, things are about the same as they are everywhere else. A top quality cleaners in San Francisco said that many of the items that are funny to him are really rather tragic. For the sake of humor, he adds signs of his own which provoke smiles. "Drop your pants here," commands one sign of potential customers. Another, advertising their pressing service, suggests, "Your clothes pressed while you hide your hide."

The cleaners in the City by the Bay suggests that people bring spotted clothing to the cleaners, telling the clerk just what the spot is. This, he said, will result in better cleaning than if a customer tries to rectify the spots at home. He recalled when people covered ink spots with buttermilk. Customers must have read it somewhere. The buttermilk, he said, was even harder to remove than the ink.

A few hundred miles to the south, a Los Angeles dry cleaner has had very funny requests! He will never understand a very wealthy customer who has his shirts laundered and folded but never ironed. In order to save a few cents, he wears wrinkled shirts.

Even stranger was the woman who was set to go to a party and found the zipper in her dress had been broken in the dry cleaning. She insisted that her dry cleaner sew the dress on her so she could wear it to the party, even though she had many other designer dresses. Her date' dressed in a tuxedo, stood by and watched the sewing operation.

A shop in Pennsylvania received a garment for cleaning with the comment, "Must have got the spot in the church pew (from someone who looked like he never was in it)." Another cleaner was told that an oyster slipped out on the suit that night

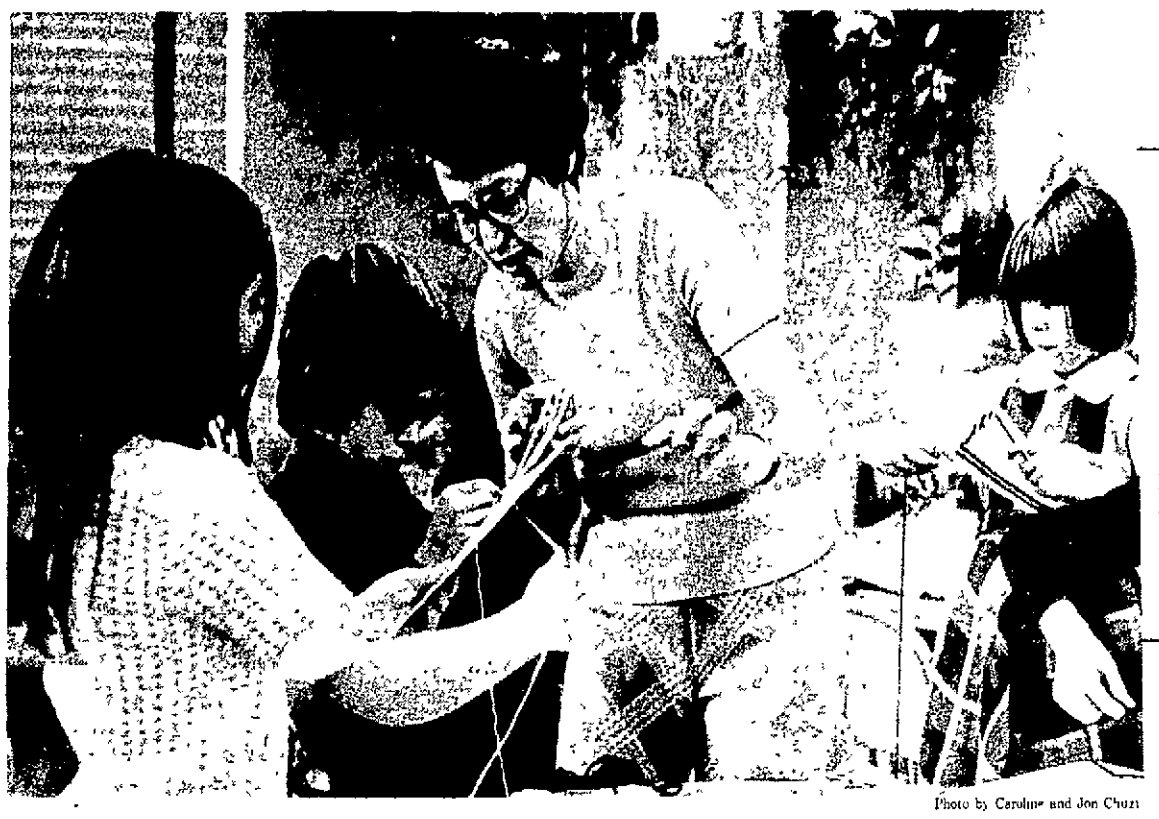

People often give unusual reasons for stains such as the man who claimed that the stain in his suit came from the back of a tail pipe. If possible, the cleaners suggested, people would do their cleaners and themselves a favor by watching where they lean (if possible, avoiding dingy walls), not trying to remove stains themselves and taking the garment to the cleaners as quickly as possible. "Show and tell" helps in this case as the cleaners have an easier time if they know about the spot they're trying to erase.

Many customers think they know the cleaning business but, for some unknown reason, they don't think the industry has undergone changes or enjoyed advancements. One who thought he knew something told his neighborhood cleaners slyly, "Let me know what day they change the naphtha, and

I'll bring my suit in "

That statement might have been sensible 50 years ago but surely not today. Now, everything is clean, and any day is a good day to patronize a quality dry cleaner. Often they will clean unusual possessions (one cleaners said that many bear rugs were brought to him for cleaning), make repairs and alter garments to fit. If their customers would help the dry cleaners, they, in turn, would reap the rewards

Strange things are done, even to the hard-working, understanding and helpful dry cleaners.

Art Commissions Now Available

NEW YORK—Applications are now availalbe for New York State theatre groups who want to present new works for young audiences, according to Robert A Mayer, executive director of the New York State Council on the Arts. These commissions are designed to stimulate a wider and more imaginative repertory for young people's theatre in New York State.

Selected theater groups will receive funds to commission a new play by an author with whom they would like to work The program will offer playwrights a maximum fee of $4,000 and the producing groups will be eligible to apply for money toward mounting the new works.

Although only a theatre group can file the actual application, individual writers or creators may initiate the possible collaboration with a theatre organization. The commissions will be awarded on the basis of the writers' past work, the artistic quality of the producing organization and the merits of the proposed project

Last spring nine theatre groups were selected to receive a total of $36,000.

This year's applications and guidelines may be obtained by writing to Theatre Program, New York State Council on the Arts, 80 Centre St., New York, 10013. Deadline for application is Jan. 17

FOOD MEMOS

Where to Complain about Food Problems

By Louise K. Breitung
Cooperative Extension Agent

KINGSTON—Stale bread, cracked eggs or the proverbial fly in your soup are legitimate consumer complaints; so are dirty stores and deceptive advertising. The following is a guide to some avenues of consumer redress; it covers only food for at-home consumption.

The store where you shop is the most likely place to complain about almost any food problem, since it has a direct economic interest in your satisfaction. Most reputable stores will refund or replace unsatisfactory food; managers or owners may also respond to complaints about personnel, stock and other problems. Some supermarket chains now have consumer representatives on staff; a letter to the headquarters consumer rep, public relations or communications head or the president of the chain should get results.

The manufacturer or packer of the food is also directly interested in customer satisfaction, and a letter to the president of the company many bring redress. The name and address of the manufacturer, packer or distributor appear on the label of packaged foods; business directories at local libraries list major companies and their officials.

Local consumer agencies: If your locality has a consumer affairs department, this local agency may be able to give you help or direction. Local agencies as well as the State Department of Agriculture and Markets have the power to license and-or fine retail stores; complaints to these agencies therefore may be quite effective. Under the law, retailers are responsible for many food problems which are in fact beyond their control, a short-weight packaged food, for example, may be a store's responsibility even if it was packed elsewhere.

State agencies: The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets has primary responsibility for licensing and inspecting retail food stores, as well as some processing plants within the state. The agency polices such things as store sanitation; weights and measures; adulteration and misbranding of meats, milk, milk products and food service items; unit pricing; misrepresentation of Kosher foods and other matters. Buffalo, New York City, Riverhead, Rochester and Syracuse offices handle consumer complaints.

The New York State Department of Health polices the sanitation of independent delicatessens and restaurants; in many cities and counties, local health departments exist and they assume responsibility for those complaints. Supermarket delis are inspected by State Agriculture and Markets.

The "Directory of Federal, State, County and City Government Consumer Offices" is published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and is available for 95 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Federal agencies: All foods shipped in interstate commerce are subject to federal inspection. Contact the Food and Drug Administration to complain about impure or adulterated food, contamination or "misbranding" which includes false or misleading labeling or questionable nutritional claims. This agency has a consumer complaint system, and will refer the complainant to the proper agency if it does not have jurisdiction Contact the complaint coordinator at 850 Third Ave, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11232; 599 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N.Y. 14202; or 256 Leo W., O'Brien Bldg., Clinton and N. Pearl Streets, Albany, N.Y. 12207. Field offices are also located in Binghamton, Hicksville, Rochester, Syracuse and White Plains.

U.S. Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction over meat, eggs and poultry, as well as processed foods which contain meat or poultry. For a complaint about a packaged food, check the label; if it says "Inspected, USDA" it falls within that agency's jurisdiction. USDA's Meat and Poultry Inspection Program offices are located at 80 Wolf Road, Albany, N.Y. 12225 and 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007; these offices handle complaints about suspected contamination of meat- and poultry-containing products' or about misgraded meat and poultry. (NOTE: USDA also grades many other food products for quality; a label declaration of a USDA quality grade may appear on a food, while its safety and cleanliness are FDA's responsibility.)

The Federal Trade Commission handles complaints about false and misleading advertising (but not labeling) The agency also polices supermarkets to maintain sufficient stocks of advertised "specials." (State Agriculture and Markets has overlapping jurisdiction on specials) FTC, 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007. Consumers in Buffalo and eight western New York counties should contact FTC at 1339 Federal Office Building, 1240 East 9th St., Cleveland, O. 44199

Food Stamp and nutrition programs Complaints about a food stamp allotment or application should be addressed to the NYS Department of Social Services with a request for a Fair Hearing. Fair Hearing offices are located in New York City, Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, applications for a hearing are also available from the Fair Hearing Section, Department of Social Services, 1450 Western Avenue, Albany, N.Y. 12243

Complaints about how stores handle food stamps should be addressed to the regional office of the Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, 729 Alexander Road, Princeton, N.J , 08540, or field offices in Albany, Rochester and Syracuse. These offices also handle inquiries and complaints about most government nutrition programs.

Other agencies: The following agencies have no specific jurisdiction over food problems, but will take action in some cases or will refer the complainant to the proper agency.

The State Consumer-Protection Board is primarily involved in legislative issues, and would appreciate consumer comment on issues such as freshness dating, unit pricing, ingredient labeling and standard packaging Offices at 99 Washington Ave., Albany, N Y 12210 and 2 World Trade Center, New York, N.Y. 10047.

The State Department of Law, Bureau of Consumer Frauds and Protection will mediate complaints between the consumer and the businessman; when mediation fails, it may consider filing suit The department also takes legal action in general areas of consumer concern Two World Trade Center, New York, N.Y. 10047; additional offices in Albany, Auburn, Binghamton, Buffalo, Harlem, Hauppauge, Plattsburgh, Poughkeepsie, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and Watertown

Sensitivity Is Beautiful

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old white girl who is often told that I look like an Indian. Although there is no Indian in my background that I know of, I feel a close kinship to them. My heart aches and I cry whenever I think of how the Indians were mistreated by the white man years ago.

I even went as far as to buy a pair of moccasins, and I love wearing them.

I watch a popular TV program about two brothers "questing" for their long-lost sister, who lives among the Indians. I would love to become an actress and play an Indian role.

This may sound silly, but it has made me feel better to say it.—SENSITIVE AND SAD.

DEAR SENSITIVE: If more people would identify as you have with the cruelties and injustices of the minorities among us, we would be a better society. You don't have to become an "actress" to express charity and love. Don't be sad, dear. I think your sensitivity is beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to love a man but not be able to live with him?

We've been married for six years, and in that time we've had an average of one fight a week. And I don't mean squabbles. I mean real fights.

Our personalities clash. I seem to bring out the worst in him, and before I know it, he's yelling at me, beating on me and threatening to leave me.

I've tried everything. I've even gone to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've tried keeping quiet and refusing to fight back, but that only makes him madder.

I'm only 26 and we have no children. I can't see myself staying married to this man and taking all this abuse. He never says he's sorry after he hurts me. And he's never said he would try to change. The only reason I don't divorce him is because I love him. I'm really strung out over this and don't know what to do. Help me.— —MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE: Yes, it's possible to "love" a man you're not able to live with. But it's my opinion that the kind of "love" that keeps you coming back for more punishment is a poor trade-off and a miserable way to "live." But, it's your life and your decision.

Gloria Swanson's Fight Against the 'Sugar Blues'

By MARIAN CHRISTY

Health-food addict Gloria Swanson, who's 77 and looking more young than old under a sporty brimmed cap, is not famous for her silence. Neither is her husband of 10 months, 61-year-old William Dufty, a prize-winning author who, at his wife's behest, has lost 70 pounds in five months. Swanson, who weighs 95 pounds, is in black Dior sportswear that emphasizes her smallness. Dufty is wearing a high-necked turtleneck to disguise the unfamiliar skinniness.

Both are talking, a nonstop volley of words batted back-and-forth about their well-being and lifestyle. They mutually downgrade sugar as a ' ' killer" But, then, they've written a book called "Sugar Blues" which exposes the ills of sugar.

He is drinking beer. "I never get sick," boasts Dufty. She is nibbling on organically grown plums pulled out of a foil package from her Dior handbag. ' ' When I get sick," chirps Gloria in a rat-a-tat rhythm, ' ' I give myself an enema."

And so the animated conversation continues and it's more like eavesdropping than an interview:

He: ' ' Gloria Swanson's life changed my death. I mean: I was 39 when my son, who's now 21, was born. Well, I thought to myself, I'll be dead when he's 21. Then I thought about the alternative to death — senility. Well, I said to myself, I'd rather die. Then I met Gloria Swanson who pounced on me. She taught me about eating 'Mrs. God's' food — 'Mrs. God' is Mother Nature."

She: ' ' When I met him, he was the 210-pound ugly blubber sitting to my right."

He: ' ' I thought she was just another food weirdo."

She: Most people who are fat or sick or both go to doctors whom they consider The End. Some end. They could be their end."

He: ' ' When I lost those 70 pounds, I had wrinkles across my belly and crow's feet under my arms. Gloria encouraged me to take a lot of sea salt baths. Now my skin is very tight."

She: ' ' When I was starring in the play, ' ' Butterflies Are Free," youngsters in the show would throw up just before curtain time. They thought it was nerves. It wasn't. Those poor kids were eating hot dogs. Ugh. Every so often, cast members would announce they had a cold and wouldn't come near me. I'd say: ' Look, dears, I can't get your germs. I'm clean inside.'"

He: " Sometimes I make our breakfast. We eat watery oatmeal made with granola. We love fresh fruits, vegetables and grains. People should remember there's a big difference between man-made foods and ' Mrs. God's foods.' Gloria has a career based on make-believe. We won't eat make-believe food."

She: "When you have no toxics in your system, you can handle anything because you can think right. You know, once I came close to killing a woman who had been a nurse to my children. I saw something horrible she had written. I had to be locked in a room. Finally my doctor came and sent me to another doctor in California. My blood had turned green from anger. I was full of bile. I was literally green on the inside."

He: "Anger makes you green. Sugar gives you the blues."

She: "And how about the time I broke my nail past the quick? I was in Paris and my daughter took me to a well-known doctor. A footman greeted us at the door. There were fantastic old paintings in the waiting room. And, wonder of wonders, the doctor spoke in English. He said he'd fix my nail. And he proceeded to order an anesthetist, a nurse, an operating room, a hospital room. By God, he was going to perform surgery. I asked him if he had a Band Aid. He replied: "Sorry, no." The next day a veterinarian friend fixed the nail. He had a Band Aid."

He: "When I go anywhere with Gloria, people flock around her. Gloria Swanson. She's Exhibit A."

She: "They're always asking me if I'd had plastic surgery. No. They ask if I've had my teeth capped No. They ask if I've had a breast removed. No. But I tell then I've had a lump removed. Then they ask for my autograph. I never say no."

He: ' ' When I was a newspaperman working in the city room, I felt my colleagues and I were like a bunch of war-weary soldiers in a fox hole. Guys dropped dead at the next desk I always had this awful feeling that maybe I was next. Gloria reached me by example. Gloria Swanson is an example of a healthy person."

She: ' ' I refuse to think in terms of age. But, still, I might resort to plastic surgery one day. If I look in the mirror and don't like what I see, I'll consider a re-make."

He: ' ' Oh, too many doctors do unnecessary surgery."

She: ' I believe when you pay your hospital bill, you should receive a complete record of the services rendered. I mean, in two weeks you might be in Hong Kong and get hit by a rickshaw 'Those records would be nice to fall back on "

She: ' ' Once I had to have X-rays taken and I asked this cute little nurse, ' Hey, aren't you afraid of working so often with a machine that makes X-rays?' She replied that she didn't know much about X-rays because she was only the substitute nurse. I put on my johnny and said bye-bye to her, the doctor and the hospital. Can you imagine such nonchalance about X-rays?"

He. ' ' Hey, I'm writing her biography."

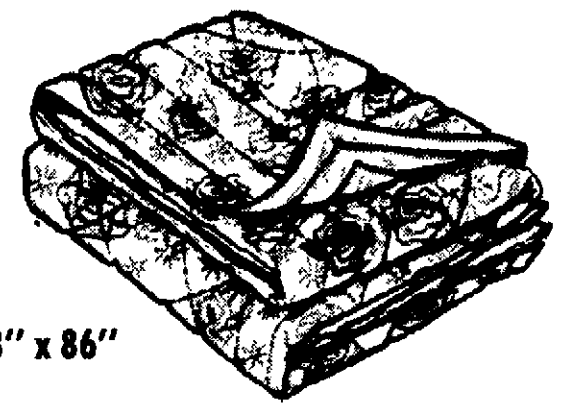

Gloria Swanson, 77, and husband of less than a year Bill Dufty, 61, have co-authored an anti-sugar book called ' ' Sugar Blues."

Print Exhibit

There will be an exhibit of prints at Barrett House, 55 Noxon St., Poughkeepsie, now through Jan. 21. These works are the results of participation in a printmaking workshop funded by a grant from the America the Beautiful Fund of New York.

Upon learning and exploring the basic relief and intaglio processes, the workshop participants, residents of Dutchess and Ulster counties, translated their ideas into visual images reflecting personal experiences, values, daily life subjects and activities, environment, and also non-objective themes. The project director, Pat Jow of Kingston, encouraged work in a variety of techniques, such as woodcuts and linoleum cuts, which are the relief processes; and drypoint, etchings and collagraphs, which are the intaglio processes.

The project director, a graduate of the State University College at New Paltz, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in printmaking, is considered by many to be one of the most promising and prolific printmakers in the area Ms Jow's specialization is in intaglio printing, and she is noted for her richly colored viscosity prints and large shape themes.

Ms. Jow's free demonstration given to the general public prior to the start of classes drew people of different occupations who were enthusiastic and eager to learn and apply these printing methods. The participants, ranging in age from three years to 50, included housewives, teachers, clerks, students, nurses, artists, technicians. Their prints on exhibit depict subjects ranging from family, animals, landscape, and still-life settings, to using texture, design, composition and color create works which are suggestive of moods or feelings.

The six-week long workshop was held with the cooperation of Barrett House

Conflicting Reports On Magazine Battle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only a handful of people really know what is going on in the fight for control of the New York Magazine Co. In the meantime, there are conflicting versions of what has happened so far in private meetings.

It all began last week when Australian publishing magnate Rupert Murdoch took over the New York Post, the city's only major afternoon daily, and said he was also trying to gain control of the New York Magazine Co. stock.

The company owns New York and New West magazines and The Village Voice, a weekly newspaper. The staffs of New York and New West have threatened a work stoppage if Murdoch takes over because of his reputation for sensationalism.

Over the weekend, Clay Felker, founder and publisher of New York, got a court order against Murdoch's purchase of a large block of the company's stock which would have given him a controling interest in the company.

But there are reports Murdoch ousted two members from the company's board of directors and got himself and an ally installed in their places at a stormy board meeting Monday night.

Another report that circulated Tuesday said Murdoch already had bought enough stock to control the company. Whose stock he bought and for how much and how many shares were not specified. And it was not clear whether Murdoch could legally do so before Felker's court case is settled.

Still another report said Felker and Murdoch will be meeting to negotiate a settlement of this complex dispute, against the wishes of the staffs of New York, New West and The Voice.

On Tuesday, Felker held a staff meeting and is said to have promised the uneasy staff that he will wage a "vigorous" court fight against Murdoch.

But the meeting was closed to outside reporters and a secondhand report on what went on conflicts with other reports. Felker himself declined to discuss the meeting when it ended.

Murdoch's own paper, the Post, was quoting a third party's description of what Murdoch said at Monday night's board meeting.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6

Your birthday today: From a rugged start your coming year turns into a pleasant exploration of possibilities. You can sell anything you believe in now with little effort, should get busy rounding up ideas to promote. Relationships are lively, full of surprises. Today's natives are original thinkers, scattered through all fields, not forming a typical class or group. Those born this year will subordinate emotional expression in favor of overt success in career advancement.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Short-term ventures turn out to be lasting hindrances to your career. Budgets go out the window if you get swept along by group enthusiasm.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Echoes from yesterday inspire you to take sides or continue to push for a defeated plan. Associates cool off, turn to more rational solutions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Details are beyond your control. Relax, go along with the trend, avoid drastic revisions. You sold your idea; give others time to digest it.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Be thrifty; you'll have plenty of uses for ready cash. Confrontations give way to intellectual approaches to solve problems without crisis.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Slow up enough to make sure health and resources are intact. Don't neglect persistent symptoms. Social connections are sensitive; don't say too much.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: According to your views, circumstances drift toward either conflict or cooperation. Avoid committing more cash. Evening talks bring simplification.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Reserve opinion until you hear more; stay on an even keel. Skip financing experiments, but do something for younger people in over their depth.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Differences sharpen to open dispute if you let them. People shift from assumptions of authority. Clear up unfinished work, more is on the way.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: What seems at first like a very small variation overturns set schedules. Tonight go in for entertainment, try to get your mind off the job.

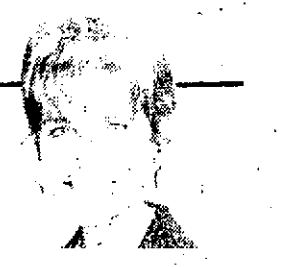

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: A conservative attitude now brings long-run security. Shortcuts are unavailable at the moment. Where convictions clash, do not overstate your case.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Assume responsibility for ventures based on your own original ideas. Keep your local environment in good order, but avoid extreme changes.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: There's no point bickering or taking umbrage. What looks like a practical joke is probably coincidence; take it so. Be wary of vague promises.

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

DISTANCE: (Q.) I met this guy Andy last July. I was going with someone else and he was too. He asked me on a date and I went. That night, we discovered we liked each other.

He broke up with his girl and I broke up with my boy friend. We started going together. But in August, he moved away. It's just an hour's drive, though, and he comes up here, usually every weekend.

I like Andy more than any other guy ever. I think about him constantly. I cry a lot because he's there and I'm here. I really love him, and I'm not a pushover. I'm afraid because we're not together as much as we were it will die. How can I stop that from happening? — 15 in Pennsylvania.

(A.) You and Andy see each other once a week. That is enough to keep love alive and healthy.

If he lived down the street, you couldn't see him every minute, but you wouldn't cry. So dry up the tears and the worries. Spend your time and energy usefully at school and at home. Waste no time daydreaming or ightmaring.

Live postively and cheerfully, and you will be at your best when Andy and you can be together.

PURSUED: (Q.) My boy friend got me into square dancing. After a while, he dropped out of it and I got this 56-year-old man for a partner. Soon I found out that the old man was in love with me.

But I'm in love with my boy friend and he's in love with me.

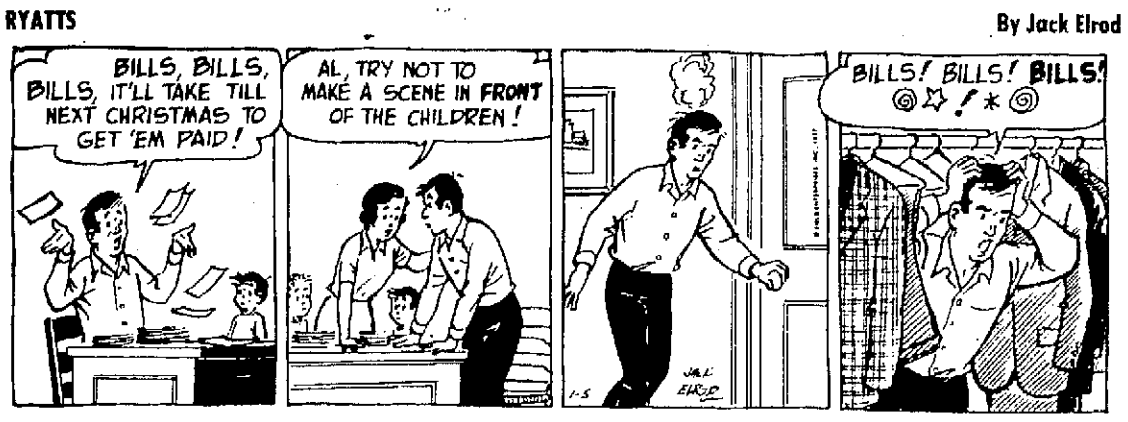

The old man knows about us, but that doesn't stop him. What I want to know is how do I tell him to leave me alone without hurting him and feeling like a two-timer? He keeps calling me up at work. I am 18 now and have a job and want to keep it — and my boy friend too. — Uneasy in Connecticut.

(A.) Tell the man that he's too old for you and that you want to end the friendship because it's bugging you. Do not be afraid of hurting him. He knows what he is doing and that it isn't the right thing to do.

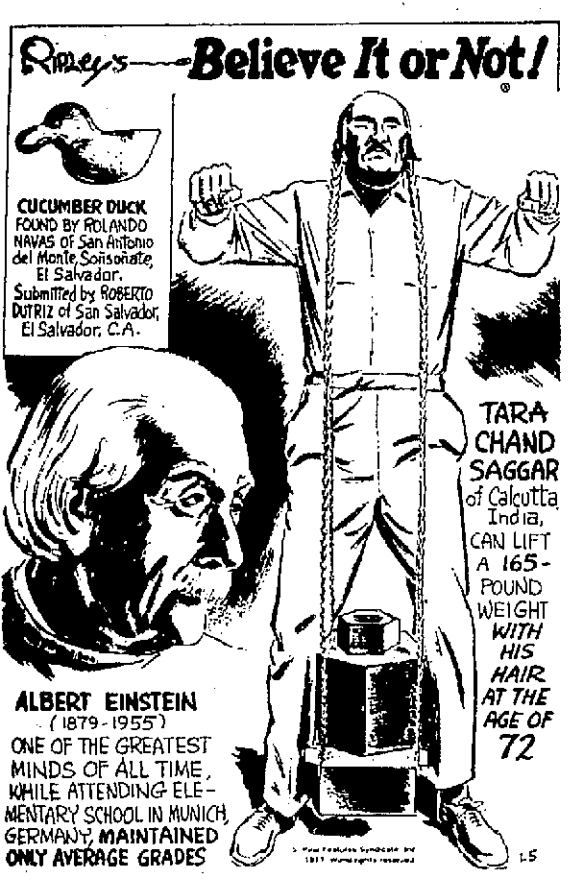

Do not feel like a two-timer. You have not tried to lead him on. Get RID of him.

DON'T LASH OUT AGAINST TRUMP LEAD

It's natural to resist when somebody tries to take the bread out of your mouth, but don't lash out wildly. Too much resistance may be worse than none at all.

Opening lead — ♠ 8

South wasn't going to let any miserable opponent stop the heart ruffs, so he won the first trick, cashed the top hearts and ruffed a heart in dummy.

South next wanted to return to his hand to ruff the last heart, but when he led a club from dummy West won and led another trump.

Now South was in bad shape. He couldn't cash the king of clubs and get back to dummy for the jack of clubs; and since dummy was out of trumps South couldn't ruff out his last heart.

When the ace of diamonds turned up in unfavorable position, South had to lose two diamonds, one club and one heart.

SHOULD LEAD CLUB

After the opening trump lead South can ruff only one heart in dummy. Instead of jumping wildly to do so, South should first lead the king of clubs.

South wins the trump return and cashes the queen of clubs. Then, at last, he can take the top hearts and ruff a heart in dummy. He is in position to cash the jack of clubs, and 10 tricks are assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player bids one spade. You hold: ♠62 ♡Q1093 ◇AJ93 ♣1074. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You were planning to bid one heart if the opponent had passed, but you cannot afford to bid two hearts. The raise in diamonds does justice to your hand.

Hundreds of Free Public Events Planned

The Inaugural Uninvited Can Still Enjoy Capitol

WASHINGTON(UPI) — Even without a special invitation to Jimmy Carter's inaugural, Americans still can come and enjoy hundreds of free public events, including fireworks, square dances, symphony concerts and an all-night jazz, blues and soul session.

The big ceremonial events — box seats at the swearing in and a chance to dance at one of six presidential parties that night — are by invitation only — and only if you've paid $25.

But the inaugural committee announced Tuesday that starting Jan. 18 — two days before the inauguration — there will be hundreds of free events for Republicans and Democrats alike who just want to come to town for the festivities.

Bardyl Tirana, co-chairman of the inaugural committee, said the free events were part of Carter's plan to "make Washington a stage for the celebration of the inauguration."

"President-elect Carter wanted as many people as possible to come to Washington for the inauguration and participate in as many events as possible," Tirana said.

The free events include:

— A fireworks display on the mall, officially opening Jan. 18.

— An all-night jazz, blues and soul session at a Washington church.

— Four two-hour informal concerts at seven of the Smithsonian museums, and 200 musical events at museums and galleries throughout the city.

— Free concerts at the Kennedy Center by the combined Atlanta and National Symphonies directed by Robert Shaw, leader of the Robert Shaw Chorale.

— The "world's biggest square dance" in cavernous Union Station Jan. 21. The first 10,000 people who pick up free tickets will be admitted.

— Folk dancing in Union Station Jan. 18, also open to 10,000.

— The prayer service opening Inaugural Day at the Lincoln Memorial, featuring opera stars Leontyne Price and Sherrill Milnes of the Metropolitan Opera, a 400-member choir, the Atlanta Boys Choir and Dr. Martin Luther King Sr. The committee expects 50,000 to attend.

— Shuttle bus service all over town during the week, especially on Inauguration Day. There also will be free tours of Washington and the Pentagon and Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, leaving each day from the Kennedy Center.

One thing the public will not be able to do is visit the White House, which President Andrew Jackson threw open for his inaugural. "It was never considered because of logistical problems and problems of security," Tirana said.

British Plan Sale To Reds

WASHINGTON(UPI) — The British government plans to sell the Soviet Union a control system for jet engines that has apparent applications to the Russian Backfire bomber, according to Air Force sources.

The proposal involves a $17 million contract between Lucas Aerospace, a British company, and the Soviet government, to design and develop an electronic control system for the Kuznetsov NK144 turbofan jet engine, an upgraded version of which is used on the twinengine Backfire.

The Soviet bomber is seen by U.S. military authorities as a strategic threat. It has been, along with the U.S. cruise missile now under development, the major obstacle to conclusion of a SALT II agreement with Russia, according to U.S. government sources.

Pentagon spokesmen said they would have no immediate comment on the British proposal until they receive official notification of it.

The Lucas contract is ready to be placed before the International Coordinating Committee, otherwise known as COCOM, by Britain's delegate, according to embassy officials here.

COCOM is a group consisting of most NATO countries plus Japan which meets weekly in Paris to monitor technological exports to Communist countries. Compliance with objections lodged by other members against a deal is voluntary.

When the contract was announced Dec. 23, Lucas said only the control system was for use in the Russian supersonic transport, the TU144, which is believed to have been taken out of service because of mechanical problems.

Air Force sources said electronic systems to control fuel and air flow and to monitor performance for the TU144 could also have applications to Backfire engines.

The swing-wing Backfire is close in size and appearance to the U.S. B1 bomber. It has been in production since 1974 and is now being deployed to Soviet long-range aviation units for both overland and naval use. A total of 80 to 90 have been built so far, according to U.S. sources.

Barge Corp. Facing Suit In Del Spill

ALBANY, N.Y.(UPI) — The owners of a barge which ran around in the St. Lawrence River last June, spilling 308,000 gallons of fuel oil, face a $10.34 million lawsuit filed by State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz.

Lefkowitz said Tuesday he filed the claim against the Oswego Barge Corp., owners of the barge "Nepco 140," in U.S. District Court in Utica at the request of state Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter Berle.

While being pushed by a tug, the barge ran aground near Mason Point on June 23, spilling the oil.

The suit for penalties and damages charges that the corporation killed and injured protected wildlife, violated the state's water quality standards, damaged state parks and wetlands in the area, and required the expenditure of $9 million for clean-up operations, Lefkowitz said.

He said the U.S. Coast Guard's expenses incurred in the cleanup were included in the damages sought.

The corporation had previously filed papers with the court seeking an exoneration or limitation on its liability for the spill to about $3.77 million.
